50 MILLION MEMORIES

Tears, Smiles Bring Great Fair to End

By DAVE MacDONALD

MONTREAL (CP)—An unaccustomed stillness lay over Expo's 1,000-acre site Sunday night a few hours after the 1967 worlds' fair came to an end.

Blackness cloaked most of 74 pavilions that for six months rang to laughter, chatter and tears.

In 185 days Expo admitted 50,306,648—a record for fairs of this type and duration.

Expo's probable $250,000,000 deficit will be paid 50 per cent by the federal government, 37½ per cent by the Quebec provincial government and 12½ per cent by the Montreal municipal government.

The highlight of Expo's last day was an official ceremony held in the Place des Nations, an open amphitheatre on St. Helen's Island.

A crowd of 15,000 gave Montreal's Mayor Jean Drapeau a tremendous ovation as he gave his thanks.

There was a subdued air and general disappointment that the fair was over.

Montrealer Liliane Azar said, "I feel as though someone has died."

About 1,500 police and security men were able to clear the site without the last-minute looting feared by officials.

The last visitor was admitted at 2 p.m. and the day's admission total was 221,554.

Mr. Michener received a 21-gun salute and 100 men of the Royal 22nd Regiment presented arms while the British and Canadian national anthems were played and his personal standard was raised.

Expo visitors, who had been told they were barred from the ceremony, were pleased when security men let them flock to the terraces.

Within 30 minutes the crowd

UN Split On Mideast Peace Plan

By WILLIAM N. OATIS

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The 10 non-permanent members of the UN Security Council, split between two proposals, tried today to agree on a plan the council could adopt to send a peacemaker to the Arabs and Israelis.

One major difference was over wording of instructions to the proposed UN special representative concerning withdrawal of Israeli troops from captured Arab lands.

A Canadian-Danish draft said no state in the area should "persist in refusing to withdraw" troops that are on another's territory against its will.

A resolution submitted by Argentina, Brazil, Ethiopia, India, Mali and Nigeria said the Israelis should withdraw either "to positions they held on June 4"—the day before the war began—or "from all the territories occupied as a result of the recent conflict." The phrase to be used depended on final instruction some of the delegates receive from their governments.

DATE IN QUESTION

DAMASCUS— Damascus radio reported that four Israeli planes flew over Syria today and that one of them was shot down in a brief air battle with Syrian planes south of Damascus.

It was the first incident reported on the Israeli-Syrian front in days although Israeli troops have exchanged fire repeatedly with Egyptian and Jordanian forces.

BRUSH FIRES FORCE THOUSANDS TO FLEE

ORANGE, Calif. (UPI)—Brush fires exploded across Southern California today, charring more than 60,000 acres, destroying more than 50 expensive homes and forcing thousands of residents to flee.

The worst of the fires, a 28,000-acre blaze raging in heavily populated areas of Orange County, was declared a major disaster by state officials. A fire spokesman said the blaze was "burning like hell" with no hope of control while the high winds continued to blow.

CANADIANS WARNED

Price Growth 'Too Rapid'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canada has unparalleled opportunities to grow but must dampen down the price and cost pressures which are running ahead of their U.S. counterparts, Arthur Smith, new chairman of the Economic Council of Canada, said today.

There have been recent indications that the pace of over-all expansion "may now be quickening somewhat again," after a period of moderation in growth during the last part of 1966 and first part of 1967, he said.

He spoke to a combined meeting of the Vancouver Board of Trade and the Canadian Club of Vancouver. It was one of his first major speeches since taking over chairmanship of the council from John J. Deutsch, now at Queen's University, Kingston, Ont.

Mr. Smith said that in the 1960s, Canada's employment grew more than in any other industrial country. Total volume of output rose faster than any country except Japan.

But growth in productivity and living standards in Canada has not been as great as in many other countries.

By 1980, Mr. Smith said, the Canadian labor force is ex-

OTTAWA — Manpower minister Jean Marchand told Parliament today his department will look into the closure of Victoria Machinery Depot.

The shipbuilding and repair business has been sold to Burrard Dry Dock Co. of North Vancouver.

Marchand said he hoped to be able to make a report to Parliament either Tuesday or Wednesday.

Harold Winch (NDP—Vancouver East) got the answer after he asked what Marchand—whose department deals with replacement and retraining of workers—was doing about the layoffs of skilled men at VMD.

Winch and Ron Basford (Liberal—Vancouver Burrard) had teamed up in efforts to get answers from Transport Minister Paul Hellyer but were cut off by Speaker Lucien Lamoureux, who ruled the questions could not be asked at this time.

Major Step To Moon Landing

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet Union announced it launched an earth satelilte today that carried out an automatic docking procedure with another satellite sent up Friday.

It was the first automatic docking procedure ever carried out, although the U.S. has carried out manned docking experiments.

Tass news agency said satellite Cosmos 188 was launched today and made a successful rendezvous with Cosmos 186, launched last Friday.

The announcement said the "rigidly coupled" satellites are continuing their joint orbital flight, according to telemetry radioed from the project. It reported all equipment functioning normally.

Tass said television cameras on board the sputniks took pictures of the linkup and radioed them back to earth.

Tass told how the launching was carried out:

"After Cosmos 188 went into orbit, both sputniks, equipped with special approach systems and docking units, carried out a number of complicated manoeuvres in space, automatically finding each other, drawing closer, berthing and docking rigidly.

"The processes of seeking each other, approaching and docking were carried out with the help of special radio-technical means and on-board computers."

Official Denies Manned 'Spectacular'

The spectacular docking achievement followed only by a few hours an official denial from Russia's top scientific expert that the Russians planned a space spectacular involving passengers in the near future.

There were widespread rumors the Russians would pull off a major space achievement involving cosmonauts in time for the 50th anniversary celebrations of the Bolshevik revolution Nov. 7.

Mstislav Keldysh, the space head, said Western observatories were wrong in speculating the recent rash of Cosmos launchings—five in the past week alone—were dress rehearsals for manned flights.

"We have other objectives in mind," he said.

As he spoke the Russians carried out one of those objectives—the docking procedure which is a must for future manned flights in space. The announcement gave the Russians another jump in the race for the moon.

At 12:20 p.m. (1:20 a.m. PST) as Keldysh spoke to reporters the two Cosmos satellites linked, Tass said.

After the docking the two sputniks continued to fly together around the earth at altitudes ranging between 124 and 171 miles, Tass said. They circled the earth once every 88 to 97 minutes at an angle to the earth of 51.7 degrees.

They were following roughly the same orbit as that of Soyuz I, Russia's last manned spaceship, which ended in disaster last April when it crash-landed, killing its cosmonaut, Vladimir Komraov.

Tass said the dockings cleared the way for the building of space platforms in orbits. The Soviets plan to use these platforms to launch probes to the moon and the planets.

The linkup gave the Russians a new 50th anniversary present to go with another unmanned triumph Oct. 18—the soft landing of a space station on the surface of the planet Venus.

Clemency Sought

SAIGON (Reuters)—A South Vietnamese army lieutenant-colonel sentenced to death for corruption appealed today for clemency to President-elect Nguyen Van Thieu. Lt.-Col. Tran Dinh Vong, 49-year-old government-appointed chief of the central coastal province of Binh Dinh, was the highest ranking officer so far sentenced under Vice-President-elect Nguyen Cao Ky's "Clean up corruption" campaign.

EVERY CASE A CRISIS

Troubled Children Need Those 80,000 'Helpers'

By TED GASKELL

One of the toughest jobs performed by a United Red Feather-Red Cross Appeal agency and one of the most gratifying is that of the Family and Children's Service.

Its staff is confronted with such difficult problems as finding homes for children who do not get along with their parents; trying to patch up marital squabbles; finding foster homes for unwanted children; helping unmarried mothers; looking after emotionally disturbed children at the Sevenoaks Centre and finding adoption parents.

Some problems might seem insurmountable but the service can be proud of many successes, says Mrs. Gwen Lundy, supervisor of the intake section.

The service with close to 100 office staff and social workers will operate next year on a budget of $1,157,105 of which $80,000 will come from the United Red Feather—Red Cross Appeal's $600,000.

Big problem for the service is the need for foster parents. Group homes are operating with between eight and 10 children but often those are full and individual homes must be found.

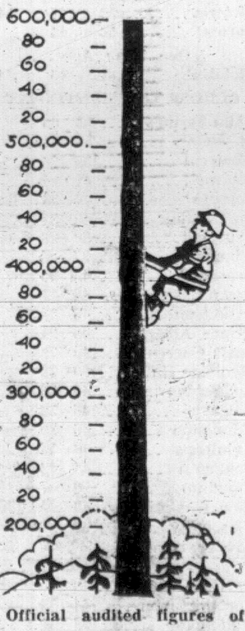
The service took 23 children into care one month including six in one day.

Four came from one family in which the mother was ill and the father away. In this case the children were taken care of for a time, then the situation was reviewed.

Another child was abandoned by a mother who returned after a few days but in the meantime the Family and Children's Service found the child a home. Another child, close to school-leaving age, could no longer live with her own parents and sought a foster home where she could settle down to finish school.

United Appeal

Put Him Up On Top



Official audited figures of the United Red Feather-Red Cross Appeal at noon today stood at $356,134 or 59.3 per cent of the $600,000 required.

In such a case the service will try to effect a reconciliation before finding a foster home.

Among the more than 200 cases handled each month are those brought to the attention of the service by out-of-town agencies who might want reports on families in divorce cases so that children can be placed in the proper custody.

The intake section of the service is a "crisis area" according to Mrs. Lundy and while her department sees some cases which sometimes seem hopeless and are frequently depressing, there are many happy endings.

A child who has been in care since the toddling stage is proud of having topped the class in a vocational school.

It took more than a year for one child to get over its mistrust of adults including its foster parents but not long ago the service received a letter expressing deep appreciation of the foster parents work from the ward.

Others whose parents can't afford to look after them are fully reconciled and quite happy with foster parents.

One of the more unpleasant tasks facing the service is the work under the Protection of Children Act by which the workers may remove a child from its home in the case of neglect or cruelty.

Sometimes this results in an appearance before the family court judge but sometimes the complaint brings to the attention of the service a case of parents needing not punishment but assistance.

Sometimes families must be split up but "wherever possible we try to keep families together," said Mrs. Lundy.

SUICIDE ENDS THREE-DAY DRAMA

Bride Held Hostage, Shot by Ex-Suitor

CLEVELAND (AP)—A disappointed suitor shot himself to death today after wounding a young bride he held captive at gunpoint since Saturday night in his third-floor suburban apartment, police said.

Robert Batch, 23, was dead on arrival in hospital, a bullet wound in his heart.

Lida Caldwell, 19, was wounded in the chest and taken to surgery where doctors reported her in reasonably good condition.

University Heights Police Sgt. Chris Schoupt said Batch's mother, Martha Smith of Johnstown, Pa., talked to the boy from his kitchen and told him she loved him and would protect him.

"We heard two shots and we rushed in," Schoupt said.

Cleveland detective Capt. Patrick L. Garrity said that when he entered the bedroom, the girl was still standing, although wounded.

Garrity said Batch was lying on the floor, the gun in his hand.

Both Batch and Mrs. Caldwell were carried from the home on stretchers.

Police said Batch had refused to talk to his mother.

"Go away and leave us alone," Mrs. Caldwell said from the bedroom before the shooting.

Batch had held the woman captive at gunpoint since shooting her husband, Charles, 18, in the newlyweds' apartment, police said. Caldwell, wounded in the face, was in fair condition in hospital. Police said he identified Batch as the person who shot him.

Mrs. Smith had flown to Cleveland to try to reason with her son. She arrived less than an hour before the shooting.

ISSUED WARNING

Batch had warned he would shoot Mrs. Caldwell and himself if anyone intervened.

Earlier, he used the woman as a shield and drove police into a stairway with a volley of shots.

No one was hit.

"He came out shooting," said Irving Konigsberg, mayor of University Heights. "We can't get at him."

Konigsberg said police had been in the suburban University Heights apartment trying to talk Batch into freeing the girl when he came out of the bedroom with a pistol pointed at her neck.

Police had not talked to the girl since five shots were fired about dawn today. Earlier, Batch fired three shots and one knocked out a searchlight set up outside the house.

About 50 police officers were outside the house, some armed with tear gas and shotguns.

Police said coffee spiked with a sleeping drug was passed to Batch and the woman early today but it could not be confirmed that they drank it.

Herbert Pendergraft, the girl's father said he once had a fight with Batch, whom he described as a blondish, heavy-set youth.

"If you don't get out, I'll shoot her," Detective Alan Schultz quoted Batch as saying in answer to pleas Sunday that he release young Mrs. Caldwell, of 4,000 invited dignitaries swelled to about 15,000.

EXPO 67 drew more visits than any other world's fair in history, topping the previous leader, the 1958 Brussels fair, by a wide margin. A total of 50,306,648 visits were made to the Montreal fair which ended Sunday. (CP Newsmap.)

The governor-general presented gold medallions to representatives of all national pavilions. As he did so the flags of the participating nations were lowered from the flag-poles where they had flown since Expo opened April 27.

Mr. Pearson then presented silver medallions to representatives of private pavilions.

'A GREAT NATION'

Mr. Dupuy, his voice a little strained, said he believed Expo had achieved its purposes and Canada had acquired a new stature as "a great nation."

Mr. Drapeau got sustained, ringing applause before and after he spoke.

Several hostesses who attended the ceremony in the uniform of their pavilions blushed and beamed as he said:

"Especially, I want to say 50,000,000 times thank you to the hostesses of Expo's pavilions. Your courtesy, kindness, smiles and warm welcome was a great factor in Expo's success."

A mighty roar came when he finished with the words:

"Long live Expo 67. Long live Man and his World."

Quebec Premier Daniel Johnson also praised Expo's hostesses—and Mrs. Robert Shaw, Expo's official hostess and wife of the fair's deputy commissioner-general.

Mr. Pearson was cheered when he called Expo "a glorious page in our history."

Mr. Pearson said Expo was a "great Canadian achievement in design, planning and construction" and a "great success." The big fair has been "one of the most imaginative acts of faith in Canadian enterprise and ability ever attempted," he added.

It proved Canadians could achieve any objective if they worked together. It had made Canadians more conscious of their own capacities and potential.

"We have discovered that we do have a character and quality of our own; rich and diverse, but Canadian."

SPEECH 'FILED'

The governor-general told the audience he would not deliver his prepared speech because of the time and temperature — the cremony ran eight minutes beyond the scheduled finishing time and it was about 35 degrees—but would file it "in the archives of Expo" where it probably would be "unread through eternity."

Part of the undelivered speech said Expo gave to the Canadian people "a sense of their collective achievement as a great composite community of various people and regions, all working together for a common good."

A large part of the crowd stayed on after Mr. Michener had declared Expo officially closed to watch a 45-minute flying display by the Golden Centennaires, the RCAF's crack aerobatics team.

Scattered groups of visitors sang Alouette as they drifted toward the exit gates and one woman summed up a general feeling about Expo by wailing:

"Now what will we do to keep young? Expo made us young all summer."

as to reports that the sale was triggered because of lack of contracts and rumored cancellation of the $22.5 million worth of shipping for the transport department.

VMD President Harold Husband said last week that this news has triggered his decision to get out of the shipyard business.

The transport department declined comment on reports that a shipbuilding program for the coast guard has been cancelled.

But informants said that at least four of six planned coast guard cutters will be eliminated in the government's economy drive.

Finance Minister Sharp has promised to outline soon projects being ditched by the government in its drive to reduce planned expenditures in the 1968-69 fiscal year.

pected to grow to 10,500,000, from 7,000,000 in 1965.

"This great expansion will, of course, bring enormously increased demands for capital investment in the form of machinery and equipment, factories and office buildings, and other forms of capital.

"The rapidly growing numbers of young people in our society, which lie behind this large growth in our labor force, will in fact have far-reaching implications for almost every aspect of our national life, including requirement for a vast increase in new housing units to accommodate an extraordinary rapid rate of growth in new families and households."

He spoke of the expected boom in university schooling and said this will make educational expenditures the most prominent feature of government spending during the years to come.

"Over the medium-term future," he said, "about one-quarter of all government expenditures at all levels of government combined will need to be devoted to education." To achieve its potentials, Canada will have to avoid uneccep-tably high price and cost increases, and improve its productivity, he said.

He reiterated the council's view that Canada is too subject to international influences to make it possible for voluntary wage and price restraints to work for longer than a brief period.

"Recently, prices and costs in Canada have generally been increasing more rapidly than in the United States, and this cannot persist for long without imperilling other economic and social goals in Canada," he said.

Mr. Smith said all the so-called big levers of economic policy-government taxing and spending policies, interest rate management, exchange rate machinery, and commercial policy—will have to be used to keep the economy on an even keel.

"But the opportunities which lie ahead of us in this country over the medium- and longer-range future, are now virtually without parallel anywhere in the world.

"All across this great country, Canadians everywhere should be seeking to participate confidently and constructively in turning these opportunities into realities."

B.C. 'Anxious For Meeting

Social Welfare Minister Dan Campbell today said the provincial government endorses a call for convening of an immediate federal-provincial conference on Indian problems.

The call was made at a meeting Friday in Regina by representatives of the four western provinces.

James Sadler, assistant deputy minister for social welfare, represented B.C. at the conference and was to make his report to Mr. Campbell later today.

But the minister this morning said B.C. has been anxious for a federal-provincial conference for some time and the proposal would be given official backing by the provincial government.

MAILMEN TO PRESS FOR SATURDAYS OFF

The Canadian Council of Postal Unions is going to make a drive to get the five-day service established, cutting out deliveries on Saturday, in its collective bargaining with the public service staff relations board, a spokesman for the unions said today.

Already the post office department has studied some of the economics involved in dropping the one day. It would result in a saving of about $10 million a year.

But the government is waiting to determine the possible impact on business and industry of only a five-day service. Until it has that information at hand no decisions will be taken.

It is understood that Postmaster General J. J. Cote has put forward the five-day mail delivery service suggestion in cabinet. He is also reported to be urging cabinet to accept the Glassco Royal Commission recommendation that the post office be made a crown corporation.

U.S. BORDER DISPUTE

Mexico Gains Acres of Brush

JUAREZ, Mexico (AP) — Mexico and the United States ended in pageantry and with glowing good will Saturday a dispute that erupted over a bit of border brush country and lasted more than a century.

President Johnson and President Gustavo Diaz Ordaz of Mexico sat at desks before a monument on Mexican soil commemorating the settlement to sign proclamations which said the structure "will stand forever as a symbol of good will between our two nations—and as a sign to the world of what men can accomplish when they approach their differences in a spirit of compromise and mutual respect."

The row over a bit of border land called El Chamizal, "The Thicket," grew from a shift in the channel of the Rio Grande that carried a section of Mexico north of the existing boundary. Saturday, the presidents sealed a settlement in which their countries traded several small tracts with a net gain of 437 acres for Mexico.

This is less than one square mile. But presidents through the years had failed to reach an agreement over the tract.

The United States spent millions to move its citizens out of the area that now reverts to Mexico.

U.S. Curbing Western Immigration

WASHINGTON (AP) — While the Presidents of the United States and Mexico are proclaiming lasting friendship between their nations, Congress is about to take a step the State Department fears all Latin America and Canada will resent.

It is going to let a controversial ceiling on immigration from the western hemisphere take effect next July 1 although 12 of 15 members of a special study commission are opposed to the move.

The 120,000 ceiling on immigration from Latin America and Canada, which traditionally have enjoyed unlimited access to the United States, was written into the Immigration Act of 1965. But the commission was established to make a study and recommend whether it should actually go into effect.

Twelve of the commissioners want at least another year to get more information before making any recommendations and the House has unanimously agreed to the time extension. But largely at the urging of Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, (R—Ill.), the Senate hasn't.

Under the law, the commission goes out of existence next Jan. 15, and in the absence of any action by the Senate, the ceiling will automatically go into effect.

Choir Deficit To Be Paid In Full-Society

Charges that the Greater Victoria Centennial Society refused to pay the full expenses of the Winnipeg Polish "Sokol" Choir were denied this morning.

The choir visited Victoria earlier this month to perform in the National Folk Arts Festival at the McPherson Playhouse.

In a letter to Cecil Semchyshyn, chairman of the Manitoba Folk Arts Council, choir director Richard Seaborn says the choir incurred a $700 to $800 deficit, which the Victoria Centennial Society has refused to pay.

Cec Wyatt, secretary-treasurer for the society, and Jerry Gosley, co-ordinator, described the charge as nonsense.

Mr. Wyatt said the Polish group had already been informed that any reasonable deficit incurred during the visit to Victoria would be met as soon as the society received a full statement from the choir director.

"The original estimate to bring the choir out was $2,750," Mr. Wyatt said. "We have already advanced $400 above that figure—and we have set aside to meet any further reasonable deficit the sum of $1,000. But we can't make that payment on a verbal request. As soon as we receive a full accounting from the choir we shall pay the deficit. And we have already informed the group as to our intention."

Yachtsmen Taken Forcibly From Craft During Storm

DURBAN (AP) — Canadian David Dick and Australian Laurie Harder were taken off their yacht Ohra under protest as near hurricane-force winds whipped up raging seas near Stanger, 40 miles north of Durban today, the South African Press Association reported.

They were spotted riding out the storm in the open sea by the master of the Japanese freighter Awata Maru.

Although it was believed the Ohra did not request assistance, the freighter moved in close to the 27-foot cutter, the association reported. Swirling seas prevented the yacht moving away from the freighter and the two men were taken aboard under protest.

The abandoned yacht was later reported beached a short distance from Durban with the rudder missing, but little other apparent damage.

Harder and Dick were brought to Durban aboard the Awata Maru, when the port reopened to shipping after being closed for 24 hours.

Further details were not available.

She said Batch then stabbed himself in the chest and underwent psychiatric care.

War Rally Pulls Crowd Of 25,000

WAKEFIELD, Mass. (AP) — A 19-year-old high school student who organized a patriotic rally that drew a police estimated 25,000 persons to the town common says he hopes it will touch off other public demonstrations in support of U.S. servicemen in Vietnam. Paul P. Christopher Jr. served Sunday as master of ceremonies for a 75-minute program of prayers and speeches.

Christopher said he decided to organize the demonstration after becoming "burned up" at an anti-Vietnam protest in downtown Boston Oct. 16 when about 200 youths either burned what they claimed were their draft cards or turned the documents over to clergymen.

Reagan Wants Law

SACRAMENTO (AP)—Governor Ronald Reagan cautiously suggested a national law Saturday cracking down on militant anti-draft, anti-war demonstrators for "giving aid and comfort to the enemy."

RAIDS HAMPERED

Pilots Fight Rain Season

SAIGON (AP)—Racing against the approaching north-east monsoons, U.S. bomber pilots carried their campaign against the heartland of North Vietnam through its sixth straight day Sunday.

U.S. military spokesman said the foul weather apparently is starting to close in, providing North Vietnam with a protective blanket, but conditions along the coast allowed navy pilots to hammer the Cat Bi MiG air base, the Kien An barge repair facility and the Chi Lai trans-shipment point, all within seven miles of the centre of Haiphong, North Vietnam's chief port.

It was the first raid of the war on the barge repair yard. North Vietnam claimed three U.S. planes were shot down, but the U.S. command made no report of any losses. Since the heavy raids on the Hanoi-Haiphong area began last Thursday, the U.S. command has announced the loss of 15 planes and 16 flyers.

There was also no confirmation of a Hanoi claim that a B-52 bomber was shot down just north of the demilitarized zone Sunday.

FOUR B52S LOST

In the 28 months the big high-altitude bombers have been attacking in Vietnam, none has been shot down but four have collided in the air over the sea and crashed and another crashed at Da Nang while making emergency landing with two of its eight engines out.

In the ground war in South Vietnam, U.S. and South Vietnamese forces beat off an attack by about 1,000 Viet Cong on a rubber plantation 70 miles north of Saigon after nearly 14 hours of fighting.

The U.S. command said 145 Viet Cong soldiers, three Americans and 14 South Vietnamese killed.

Bonfires Readied

NEW EFFORT TO END YEMEN WAR

SANMA, Yemen (AP) — President Abdullah al-Sallal and Republican leaders who recently returned to Yemen from a year in exile have agreed to hold a peace conference with the Royalists in an effort to end Yemen's civil war.

An announcement issued at the end of their two-day meeting Sunday night said a meeting of opposing factions should be in Yemen, not in Khartoum, as suggested at the recent Arab summit meeting in the Sudanese capital.

Sallal will leave shortly for visits to the United Arab Republic, Iraq, Algiers and the Soviet Union.

Field of Influence

CANADIANS CAN ONLY watch with uneasy fascination the battle between President Johnson and Congress over the administration's proposal for a 10 per cent surcharge on the income tax—the results of which will have important effects on this country. No matter what decisions Finance Minister Sharp comes to on spending and taxation they must be taken with the painful knowledge that the well-being of the Canadian economy rests to some degree in the hands of legislators and officials in Washington. If the United States is not successful in getting inflationary pressures under control and pulling interest rates down from their record levels, there will be little freedom of manoeuvre for Canada's finance minister.

There is a clear crisis of confidence in the United States over the inability of the administration and Congress to come to terms on fiscal and monetary management. This is reflected in the recent rapid decline in the stock market, high interest rates and the tightening of the money market as borrowers seek funds now in the expectation that borrowing may be even more difficult in the future.

President Johnson in recent weeks has sent before Congress most of his top officials in the financial areas of government, and, additionally, there have been dozens of top-level bankers, industrialists and economists, to testify as to the urgent need of a tax increase both to minimize the impending federal budget deficit and to remove some of the inflationary pressures from the economy. But little impression has been made on the majority of the legislators who are keenly aware of the unpopularity of a tax boost with most of their constituents.

No matter how badly the administration money managers, and the bankers and economists, want a tax increase, there is a strong public sentiment against it for the simple reason that most people who have jobs would rather face the threat of inflation than the possibility of unemployment in a deflated economy.

Even without a war to fight, Canada finds itself in much the same position as the United States, but with the added burden of a slow rise in the rate of productivity in recent years. Ottawa's proposed solution is a sharp cutback in federal government expenditures to reduce a prospective heavy budget deficit and to free the capital markets of the burden of government borrowing—among the main causes of inflation and high interest rates.

In Canada's situation deep cuts into government spending at all levels are preferable to tax increases which would tend to lower rather than raise productive capacity. Unfortunately, in the view of some economists, it may be necessary both to cut expenditures and apply the drastic measure of higher taxation in order to control a run-away situation. The answer may be forthcoming in a matter of weeks when Mr. Sharp reveals the extent of his program to curtail spending.

A Basic Cure Needed

A REPORT FROM THE ATLANTIC Provinces' Economic Council released a few days after the announcement that Dominion Steel and Coal Corp. planned to shut down its Sydney, Nova Scotia, steel mill emphasized the alarming plight of this region of Canada. In the relatively brief period of five years, the Council states, the four Atlantic provinces have suffered a population loss of more than 103,000 persons. The report predicts that the exodus from the area will continue at a higher rate in the future unless there is a radical change in economic conditions.

The population decline poses a dilemma for Canada since it is generally accepted that the nation is committed to a program of equalizing economic opportunity in all parts of the country so far as this is possible. The Atlantic area problem is deepened by the fact that the population shift has occurred primarily because of economic depression—per capita income for 40 years has been about one-third lower than the Canadian average—and at the same time the outflow tends to exacerbate the depression. It is a case of people leaving because of lack of opportunity which in turn worsens the plight of those left behind.

The Council proposes an integrated program of planning and development of new business and industry because one of the chief difficulties in bolstering the economy of the area is the multiplicity of agencies, federal and provincial, with few of them working in unison. Since it has become evident that fairly large federal funds will have to be expended in an effort to get the Atlantic provinces back on their feet, this is an elementary recommendation which all Canadians should support.

A Glimmer of Light

JORDAN'S KING HUSSEIN MAY have started on the long, hard road back to reality when he admitted in a Paris press conference that the State of Israel does exist and has the right to exist.

It has been rumored on several occasions since the six-day Arab-Israeli war that King Hussein privately, in conversations with Western leaders as well as in Arab councils, has conceded that acknowledgement by the Arabs of the permanence of Israel must come before peace in the Middle East is possible. But he has never admitted this publicly and, in fact, when Jordan's representative at the United Nations took this line recently he was forced to retract on orders from the Jordanian government.

King Hussein is visiting Paris, London and Washington in an effort to explain the Arab cause and "to erase a false Arab image of aggressive and unenlightened militarism." The reality, as he sees it, is that the Arabs "have been victimized by people who have been victimized by others, not by us." There is, of course, a certain truth in that belief and much mischief has been caused by Western refusal to perceive the bitterness which the establishment of Israel on Arab lands has caused among those who were dispossessed. The Arabs can ask with some justice why they should expiate the sins of others against the Jews.

None of this, however, is worth arguing over, 20 years after an event which by any practical standard is irreversible. And if King Hussein now sees this, as he apparently does, there may be some hope that he can persuade other Arab leaders to his view.

If You Can't Lick 'Em . . .

AN INTERESTING BIT OF Canadiana was suggested by a question from Mr. Michael Starr in the Commons the other day. He asked if "the government anticipates intervening in any way in the proposed sale of a Canadian institution, Laura Secord candies, to a United States concern."

The original Laura Secord won distinction in June, 1813, when, learning from American soldiers billeted in her home at Queenston that a surprise attack was planned on Beaver Dam, she made her way through the American lines and walked 20 miles to warn the defender, Lieut. James FitzGibbon.

A century and a half after this incident in the struggle for the border, what Mr. Starr calls "a Canadian institution"—one which preserves the name of a national heroine — is in danger of being gobbled up by Laura's erstwhile enemy.

If you can't lick 'em, buy 'em.

"What would you do, Harry, if all of a sudden we ran into a Sasquatch . . .?"

Central Park Pool

Ald. Stewart's suggestion that a pool be built elsewhere and closer to the city's population centres is to be highly commended. Last spring, I believe Ald. Frampton made a similar suggestion, pointing out the Central Park-Arena sports complex as a suitable area.

A pool in this area would be within walking distance of at least two large elementary schools, some private schools, two junior secondary schools, and Vic High. It seems the logical thing to build a pool where the population and need exist.—K. Dixon, 2640 Roseberry.

Justice and Hypnotism

Whatever kind of justice can allow a witness to be hypnotized in court, and possibly influenced to say anything the hypnotist requires? Surely such practise should not be allowed under any circumstances. A witness takes an oath to speak the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth. Could such a hypnotized witness be held responsible?—E. W. Abraham, 1125 Faithful.

The Record

May I remind hostile critics of the role that Britain played in the Near East:

When the Mahdi and his fanatical hordes threatened to destroy Egypt, Britain intervened and the battles of Atbarra and Omdurman rescued a decadent people from servitude and massacre. Instead of claiming territory by right of conquest, the British Government established a University in Khartoum and afterwards assisted the Sudan to get its independence.

British troops, in the First World War, freed the Arab tribes from the misrule of the Turkish sultanate, resulting in the creation of the present-day Arab nations. After the break-up of the Ottoman Empire, Britain took over temporarily the administration of the conquered territory, which included a large valley east of Bagdad, where after the war, a railroad had to be built to deal with the greatly enlarged export trade.

For years Britain has been a bulwark against aggression and oppression. It was British troops who stopped German conquest of the Eastern Mediterranean and neighboring states.

Examine the record and you will find that Britain not only kept the peace in those areas but pioneered in the fields of education, medicine and the spread of democratic government.—The Critic.

Disgrace to Profession

I think it is a disgrace to the teaching profession that vulgarities are offered to our children in the name of intellectual freedom. Justification on the grounds of contextual appropriateness is, to my mind, a shocking rationale. Surely the context in which evil speech is made natural is as much to be condemned as the language itself.

What has become of the good, old-fashioned policy of editing and deleting the worst from Shakespeare so that the best can still be used?

FROM LONDON

By TIM TRAYNOR

Still on the Outside Looking In

Traynor

IT WAS appropriate that the German chancellor, Kurt Georg Kiesinger, was in Britain in the early part of last week. These were the days when Prime Minister Harold Wilson was learning how General de Gaulle plans to counter the British bid for membership of the European Common Market. Dr. Kiesinger's presence enabled Mr. Wilson to get a first-hand reaction from the leader of a government whose attitude is of critical importance to Britain.

The Gaullist offering was every bit as demoralizing as the most pessimistic forecasters had predicted it would be. When the council of ministers of the Six assembled Monday in Luxembourg to decide what to do about the British application, the Gaullist Foreign Minister Couve de Murville deftly played on Britain's economic problems. France had had to restore economic stability to make herself fit for membership of the Community; so too must Britain, whose problems were, in fact, more serious than France's had been. A balance of payments would have to be achieved, and this would involve scaling down sterling from a key reserve and trading currency to a national currency comparable to that of any other European country. (There were strong hints that the devaluation of the pound was also envisaged).

The immediate issue before the ministers was whether or not to accept the recent report of the executive commission, which stated that Britain's economic health would have to improve if she was to enter the Community, but which also advocated the opening of negotiations. While echoing the report's economic criticisms, Mr. Couve de Murville neatly sidestepped the commission's recommendation on negotiations. He said talks with the British would be futile, even disruptive, until such time as the proposed steps had been taken by Britain, and her economic recovery was assured.

Since none of this could be done quickly, the message was clear; Britain must be prepared for a long wait. The deadliest sting was that the five pro-British Common Market members were hard put to find an argument with which to contest France's opposition. All more or less concur in the commission's economic criticism and can only dispute the French conclusion that opposes all talks.

Some Consolation

There was, however, some consolation for Britain in the fact that the five fought back vigorously in whatever narrow grounds they could find. There was evidently a strong resentment of French aggressiveness, and a determination to show that one member could not ride rough-shod over the council. Mr. Couve de Murville denied that his argument was a veto but to accept his propositions would be effectively to veto the British application for the time being.

The five argued that there must be talks with the British on the proposed economic changes. The meeting wound up with a decision deferred until next month's council meeting, and with the Dutch foreign minister, always Britain's strongest booster, predicting a Community crisis over the application.

This then was the situation facing Mr. Wilson when he sat down for his final talks with Dr. Kiesinger. The prime minister lost no time Tuesday in assuring Parliament that he intended to press on with his bid for entry into the Common Market, but he was clearly faced with some unavoidable questions — many of them involving Dr. Kiesinger in his key position as leader of the second most important nation of the Six.

How could the five and Britain together tackle General de Gaulle? What were the chances of success? What might happen in the case of failure? What were the issues at stake for the Six in the coming struggle?

Dr. Kiesinger gave an indication of his thinking in a television interview here in English. He repeated his earlier warning that Gen. de Gaulle could not be pressured into softening his attitude toward the British application. It would be necessary, through patient persuasion, to bring him around. He rated the chances of success much higher than at the time of Britain's unsuccessful 1962 application, because Britain had now convinced Europe that she was really committed to joining the ECM.

He added that, in any case, there was no doubt that Britain would ultimately come into the Community. (This was one of the things that must be impressed upon Gen. de Gaulle.) There was in his opinion no alternative for Britain. But for the present, the most important thing was to preserve unanimity in the Six, and, above all, friendship between France and Germany. Its loss would be a danger to Europe, and, indeed the world.

FROM HONG KONG

By CHARLES BARTLETT

A More Practical Way to Go

Bartlett

THE SURPRISE in this vulnerable, uneasy colony is that its white inhabitants, particularly the seasoned veterans of Asian life, display little enthusiasm for the American venture in Vietnam. No one knows China's menace better than the residents of Hong Kong, most of whom suspect that the moment may be near when Peking will cease to tolerate this border anachronism. The outlook is bleak enough to cause the visitor to expect to hear zealous support for the American presence in Asia.

But he hears none. The consensus among Westerners is that the United States is playing a dangerously ill-advised game.

There is fear, particularly among the China experts, that the escalating attack on North Vietnam will produce a massive war which might otherwise be avoided. There are deep doubts, fed by sensitivity to the stubborn gap which divides Asians and Occidentals, that Asia holds any reward for Westerners which can be commensurate with the scale of the investment in Vietnam.

Even Western businessmen, holding their own at the moment, are pessimistic that most of the Asian markets will fall eventually into the hands of the Japanese, rapidly recouping their popularity. They see themselves being shouldered out by the preference of Asians for Asians because they have found the racial fence to be insurmountable.

They are sufficiently impressed by the independent momentum of Asia's evolution to believe that no exertion of Western resources will seriously alter its course. Their attitude toward Hong Kong itself is an example of this fatalism.

"We are not here to represent the West," explains a British official. "We are here to supply the kind of government these people want at this moment. We simply can't walk away from them."

This spirit seems practical for two reasons. First of all Hong Kong has not for several years required any British subsidies. Although less than 100,000 of the four million inhabitants pay taxes and the refugee burden is expensive, the colony is self-sufficient.

Secondly the Chinese have been transmitting clear signals, even during the Red Guard madness, that they do not want Hong Kong now. Much more than a window on the West, the colony is a channel for almost three-fourths of the $4 billion in hard currency which Red China earns from her exports.

But the passivity with which the British await a Chinese move is apparent at the border, only 15 miles from bustling Kowloon. The Sham Chun river, meandering slowly through the rice paddies, is the only real obstacle to aggression. A 17-mile fence has been strung along the border but it is unguarded except for detachments of the Hong Kong police.

Firm Hand

However, the British are determined to avoid the painful strangulation which has befallen the Portuguese in neighboring Macao. This means taking a firm hand against the bombs and demands of the Maoist terrorists.

These extremists, apparently functioning without Peking's enthusiasm, have failed to enlist any substantial following among the Hong Kong Chinese, who know their living standards are far ahead of those in the old country. They are too busy getting and spending to be attracted by communism.

The British can therefore look with reasonable confidence toward their goal of cleaning up the terrorists, a step that is essential to revive the lagging tourist trade.

In the doughty British spirit, they mean to rule efficiently to the end, whenever it may come. They promulgate their laws, liberalize and punish with an assurance which suggests they will be here another 1000 years.

This is one way to go, and the white residents here regard it as a more practical adjustment to the facts of Asian life than the American exertions in Vietnam.

Montreal Le Devoir

The Premier of Alberta outlined in an interview his views on the future of the Canadian federation. He is opposed to recognition of a special status for Quebec and he is convinced that our province will remain within the federation. He does not appear to realize that these two views are irreconcilable.

Mr. Manning shrugs off separatism as an idea that does not even merit discussion, whether it be unconditional independence or Rene Levesque's formula for a separatism which would lead the way to a new association with English Canada. Mr. Manning does not think the majority of Quebecers believe in separatism, and on that he is right, but he does not realize that in refusing the profound reforms which Quebec is demanding and which would give our province a special status, he is making himself an artisan of separatism.

Instead of accepting the theory of two nations or of a Canada founded on two cultures, Mr. Manning sees Canada as a national mosaic where cultural interests would preserve their identity while forming part of the whole picture; he does not want any special status and refuses to distinguish one group from another. He wants to see French culture progress and retain its identity, but he does not want to see this associated with any provincial privileges.

If people do not wish to correct the fundamental ambiguity of our regime and to recognize the profound difference that exists between the needs and interests of Quebec . . . and those of the other provinces, the English majority will be led to impose conditions and requirements which will force Quebec to leave the federation. The most efficacious artisans of separatism at the moment are English-Canadians who refuse to understand that a special status for Quebec is the only way to assure Canadian unity; our federation can endure only if effective recognition is given to the association of two different societies.

Looking Back

From The Times, Oct. 30, 1907.

The Department of Marine and Fisheries has offered the life-boat with its equipment now at Victoria to the Life-Boat and Life-Saving Association of British Columbia upon condition that the latter body provide a crew and work the boat when necessary in an efficient manner.

The offer is looked upon as a generous one by many members of the association. It is suggested that it offers an excellent opportunity for the work of the body to be carried out in the most effective manner.

The People of Russia—Fifty Years Later

By WRIGHT MILLER

(As the Soviet Union this month begins the 50th anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution, many learned experts will be analyzing the political, economic and military situation of the country after half a century of Communist rule. Mr. Miller, the British author of "The Russians as People" and a frequent visitor to the Soviet Union, discusses in this article what the revolution, the civil war, terror, famine, the fight with Germany and, above all, the post-Stalin period, have brought to a people which was primarily peasant under the Czars and is now highly-educated, technically-skilled—and hungry for the amenities of the modern world.)

Whichever way one likes to look at the Russians over the last 50 years, they must be accounted a fairly remarkable people.

They have come through from 70 per cent illiteracy to a galaxy of talents, technologists and specialists who provide, to take one example, a higher proportion of doctors per thousand of the population than there is in Canada, the United States or many other Western countries.

They have been harassed, battered, bludgeoned, and at some periods almost decimated, and yet they have survived all this without being particularly cowed or developing a chip on the shoulder. And in spite of all, they are very far from sinking into the anthill patterns of any 1984.

They have got by with a lot of "nichevo," and one of the first things you learn when you start Russian is that "nichevo" doesn't so often imply fatalistic acceptance but something rather more cheerful, something more like "O.K., O.K., might be worse."

This was equally true in czarist days, when the resourceful, independent peasant was at least as common as the humble, accepting type. (The apparently humble ones took it out in being cunning or just lazy.)

Today most Russians give little thought to the peasants who were their grandparents or greatgrandparents, although for the whole of the past year they have been deluged with photographs, articles, television and radio features about the days of 1917. (That is to say, November, 1917; most Russians are now barely aware that there was a March revolution which got rid of Czardom, first.)

For 1917 is already a far-off, almost legendary period. The Russians have undergone too many traumatic experiences since then — the civil war and the famine, collectivization, the purges, the German invasion and 20 million dead, and the labor camps, while since Stalin's death they have had not only relief from these pressures but also the unprecedented stimulus of consumer goods at last in the shops.

But the first stimulus and satisfaction, long before the consumer goods, was something else — something which foreigners are apt to forget.

The outstanding change over the last 50 years, for the mass of Soviet people, has been in the huge variety of jobs which they can fill.

To take a random handful of occupations — agronomist, airport announcer, asphalt spreader, biochemist, lift engineer, dress designer — all would have been beyond the conception of a Russian peasant of only 50 years ago.

And besides all the new occupations there has been a spectacular growth in most of the old ones — in medicine and education, for instance, or in the entertainment professions.

There are careers now which can call forth almost every kind of skill and talent, and which can offer some satisfaction to almost every kind of temperament — the obsessive, the dramatic, the power-loving, the adventurous or the self-sacrificing, and there is free training and education to be had for them all.

And the talents and the temperaments came from the peasants in the first place, since 50 years ago they made up 85 per cent of the population. Today a bare third of the Soviet people work on the land, and that is probably too many.

The satisfactions to be had in one's work — they gave the first impulse to the release and the differentiation of individuality in Soviet Russia; the consumption incentive came much later.

All through the 20's, 30's and 40's life at work was often more comfortable and satisfying than life at home, where you lived perhaps in a room divided across the middle by sheets slung on a string, so that it could be shared with another family who were as short of basic necessities as your own.

"We had been without new things for so long," says one woman looking back, "that we no longer knew what size we took in shoes or clothes."

Many of the best people made a virtue of austerity, and the propaganda naturally laid stress on the collective aspects of life, so that some foreigners imagined the Russians to be people who preferred mass existence and cared little for living standards. They were to be proved seriously wrong.

The Post-Stalin Thaw

Cautiously, even incredulously, soon after the death of Stalin in 1953 people began to feel the relaxation of political pressure and the beginning of "The Thaw."

As the result of new policies the shops began to show new clothes, shoes, and household goods in a variety such as had never been seen. The quality was also variable — as a rule shockingly on the minus side — and the Soviet customer, to the surprise of some outsiders, quickly became discriminating.

Since then both supplies and quality have patchily improved, but demand has increased and has also become more exacting.

Under Kosygin the revolt of the consumer has in fact begun to bring about some big innovations in Soviet planning: bonuses are at last being paid to workers, in some fields, for quality as well as quantity, and the output of thousands of factories is now much more geared to precise consumer demands — within the limits of the central, all-over plan.

New habits have been growing up: not many years ago it was exceptional to find a Soviet woman who knew how to knit, and there was no wool anyway, while now a Moscow store can sell a ton of knitting wool in a few hours — and a ton is far from being enough.

Even the peasants are better dressed today, and they are as demanding as townspeople when they shop, since they can for the first time look forward to regular monthly payments for their work on the collective farms.

At the other end of the scale, if you are in one of the well-paid professions and can manage to put aside 12 or 18 months' salary, you can have some hope of buying a small car — two or three years after you have put your name down.

Many people find a better use for 18 months' salary by putting down the deposit for an apartment in a "co-operative" block, which will be built when enough people have put down deposits, have been checked to establish their claim to a flat, and have signed undertakings to pay a further sum equal to their deposit, over 15 years, as rent.

But ownership of a car or an apartment is out of the question for most people; they simply don't have the money.

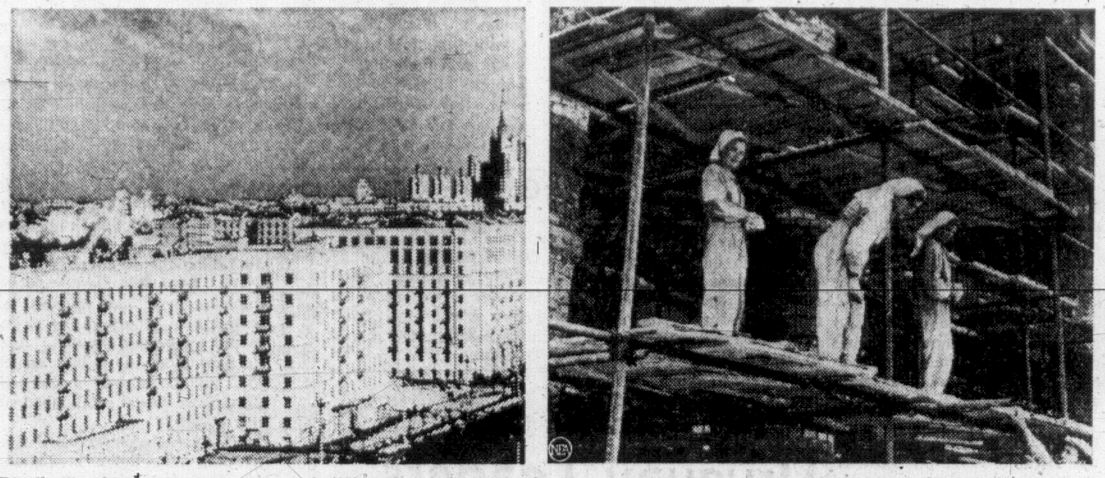
To quote only one official figure: even in sophisticated Moscow only one in fifty of the inhabitants took a holiday away from home last year. And the shortages, the difficulties, the sloppiness, the "blat" (influence) you have to use by tipping or exchanging something — they can be much the same for almost any kind of purchase.

Lack of Self-Discipline

For besides the bureaucracy and the red tape there is such a legacy of the "nichevo," such old Russian lack of self-discipline, such neglect of maintenance, such a deficiency of office machiners, including even typewriters, and such a shortage of personnel in the service industries (17 per thousand against 70 per thousand in the United States), that many hours a week must be devoted to the most ordinary shopping.

The Western visitor may look on pityingly at the poor array of goods in most shops, the offhand rudeness of so many of the staff, and the pushing and grumbling of the crowds at the counters.

But the grumbling, which is so much more widespread than it used to be, and even some of the rudeness, can be looked at in another way. They are further evidence, if rather crude, of that more confident individuality which is one of the great marks of Soviet life in recent years.



Block after block of new apartment buildings have sprung up in Moscow (above left) and other Soviet cities to counter the desperate housing shortage which followed the country's urbanization. The opportunity to gain a measure of privacy in their personal lives has had a profound effect upon the Russians. Equality for women in Russia reaches into every aspect of life from the construction trades (above right) to science, education and government.

People have less reason to be afraid of speaking out nowadays, and poor though the array of goods may be, it is so much better, everywhere, than it was ten or even five years ago that expectations for the future are heightened.

The average Russian has been, and still is, discovering needs, tastes, and potentialities in himself which could have been thought dead or non-existent.

Millions of families are living for the first time in new municipal flats at the usual low Soviet rents. The flats are monotonous, usually cramped and often defective, but they provide a degree of privacy which urban Russia has rarely known till recently.

Inside them, Russians are finding that they can pursue the modest lines of their own lives, in spite of all Soviet red tape and discipline, to an extent which would not previously have been thought possible.

New Class Distinctions

It all goes ahead rather slowly, irregularly, and inequitably, and one naturally asks whether new class-distinctions are growing up. There seems to be contrast enough between the two ends of the social spectrum — between the families who read Pinter in English and buy Italian shoes, and the grey old women who do the cleaning and most of the menial work and hardly ever eat meat.

But the spread of differences is not so great as might appear, because everyone feels pretty hard pressed and short of something or other. There are a few privilege shops for a small, top group, but everyone has to stand in line for many of the same things. To support them in all this the Russians have centuries of experience of fraternal living and egalitarian valuation of one another.

One must except the representatives of government, who have always been a class apart, but in general, in their personal or neighborly relations, Russians are not notably gnawed by envy or driven by competitiveness; keeping up with the Ivanovs is nothing like such a burden as keeping up with the Joneses.

The universal respect for education has also, on the whole, a cementing effect on Russian society. In the bad days education was one thing to which you could devote yourself without fear. It is free at all stages; it is the universal ladder, unless you are one of the few who want to make a career through party work, to better-paid, more comfortable, more interesting, more privileged or honorable positions.

Few Russians of any age seem to regard study as a burden. School teachers are much respected though not well paid, the parents are often involved in school affairs — more than in most European countries, though less than in North America.

In principle, all Soviet children or students are regarded as equally educable in all respects, but in practice, of course, things turn out a little differently, in spite of the permissiveness and good nature of the average Soviet classroom.

There is a selective competition for the most promising young mathematicians and physicists, for the country's scientists have insisted on this; there are special schools, where most of the teaching is given in a foreign language, which have acquired something of a snob value; and there is always a mass of children who leave the ordinary schools and take up part-time work at 15.

It was inevitable that some kind of distinction should grow up between the better and the less educated.

In the cities of Kazan and Ufa, in 1966, a poll taken among senior school children found that 80 per cent of them wanted to go on to further education after the age of 17 and take up a professional career. This was their own clear preference, or that of their parents, for there is practically no career counselling in the Soviet Union.

It is many years since people were directed into jobs or tied to them (except for young graduates in their first three years). The government thus has the difficult problem of persuading young people to enter manual occupations as a deliberate choice and not just for lack of anything "better."

They are not likely to repeat the crude measures which were tried by Khrushchev and have since been discarded. They are attacking the problem piecemeal — by informing children about the variety of jobs, by raising wages in some of the unpopular but necessary sectors, such as water supplies and sewage disposal, by films and novels which hint incidentally at the pleasures and advantages of manual occupations, and ultimately by developing amenities and leisure facilities in industrial districts which are away from the main centres. With time they will have some success.

For the contrast between the lives of those following professional and manual occupations is not so sharp as in the West. Salaries are much closer together; doctors even earn less than some skilled industrial workers do.

On the other hand manual workers get no artificial respect as a class, and if some of them feel impatient with their children's yearnings after culture, the weight of public opinion is against them.

A Door to Culture

Education is not just the door to a better job; it is also the door to what is most highly prized in the Soviet Union — to "culture" in the widest sense of everything that is cultivated, well informed, refined, responsible, polite, neat and considerate.

With all their new opportunities for privacy, possessions, education, and culture, have Russians changed so much, fundamentally?

Old emigres, returning for a visit after 40 years, exclaim sentimentally that "My people are still what they always were — brotherly, hospitable, robust, responsive, patient, lovable, unpessimistic . . ." All of which is true, but it is only the ground bass to the more ~~individual themes of~~ Russians today.

Their upbringing — the old Russian permissiveness on the part of parents and teachers and every adult — is as warm as ever.

Yet there is one great difference: Russians are no longer having large families. Over the whole country the birth rate, at 18.4 per thousand, has fallen below the North American level, and in Moscow it has reached the incredibly low figure of 2.3 per thousand. In cities it is exceptional to meet a family with more than one child.

Most mothers go out to work, there are still not enough creches or kindergartens, and the grandmother still fills her old role in a large proportion of homes.

Among the children who are kept close at home there is a minority who get spoiled, and as more people acquire the new apartments their number may well increase. Over-indulgent parents are usually said to be the cause of most of the idle young delinquents and hooligans of whom Soviet cities have their share.

However, most young people seem pleasantly frank, free and self-confident in the old, unembarrassing Russian way. They were used to the presence of one or two affectionate adults besides their parents, as well as to the company of other infants, from a very early age indeed. Yet from their solitary home background they must feel more individualized, more differentiated than their parents did at the same age.

A great many of them now revolt against the group life which, rather more tentatively than formerly, is laid out for them. They want to make their own groups. They are prepared, for instance, to wait for an hour or so on a freezing night to get into one of the all too few youth cafes.

They listen, legally, to foreign broadcasts (mainly for the pop music), and many of them cultivate foreign ways and foreign clothes when they can get them. They are allowed more freedom in discussion than used to be the case, and they demand still more.

Sometimes the youth paper, Komsomolskaya Pravda, allows a letter to appear which questions something as apparently unquestionable as space research: "What good are all these rockets to human beings?"

Perhaps the best illustration of new growth on old foundations is in the relations between the sexes. In the old days there was a certain rough equality. The peasants might beat their wives, but men and women shared in the same hardships and the general egalitarianism included them both.

The Soviet government has stopped the wife-beating and removed all technical or legal restrictions on women.

All jobs are open to them. Although there are still more women than men in the worst-paid and most menial jobs, such as snow-shovelling, and although Russian men rarely lend a hand in the house, these disproportions do not invalidate the equality of personal status, the equality of individual men and women as human beings.

In conversation, whether at work or at leisure, Russian women speak frankly and naturally as equals of men. Men from many other countries are taken aback by the frankness of Russian women.

An American psychiatrist, Dmitri Shimkin, considers that it is easy for Russian women to take up an unlimited number of roles in society without causing friction, because there is so much less anxiety among males about their own status than there is, for example, in the United States.

Not Self-Assertive

Russians are still not brought up to the sort of self-assertiveness which is typical of so many Western countries, and they are not constantly measuring themselves against their fellows.

As to boy-girl relationships, the modest young Russian woman can surprise once more, by her natural frankness.

Russians have the same pleasant convention as some of the Scandinavians, that not only can a man speak to a girl, but a girl may speak to a man first, without any implication that she may be a bad character.

And so also, if a boy speaks to a girl, she can disengage herself more easily if she wants to, and he need feel no great embarrassment if she does.

The behavior of Russian girls and boys when they are together, may seem old fashioned to Western visitors, but it has grown and flowered at a really remarkable speed, when one compares it with the simple, tongue-tied peasant reticence of even half a generation back.

The first film kiss appeared only in 1956, and it was a sensation. Ten years later, Moscow plays can take extramarital affairs and broad speaking in their stride—not as heavy moral themes but amusingly (though not pruriently) and as part of the natural atmosphere.

Every year as one visits Moscow the clothes, the dances, and the mores of the young people seem to have become a little more sophisticated.

The divorce rate for Moscow is higher than the average for the United States (though the national average is lower), and among all the other complications of Soviet life there is the tragedy of 20 million surplus women left by the war.

The authorities are facing these problems far more frankly than they would have done 10 years ago. There are two plays running in Moscow right now (and passed by the censor, of course) whose theme may be summarized as: "Yes, divorce, even after 16 years, and go back to your first sweetheart if he will have you! Marriage is for true love."

To many Westerners it must seem an extraordinary paradox that so many of the forces which have been released into society by socialist government in Russia have been centrifugal—stimulating to individual development and away from the "mass" or communal spirit.

A great deal of vitality seems to have gone out of the traditional Russian communal sense, without too much compensatory growth of social responsibility and social initiative on the part of the individual.

No one, of course, thinks of returning to the days before 1917. Everyone resents a long list of restrictions and disabilities imposed by the system—the mere list could fill out another article as long as this one.

But it is difficult to say whether any notable proportion of Soviet citizens really wants to take up responsibility for the conduct of affairs, or whether they simply want more influence over those who do conduct them.

Among the young, at least, there are some who want more direct and truly democratic participation in government. On the other hand few people would seem to be interested in having the freedom to set up in trade or business.

Look to the Leaders

People look eagerly towards those privileged leaders of society, the upper intelligentsia, who are able to make themselves to some extent mouthpieces for popular opinion, and do so. It was leading writers, artists and ballerinas who signed the joint warning to the government about the effect that a return to Stalinist restrictions would have on the national reputation, and who on two occasions signed letter of protest about the sentences on writers Andrei Sinyavsky and Yuli Daniel.

These protests are not of course made openly, but the knowledge of them filters down to the public. More openly, the writer Konstantin Paultovsky, for instance, is able to say that he cannot imagine youth not protesting—"It is the nature of youth to protest"—and the physicist Peter Kapitsa defends student discussions: "One cannot always tell in advance what is going to turn out to be the truth."

Apart from preparations for the 50th anniversary there are far fewer banners and slogans in the streets than there used to be.

Instead of trying to whip up more of what Russians call "hooray propaganda," the authorities are beginning to make more study of people's needs and desires. They carry out cautious sociological studies and polls and sometimes publish even such damaging findings as that "only about 3 per cent of the readers of Izvestia read the purely economic articles."

I began with "Nichevo," and it is only proper to say that the word is heard a great deal less than it used to be, because it is less called for.

Russians do not have to keep saying "never mind" so often. They do mind, nowadays, because they are being given reason to believe that, some of the time, something can and maybe will be done.

They have been vastly changed, for good or evil, by 50 years of Communist government, and they are now at the state when it is possible for Communist government to be changed, if only a little, by them.

HEAD WAITERS HELP MAKE DUKE NICE JOB

TORONTO (CP) — The Duke of Devonshire says the best thing about being a duke "is that you can always get a good table at a restaurant".

The duke, touring Canada as chairman of the Central Council of the Royal Commonwealth Society, added Sunday night in an interview:

"I think the worst thing is that some people might think you are different, and that is very annoying."

The duke leaves Tuesday on a western tour that includes stops at Winnipeg, Vancouver and Victoria.

The duke will address a joint meeting of the Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce, Victoria Rotary Club and the Royal Commonwealth Society in the Empress Hotel Thursday at noon.

The duke is president of the Federation of Commonwealth Chambers of Commerce. His father was governor-general of Canada from 1916 to 1921.

Teen-Age Newspaper To Begin Next Month

A newspaper for teen-agers in Greater Victoria will begin publishing next month.

The four-page sheet, to be called Mosaic, will be edited by 16-year-old Keith Elias, a Grade 11 student at Esquimalt Senior High.

Keith said the newspaper's purpose is to inform students and parents about the school system and to work toward its improvement. It will not be just an opinion forum.

Mosaic will use reporters from the seven senior high schools in the area to produce comprehensive coverage on problems such as student counselling, classroom crowding, teaching problems and the role of student councils.

Mosaic will also give students an opportunity to join debate on current affairs.

Initially, the student newspaper will get financial backing and technical support from the B.C. Assembly of Students and the University of Victoria's student newspaper, The Martlet.

Publisher of the new sheet will be Allard van Veen, 18, a Uvic student who last year was editor of the Vic High student paper, The Camosunet.

An inter-high school newspaper has been talked about for several years but inability of students to get it organized and opposition from school authorities appear to be the main reasons why it never got under way.

Keith said the launching of Mosaic has been discussed with Peter Bunn, chairman of the Greater Victoria School Board, and Joseph Chell, school district superintendent. Both men were co-operative and the services of the school board's information office were offered.

But the paper is not to be produced or distributed on school grounds. First issue is scheduled to appear Nov. 16. No schedule of publication has been set but Mosaic will likely appear three or four times during the school year. There will be no teacher supervision in its production.

HOME GARDEN

Pet Cat A Useful Partner

By HILDA BEASTALL

The family's pet cat may seem far removed from participation in gardening projects of home owners, but those who live for years with both gardens and cats can give many examples of usefulness.

Hilda

Quite apart from companionship for the gardener during every hour spent in the garden, the presence of a cat discourages mice among bulbs and tubers.

Disappearance of crocus bulbs for instance can be traced to these hungry little rodents who will dig certain varieties from the garden for food during winter.

Also during winter, many summer flowering bulbs and tubers are kept indoors for storage. When a greenhouse is a part of the garden this makes an ideal storage place, but its shelter from the elements also provides a haven for field mice which are a natural part of rural and semi rural environment.

EMPTY FLAT

The cat's presence in the greenhouse will discourage the mice. A dry bench is all your cat requires to persuade it to spend hours there with you.

We found years ago that an empty dry flat on the bench will attract the cat to the same place each time. This is a great advantage when benches are filled with small pots or flats of seedlings.

Nothing will ever be damaged if you encourage the cat to find that empty flat. It becomes the cat's own special place from which it is never chased. We even carefully avoid splashing water too near. This is rather important from the point of view of all concerned, as a sudden panic to escape dousing could create havoc in surrounding flats, and a lasting feeling of insecurity in the specific place for the cat.

DAILY ROUNDS

The only time we had a mouse in the greenhouse was during a haitus between cats, from July to the following spring.

They avoid the buildings which the cat includes in its daily rounds in our company.

There is something cosily companionable about a family pet, following with erect tail into the greenhouse to find its own protected spot on a bench, where it can lie in luxury and watch your movements with sleepy, contented eyes.

Bonn Missile Still Missing

By DAN MORGAN

BONN (WP)—One of the Luftwaffe's missiles is missing.

Its disappearance was reported last week by federal prosecutor Ludwig Martin, who indicated the strong possibility that it had been stolen.

Since then there has been no clue as to the whereabouts of the 140-pound, nine-foot long, air-to-air Sidewinder rocket, and its prolonged absence is causing thet West German governmen considerable embarrassment and concern.

The rocket was stored at the Bundeswehr base at Neuburg on the Danube River in southern Germany, where it was guarded closely both by military and civilian personnel. Because of this, and because the chances of mislaying such a device seem remote, Martin did not rule out the possibility of "treasonable" conspiracy.

But how it could have been smuggled past guards is the most puzzling question.

NOT A MISSILE

American sources in Bonn said the missile, which is the kind carried by the Luftwaffe's Starfighter jets, was not equipped with a nuclear warhead. Thus, the American government is not involved and has not been asked for help, the sources said. Nevertheless, the German defence ministry warned against "careless handling" of the rocket.

Although the Sidewinder is a common weapon, this one was reportedly equipped with an infrared homing device that was said by defence ministry sources to be useful to "specialists."

Uruguay Leaders Issue Duel Challenge

MONTEVIDEO (AP) — Feuding within Uruguay's ruling party may bring the country's president and foreign minister to the duelling field against a senator.

Senator Amilcar Vasconcellos, a former finance minister, accepted the challenges of both President Oscar Gestido and Foreign Minister Hector Luisi, who took offence at a political speech Friday by the senator.

"I'll never run away from a duel," Vasconcellos said Sunday and appointed two pairs of representatives, one for each challenge.

Representatives of each opponent, plus a fifth person yet to be named, will form a "court of honor" to decide whether there has been insult enough to justify a contest of arms.

If these courts approve, Gestido, a 65-year-old retired air force general, would fight first against the burly, 47-year-old senator. Luisi, 49, a lawyer, issued his challenge later.

Gestido and Luisi challenged Vasconcellos after he answered what he called a "political attack" by the president. The president said the senator's remarks about him were offensive, and Luisi took exception because the senator called him a presidential puppet.

Duelling is legal in Uruguay, but government officials must step down temporarily from their jobs to fight.

BUT NOBODY FLEW HOME

LONDON (UPI)—At the end of a weekend dinner given by Air Canada, 45 guests were given an extra "course" — a breathalyzer test to see if they were sober enough to drive home.

One-half of the guests failed the test and were taken home in an Air Canada bus.

RAT BITES TWO GIRLS

TORONTO (CP)—Two small girls were bitten Sunday by a seven-inch rat while they were sleeping in their parents' central Toronto home.

Angela Zechino, 8, was bitten on the right hand and her sister Lucrezia, 2, was bitten on the right heel before their father was able to rescue them.

After he killed the rat in the bed, police took the animal for rabies tests. The girls were treated at hospital and released.

DIEFENBAKER SAYS:

Crown Defends Quebec

MONTREAL (CP) — John Diefenbaker delivered a defence of the monarchy Saturday, saying French Canada's rights have been defended best under the British crown.

Mr. Diefenbaker, officiating at the opening of the Georges P. Vanier cultural centre in suburban Chateauguay, launched into an attack on those "who speak of separation or abolishing the monarchy."

The 72-year-old former prime minister, who was replaced as Progressive Conservative party leader by Robert Stanfield, said "it was under the British crown that all the rights of French-Canadians were established in this country."

Mr. Diefenbaker recalled that freedom of religion in Canada for French-speaking Roman Catholics was secured in 1775, "50 years before rights for Catholics were secured in Britain itself."

"Jews received equality in Canada 50 years before they did in Britain and slavery was abolished here long before it was in the United Kingdom.

CULTURE CENTRE

"All this should be remembered by those who speak of separation or abolishing the monarchy.

He also said that Sir John A. Macdonald wanted Canada to be called the Kingdom of Canada but that the United States objected. So it was called the Dominion of Canada, instead.

The cultural centre which Mr. Diefenbaker opened, named after the late Governor-General of Canada, was Chateuguay's centennial project.

U.K. Strikes End

Four Given Nobel Prizes In Science

STOCKHOLM (AP) — The Swedish Academy of Science today awarded the Nobel Prize in physics to Professor Hans A. Bethe of Cornell University and the chemistry prize jointly to Britons George Porter and Ronald George Wreyford Norrish and German Manfred Eigen.

Bethe was awarded the prize in physics for his contributions to the theory of nuclear reactions, and especially his discoveries concerning the energy production in stars.

The British-German trio was awarded the prize for "their studies of extremely fast chemical reactions, effected by disturbing the equilibrium by means of very short pulses of energy," the academy's citation said.

Porter is attached to the Royal Institution in London and his British colleague lives in Cambridge. Eigen works at the Max Planck Institute of Goettingen.

Eigen receives one half of the $62,000 prize while the two Britons share the other half.

Retraining Costs Up $25 Million

OTTAWA (CP)—The manpower department jacked the cost of this year's retraining program to $135,000,000 from $110,000,000 in a supplementary estimate tabled last week in the Commons.

The change bore out Manpower Minister Marchand's prediction less than 24 hours earlier that many more millions would be added.

The $25,000,000 was the biggest item among estimates totalling $61,771,669 that bring the government's budgetary spending program for the 1967-68 fiscal year to $9,646,079,371.

The manpower department also asked for $5,000,000 in winter works payments.

The post office, which has a bill before Parliament for increases in postage rates, requested an additional $10,435,300 to cover operating costs. The transport department asked $8,263,000.

FAREWELL BECOMES SALUTE

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP)—British Columbia's top soldiers turned out in the rain Saturday night to honor the province's most distinguished military man.

The occasion was originally planned as a farewell salute to the man who has been the province's lieutenant-governor for five years, but it was changed to a simple testimonial when it was announced he would remain in office for a further six months.

IF BARRED FROM COMMON MARKET

Britain Denies Europe Pullout

LONDON (AP)—For the second time in 24 hours the British government during the weekend denied it would consider a disengagement from Europe if France blocks Britain's entry into the Common Madket.

The development came after Lord Chalfont, Britain's chief Common Market negotiator, was summoned home to explain the circumstances and content of an informal talk with British reporters in Switzerland Thursday.

Following that background chat, British newspapers carried reports Friday that Britain's exclusion from the Common Market might be followed by a radical revision of foreign policy that could result in withdrawal from NATO—withdrawal of Britain's army from Germany and recognition of the Communist regime of East Germany and of the Oder-Neisse line as Poland's western frontier.

Chalfont returned to the foreign office Saturday—one day ahead of schedule. He conferred with Foreign Secretary George Brown as a full-scale political and diplomatic storm began to rage in British newspapers.

Associates reported Chalfont's explanation was accepted by Brown and Prime Minister Wilson.

The foreign office, meantime, issued a statement strongly denying that Chalfont, in talking with reporters, had at any time suggested any change of British foreign policy is being contemplated or would take place.

THE "DOUBLE M" MEANS
BIG SAVINGS
FOR EVERYONE
COMING SOON!

The more its rivals keep changing, the better the Mercedes-Benz 250S looks.

The new '68 models are out, and now's the time when millions of people make the big decision on their next car.

Or should you buy the almost unchanged Mercedes-Benz 250S?

The dreamboats will do more for your ego. But the 250S will do more for your driving, your pocketbook—and your peace of mind.

No new-car bugs

The 250S has stayed unchanged since its 1965 debut. It's free of the "bugs" that can keep its all-new rivals shuttling back and forth to the shop for adjustments.

And because Mercedes-Benz refuses to play the "planned obsolescence" game, you enjoy another relief: the knowledge that your 250S won't suddenly be shoved out of date, just when it's nicely broken in. Its looks are meant to stay modern for years.

Behind the ballyhoo

Strangely enough, your 250S is fitted with more true engineering advances than any of those cars that boast of being "all new" every year.

Perhaps it's not so strange at all. Most car makers are so busy dreaming up ways to make their products look new that they ignore fundamentals.

"People can't see them—so why bother making big technical improvements?" seems to be the attitude.

Mercedes-Benz bothers—because Mercedes-Benz believes a car should be an efficient machine, not fashion merchandise. And devotes its engineering brains to perfecting that efficiency.

The telling proof

Drive the 250S after you've spent a few miles in one of its $6,600 rivals. It's the surest, most dramatic proof you can find of what technical superiority means in an automobile.

Seek out the kind of potholed back road you'd try to avoid in ordinary cars. Don't spare the 250S: aim for the bumps and dips.

An amazing thing happens. You stay in your seat, the wheel stays in your hands, and the 250S never wavers or pitches or rattles. Things are uncannily calm.

You're riding on an uncanny, fully independent suspension system. Steering with a recirculating-ball mechanism that has its own shock absorber built in. Cradled in a rigid "unit" body that has been welded 10,000 times, studded with rubber cushions, studied with a stethoscope to find and kill the structural flaws that mean noise.

Mercedes-Benz engineers think these advances mean more than all the styling frills on earth.

Brakes that don't fade

The 250S glides serenely over smooth roads, of course. In fact, an American writer in Germany reported, "There is as little inside noise at 100 mph as at a standstill."

But say an emergency arises. Can you stop?

You can stop the 250S so well that brake fade is almost unknown. The car draws down to smooth, straight-line stops—stop after stop after stop. Check the technical specifications: brawny, 10½-inch disc brakes are bolted to all four wheels. There is even a tiny valve in the brake system to balance front and rear braking forces. And a power assist does the work—not your leg muscles.

A note of reassurance: Mercedes-Benz mounts tires to the 250S that have been test-proved safe, even in continuous 100 mph cruising under maximum load at normal air pressures. And mounts them as standard equipment.

Is it big enough?

Check the dimensions of the 250S and you may ask, is it big and roomy enough—as roomy as those sleek $6,600 rivals?

The 250S is more compact than other cars in its class. Two feet shorter overall, for example. But so sane is its design, so shrewd the use of interior space, that it matches them for room in all vital respects.

And as you'd expect, the 250S provides rich physical comfort. Seats are deeply contoured and plumply padded. A built-in ventilation system lets you enjoy constantly replenished fresh air when all windows are shut.

And as you'd also expect from Mercedes-Benz, the finish is superb. No flaws or jagged edges. Even the underside of the dash has been fully trimmed. How nice, to own a car you can be proud of.

From $27,000* to $4,605*

You may be able to afford a Mercedes-Benz without knowing it. Below are suggested retail prices* for 7 of the 13 Mercedes-Benz models:

250SL Roadster	8,315

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

CHICAGO (AP) — Grain futures prices trended mostly lower in relatively slow dealings on the Chicago Board of Trade today.

There was some active buying of wheat, corn and soybeans on the opening by exporters and processors, but commercial interests and local professionals turned aggressively to selling and prices weakened. Later in the session prices firmed up again but not to their previous levels.

Oats and rye trade was slow and prices were lower.

Soybean oil lacked support and turned mostly lower, but soybean meal underwent some active buying near the close and prices turned firm.

WINNIPEG (CP)—A sale of 1,000,000 bushels of Canadian barley featured trade on the Winnipeg grain exchange today.

Trade generally was on a light scale with oilseeds drawing most of the attention. Flax prices showed a firm undertone, reflecting high oilseed prices on the continent and evidence of overseas support. Reports indicate 300 tons of flax were sold to the continent.

Rapeseed was easier in light hedging sales representing farmers' deliveries. There was occasional evidence of overseas supoprt.

Other reports indicate the United States is considering establishing reserves of wheat and feed grains and an estimate of the flax crop in Argentina indicates it might be lower than last year.

Books Tossed Open On Dosco Shutdown

TORONTO (CP)—A happy Premier G. I. Smith of Nova Scotia Sunday described as a "significant concession" the decision of Dominion Steel & Coal Corp. to allow consultants to examine all its records of the Sydney steel plant, threatened with a full shutdown by April 30.

Mr. Smith made the remark in an interview after more than 10 hours of negotiations this weekend with Hawker Siddeley of Britain, Dosco's parent company.

Dosco announced two weeks ago that it intends to close the Sydney plant on a gradual basis. Dosco claims the plant, major industry in the Cape Breton Island city of 34,000, is losing $1,000,000 a month.

"We now expect any books pertaining to the Sydney operation to be available to us—that's what we agreed to in good faith," the premier said.

Mr. Smith said Dosco's books on the Sydney operations, kept at company headquarters in Montreal, have been outside Nova Scotia's jurisdiction, and unavailable until now.

Hawker Siddeley plans to start closing the plant next month, and to begin curtailing production Jan. 13. It would reduce the 3,400 man staff to a skeleton crew of 60 by April 30.

Initial task of the consultants, acting for the Nova Scotia government, would be to advise if the province should enter an agreement with Dosco to keep the plant in full operation until April 30.

Mr. Smith said there is a "real possibility that the plant can pay its own way."

He said the $1,000,000 loss attributed to the Sydney plant for the first half of 1967 is actually the loss suffered by all Dosco operations during that period.

Sydney's loss "was probably a great deal less."

On Friday, the federal government announced it would underwrite an unspecified proportion of the losses involved in keeping the plant at normal operation until April 30.

In an official statement Sunday, Premier Smith said the aim was to keep the plant operating as "a going concern."

MacMILLAN-BLOEDEL EARNINGS TUMBLE

VANCOUVER (CP)—The nine-month earnings of MacMillan-Bloedel, Ltd., fell by 10.5 per cent from the corresponding period last year to the lowest point in four years, despite an increase of $50,523,646 in sales.

Profit for the period was $29,182,164 or $1.40 per share, compared with $32,615,845 or $1.56 per share in the same period in 1966. Earnings in the 1965 and 1964 periods were $1.50 and $1.46 respectively.

Earnings in the third quarter were $8,300,000. Sales of products and services totalled $408,886,154, compared with $358,362,508 in the 1966 period.

West Bank To Wind Up

WINNIPEG (CP) — Court approval was given today to the Bank of Western Canada to proceed with winding up its affairs.

Shareholders of the never-opened, Winnipeg-based bank voted Sept. 14 to wind up but necessary court approval for appointment of a liquidator had been blocked by counter moves spearheaded by Toronto financier Sinclair Stevens.

The decision clearing the way for winding up was brought down in Court of Queen's Bench by Mr. Justice Roy Matas. His judgment followed a Sept. 28 remand in the tangled affair.

"It is apparent that the cause for these proceedings is a battle for control of the bank by opposing financial interests," Mr. Justice Matas said.

He added that his consideration had to be for the bank's shareholders and not for the opposing financial factions.

The judge said he could see no "substantial irregularity" in the shareholders' meeting that voted to wind up the bank.

Endako Profits

VANCOUVER (CP) — Endako Mines Ltd. Saturday reported an estimated net profit for the three months ended Sept. 30 of $3,000,000 or 40 cents a share.

Profits for the first nine months this year was $8,900,000 or $1.15 a share.

Comparable figures for last year are unavailable because the company's year-end changed from April 30 to Dec. 31 in 1966.

Parity Top Target

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers, negotiating with their No. 2 target, Chrysler Corp., are expected to press for "the only major thing" they didn't win from their No. 1 target — equal pay for Canadian and American workers.

"Canadian wage parity is going to be a very crucial issue in these negotiations. It's a top priority item," Douglas Fraser, UAW Chrysler department director, said after the union decided to take the contract won from its No. 1 target, Ford Motor Co., to Chrysler before going to General Motors.

After the Ford agreement, Walter P. Reuther, union president, said Canadian wage parity was "the only major thing we didn't win."

VARYING FACTORS

The union did not press that demand at Ford, Reuther said because Ford of Canada is not a wholly-owned subsidiary of its parent company as are Chrysler and GM of Canada. And, he added, the union's Canadian contract at Ford does not expire until Dec. 1.

The UAW contract at Chrysler's Canadian firm runs out Nov. 15.

Union and company bargaining teams return to subcommittee meetings today at Chrysler in Detroit. Both sides said some progress has been made since negotiations resumed Saturday.

UAW employees at Chrysler and General Motors have been working without contracts since Sept. 6, when Ford workers went on strike.

"There is a possibility a strike deadline will be set within a week," Jerry Hartford, head of public relations at the UAW Canadian region headquarters, said in Windsor Sunday.

At Ford, the union won roughly $1 an hour more in wages and fringe benefits for three years over the previous $4.70 hourly average for Big Three workers. The old straight-time hourly wage for U.S. autoworkers was $3.41, about 40 cents above the Canadian level.

Despite the new contract Ford operations remained shut down as 21 of the UAW's 101 Ford locals have not yet settled individual plant contracts.

Although maintenance workers have returned to some operations, a Ford spokesman said no general back-to-work order would be given until all the local pacts are wrapped up.

Some 8,300 Ford of Canada workers are still out of work because parts from U.S. Ford plants for assembly operations ran out.

MAY WAIT FOR GM

Many industry observers, however, feel that a strike against Chrysler is unlikely and that the UAW will save its muscle for General Motors. The auto giant's refusal to allow UAW committeemen to devote all their working time to union duties has long been a thorn in the union's side.

The union cannot legally negotiate Canadian wages at the bargaining table in Detroit. In order to ensure parity it is seeking a clause in its American contract which would prohibit the company from paying a North American worker any less than a U.S. worker for performing the same job.

Canada, U.S. Men To Strike Together

TORONTO (CP)—George Burt, head of the Canadian section of the United Auto Workers Union, said today there is a "distinct possibility" the union may strike both Canadian and United States plants of Chrysler on the same date.

Mr. Burt, in a telephone interview from Windsor, said the UAW has been negotiating with Chrysler Canada Ltd. since Aug. 1 and a Nov. 15 strike deadline has been announced.

In the United States, the UAW has not announced a strike deadline although the contract has expired.

Mr. Burt said:

"There is a distinct possibility if there is a strike at Chrysler both sides will be out at the same time."

The UAW leader said the Canadian strike deadline is Nov. 15 and "you can expect both plants to go out at the same time."

WOULD BE FIRST

The UAW has never called simultaneous strikes on both sides of the border. Mr. Burt said Canadian subsidiaries of the auto companies "do not move until a U.S. contract is settled."

Although no strike deadline has been announced for General Motors, Mr. Burt said the "same thing" would apply.

He said the main item on the negotiators' list is wage parity for American and Canadian workers. Canadian workers receive approximately 43 cents hourly less than workers in similar jobs in the U.S. auto industry.

Chrysler in Canada has 13,000 workers, mostly in Windsor, and producers about 850 cars daily in its plants in Windsor.

Mr. Burt said the contract with General Motors expires Tuesday but both management and union have agreed to a temporary extension of the contract, subject to three days' notice of cancellation.

Mr. Burt said the contract with Ford of Canada expires Dec. 1. If wage parity is achieved with Chrysler and GM, "Ford will go along with it."

Unit Train Plan For Transporting Big Coal Tonnages

VANCOUVER — A plan for unit trains, with radio controlled "slave" locomotives in the consist, was advanced Friday by a senior officer of Canadian Pacific as part of low-cost integrated system for moving large tonnages of coal from Alberta and B.C. mines to Japan.

S. M. Gossage, vice-president of Canadian Pacific, said the unit train plan should be considered as one element in an integrated system for coal transportation. Other elements would include high-speed bulk loading depots at the mines, large-scale storage facilities at the ocean terminal and coordinated train and ship operations.

Addressing a seminar on trading opportunities in Japan, Gossage said that coal offers one of the greatest opportunities for low-cost integrated trans-

BANK MARKS 150TH YEAR

The Canadian banking system is 150 years of age Friday.

It is the birthday of the Bank of Montreal which now reaches across Canada and in six countries abroad.

It was on Nov. 3, 1817, that the bank opened its first office in the old walled city of Montreal with a staff of seven and capital amounting to $150,000.

In the 50 years before Confederation the Bank of Montreal built up a banking system and commenced a series of "firsts" that continue as precedents for other national branch banks.

Canada's first currency was created by the bank prior to its opening day. Nineteen years later it put out bank tokens, the country's first coinage.

RAIL LINK

When the Canadian Pacific Railway was created to build the "impossible" rail link across Canada, the Bank of Montreal financed it.

It backed the first Canadian canal, at Lachine, set up the first Canadian bank abroad—and now has branches in the U.S., Japan, Mexico, the U.K., France and Germany—and applied data processing to an integrated banking system.

Lately the Bank of Montreal was first to reduce its prime lending rate, increase savings account interest and divide its capital stock 5 for 1.

Its ground-laying for the branch banking system has led to 6,000 offices in Canada, of which 1,030 branches are those of the Bank of Montreal. Assets are worth nearly $6 billion.

VICTORIA BRANCH

Victoria's first branch opened April Fool's Day, 1891, in the former Bank of British North America building, on Government.

Since 1924 the main branch has been at Douglas and Yates, but in the interim other branches opened in Esquimalt and Oak Bay, in 1913.

In 1931 the fourth branch opened, in a former main office on Government occupied after the old BNA building.

Bringing the local system up to date: Cook and Quadra, 1950; Richmond at Fort, 1955; Royal Oak Avenue, 1956; University campus, 1965, and North Douglas, last month.

There are 124 other B.C. branches and three more in the Yukon directed by A. John Ellis, senior vice-president for B.C. division, of Vancouver.

U.S. Deserters Find Life Far From Easy in Vietnam

By JOHN T. WHEELER

SAIGON (AP)—A number of U.S. servicemen desert in Vietnam and try to live by dealing on the black market, pimping or occasionally by peddling marijuana, a U.S. military police source said last week.

The number of deserters at large runs from 40 to 50 at any given time, the source said, and their freedom lasts from a few days to several months.

The deserters are able to go underground most successfully in Cholon, Saigon's Chinese section. Those with luck make contact with black marketeers who furnish them with counterfeit post exchange ration cards to make large purchases for resale on the flourishing Saigon black market.

POT PROVIDERS

Some of them also join up with prostitutes and live partly off their earnings, the source said.

A few peddle marijuana to other U.S. soldiers, but the drug is so easily available this isn't a lucrative trade.

U.S. military police and civilians checking identification cards at the various post exchanges are given photographs of servicemen absent without leave and most are caught this way, the police source said.

Once caught, the men are returned to their units and a trial by court-martial.

Most deserters serve their sentences in a stockade in Vietnam and then are sent back to their units to complete their one-year tours in the war zone, sentences served in the stockade are considered "bad time" which doesn't count toward either the 12-month Vietnam service period or the time required for discharge.

The police source said no deserters are known to have escaped from Vietnam. This would require considerable money to get a fake passport and be smuggled out of the country.

Cholon, with its Chinese secret societies and traditional secretive ways, makes the safest haven especially for those who make connections with black marketeers. The latter provide a measure of protection.

However, men have managed to "stay on the outside" for a time in other large towns where large numbers of American troops move freely.

In an attempt to cut the numbef or men going underground, tight controls have been put on passengers travelling by military planes in Vietnam. A number of men have been picked up trying to slip by airport control points.

Badminton Scores Win Over Politics

Laurier LaPierre has yet to mount the speaker's rostrum in Victoria but already he's lost part of his audience.

Or at least the space for them.

When Dr. LaPierre, former co-host of the free-swinging "This House Has Seven Days," speaks at Oak Bay Junior Secondary School Tuesday evening, members of Uvic's faculty badminton club will be busy swatting birds at the university's gymnasium.

WON'T BUDGE

The campus NDP Club wanted to have the gym for Dr. LaPierre's speech but the badminton club, already booked in for Tuesday, wouldn't budge.

"We've rescheduled once already this term and were told it would not happen again," said club president Gerald Underhill.

"This is getting to be too much of a good thing. Badminton is the only thing the university is doing for the faculty and staff."

His remarks followed a quick poll of club members. About 25 regularly participate, he said.

The Students' Council then took the stand "that activities involving the whole university should take priority over those involving a limited group."

"An important principle is involved here," said council president David McLean. "It's a case of the faculty holding up buildings on the campus for their own end."

WIDE INTEREST

"Our speaker is of interest to everyone in the university community," said Chris Bruce, president of the NDP Club.

Dr. LaPierre is associate professor of history at McGill University in Montreal and the director of French-Canadian studies program there.

He is vice-president of the NDP and considered a leadership candidate.

The twist to the whole matter is that The Potlet, a farcical takeoff on Uvic's campus newspaper The Martlet, predicted the whole thing almost a year ago.

In an article on Nov. 16 last year entitled "Wheels Waffle" The Potlet quoted a spokesman for the faculty association this way on his reaction to a proposed mass meeting:

"Naturally the faculty association will be furious at having to give up their badminton tournament for an exercise in intellectual ferment but . . ."

VOTE LIMITS PROPOSED

House of Lords Reform Next on Labor Agenda

By JOHN LeBLANC

LONDON (CP)—Labor's long-forecast overhaul of the House of Lords, viewed by the government as a gilded barnacle on the socialist ship of state, likely will be launched at the new session of Parliament opening Tuesday.

While Prime Minister Wilson is expected eventually to undertake a mass house-cleaning of the upper chamber, it is probable he will start off at the controversial task in gingerly style. Tinkering with this cornerstone of the British tradition is sure to raise an uproar.

For a starter, the government is expected to bring in a bill to cut down the Lords' delaying power on legislation—now a year—to not more than six months. It would eliminate the need of having the Commons pass again a bill rejected by the peers.

Considerably more stringent reforms are in prospect. One of them, it is reported, will mean that most of the more than 1,100 noble lords won't have any vote at all.

Wilson is said to be thinking tentatively of decreasing the number entitled to vote to about 300, which is considerably more than normally turn up for work. Life peers would all be included and, since Labor appointed most of the current 140, this would give the party a better grip on the upper house.

While Wilson always has operated in apparent disregard of the Lords' existence, there is always in the background the discomfiting fact that there is no sure way of telling how that chamber will swing on any given issue on any given day. Although it is predominantly Tory—by heredity or inclination—attendance is highly casual and there are no party whips to rope in the votes.

Wilson has had occasional trouble with it, and he is not the first. Liberal Prime Minister Asquith in 1911 threatened to flood it with 600 additional peers—a prime ministerial prerogative—when it got in his way.

Wilson himself was reported ready to do this in 1965 when the Lords temporarily held up a government bill to block compensation to an oil company that suffered losses in Burma in the the Second World War.

At the current session, the Lords juggled with a Commons bill liberalizing the abortion law and put in some restrictive amendments. But they hastily retracted them last week before the matter could develop into a constitutional issue.

Although Wilson is expected to proceed with due caution in reforming the Lords, he is in a good tactical position to go ahead. If he proposes a workmanlike setup for smoothing the operation of Parliament through bypassing some hereditary title-bearers, neither Conservative party leader Edward Heath nor the Lords themselves are likely to command much general sympathy by opposing it.

And for Wilson, a resounding scrap with the Lords would have a welcome by-product in distracting public attention from unemployment, high prices, low wages and labor unions' growing disenchantment with some of his policies.

LSD 'Ineffective' In Alcoholism Cases

TORONTO (CP)—The hallucinatory drug LSD has been proved ineffective in the clinical treatment of alcoholism, a group of Canadian researchers report.

Their findings, published in a book this week called Lysergic Acid Diethylamide (LSD) in the Treatment of Alcoholism, are based on an evaluation of previous research and a controlled clinical trial of LSD with 30 alcoholics at the Ontario Addiction Research Foundation.

The study showed that a control group of 10, administered LSD as part of a six-month therapy program, fared no better than 20 who did not receive the drug.

INDIAN ROUTE DISCOVERED

MOSCOW (AP) — A Soviet archeologist says proof has been discovered that the Indians of North America settled the continent by taking a route through northeast Asia.

N. N. Dikov, chief of an archaeology department of the Siberian branch of the Academy of Sciences, says remains of those people were found by an expedition to Lake Ushkov in northeast Siberia.

He says the discovery was first made in 1964 and subsequent study has established that it constitutes proof of the Indians' migration route.

Expo Publicity Splurge Canada's Biggest Ever

MONTREAL (CP) — The holding of Expo 67 in Centennial Year gave Canada the biggest splurge of publicity in her history.

Sixty national days, 58 state visits and 36 special days of various kinds were marked at the 1967 Universal and International Exhibition in its six-month run ending Oct. 29.

Kings, queens, emperors, princes, princesses, presidents and prime ministers and a host of other ministers and emissaries of every hue came to Expo.

"The image of Canada has been enhanced tremendously," Lionel Chevrier, commissioner-general of state visits, said in an interview:

"These people may have known about Canada but they had never seen it in action."

He noted that the arrangements for state visits gave guests the opportunity of visiting Expo, Ottawa, Quebec City and other cities of their choice. Most of them took advantage of this and had a good look at Canada.

Mr. Chevrier also said Expo has contributed to Canadian unity:

"It has shown Canadians what they can do. I don't think Canadians would have thought this possible a year ago. Now all Canadians are rejoicing at the success of Expo."

FLOOD OF JOURNALISTS

The visits of national and international figures brought accompanying visits by foreign and overseas journalists who wrote not only about Expo itself but often did general reports on Canada for their readers. Foreign television, too, gave unprecedented coverage.

Prime Minister Pearson, External Affairs Minister Paul Martin and other ministers were able personally to put the views of Canada before the visiting statesmen.

A spectacular exception was President de Gaulle who cancelled a visit to Ottawa after being rebuked by Prime Minister Pearson for what was considered an intrusion in Canada's domestic affairs. In a series of speeches following his arrival in Quebec City, he urged French-Canadians to fight for their rights.

FEW INCIDENTS

Incidents were few and unspectacular despite the fame and controversy surrounding some of the world figures who came to Expo. A yell of "assassin" directed at President Johnson when he came here in May, a demonstration outside the Montreal hotel of Greek King Constantine—these were the only sort of incidents. They were well controlled by police.

Although the visits were billed as private, Princess Margaret and Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy caused a couple of mighty stirs when they came to the fair separately on the Canadian Thanksgiving weekend.

Frenzied Acclaim For Jean Drapeau

MONTREAL (CP) — Sunday was Jean Drapeau's day as Expo 67 closed its doors on 185 days of fun, culture and national pride.

The familiar bald head and horn-rimmed spectacles drew an emotional explosion of sentiment as Montreal's mayor walked to a podium in Place des Nations to deliver a speech of thanks to all who helped him realize his ambitions dream.

The 15,000-strong crowd roared their appreciation again and again as their hero handed out bouquets and called Expo a "first step."

Mr. Drapeau proudly walked to the stand amid a frenzied roar of acclaim.

CHEERED WILDLY

His personal triumph was underscored again and again as the impetuous crowd seized every opportunity to wildly cheer him.

He graciously thanked Mr. Dupuy, Mr. Shaw, former prime minister John Diefenbaker, Mr. Pearson, Quebec Liberal leader John Lesage and Premier Johnson for their part in making Expo a reality.

And he gallantly wished "50,000.00 times thank you to the hostesses of Expo's pavilions" for their courtesy, kindness, smiles and warm welcome to visitors that was such a "great factor in Expo's success."

Unrestrained cheering and applause again broke loose as he ended with the words:

"Long live Expo 67. Long live Man and his World."

Man and His World was the theme of Expo 67.

DIEF ATTENDS

Well-wrapped in a grey mackintosh with a battered brown hat jammed on his head and with gloves, he looked around wistfully as his once-magic name was uttered among 15,000 Canadians and drew not a single clap. His wife Olive laid a hand on his arm and gave him a friendly squeeze.

SOVIET PAVILION TOP DRAW

MONTREAL (CP) — An Expo 67 computer spun out a stream of facts and figures Sunday as it tallied the count of everything from hamburgers eaten to ticket stubs torn over the six-month Expo period.

The lines at the Czechoslovakian and British pavilions might have seemed the longest but it was the Soviet Union's exhibit that attracted the most visitors—about 13,000,000.

Canada had 11,000,000 visitors, the United States 9,000,000, France 8,500,000, Czechoslovakia 8,000,000 and Great Britain 5,000,000.

Expo Express, the fair's free transit system, travelled 374,600 train miles and the Expo marina held more than 7,000 boats.

There were 25,463 youngsters who turned up at the department for misplaced youngsters and the department happily reported that 25,463 were found.

Canadians visited the fair more than citizens of any other nation. Fifty-three per cent of all visitors were Canadians while the U.S. supplied 45 per cent of the population.

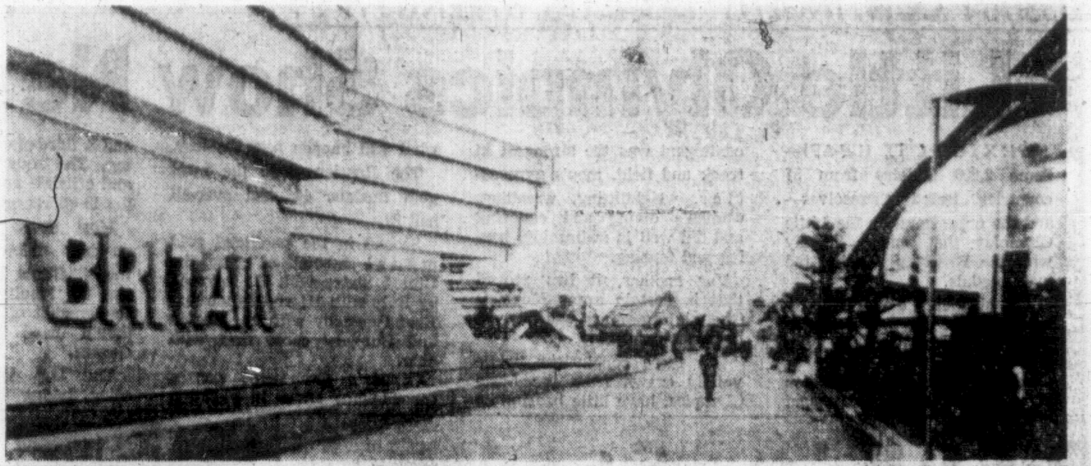
Season passports were used 22 times each on the average and about 480,000 Expo theatre ticket stubs, valid for one night's visiting on site after each performance were used. Seven-day passports were used 5.5 times each.

A total of 5,931,578 hamburgers were gobbled up by fair-goers and more than 33,500,000 ice cream cones were consumed during the fair.

VISITOR HITS THE JACKPOT

MONTREAL (CP)—Marthe Racine, 39, who has made only one airplane flight in her life, Saturday won a flight to Osaka, Japan, to see Expo 70 when she became Expo 67's 50,000,000th visitor.



THE CONTRAST between Expo yesterday and today is a stark one. Once-throbbing attractions like the British pavilion shown here are strangely silent and streets regularly jammed with fairgoers show only workmen and security guards. The fair closed Sunday after a 185-day run that attracted 50,000,000 visitors. (CP Wirephoto.)

CROWDS FILE OUT QUIETLY

Outstretched Hands Symbolize Fair

MONTREAL (CP) — More than 2,000 hands, fingers spread to resemble the symbol of Expo 67, reached skyward Saturday night at the emotion-charged Pal des Nations marking both the close of the world's fair and United Nations Week in Montreal.

It happened suddenly.

The 1,100 guests seated around a series of round tables were in the midst of eating when the orchestra began to play Hey Friend, Say Friend, the official theme song of Expo.

Within seconds, Andrew Kniewasser, general manager of the world's fair, Commissioner-General Pierre Dupuy and Deputy Commissioner-General Robert Shaw all rose, their arms outstretched with fingers spread to symbolize Man and His World, the fair's theme. The lights dimmed and the entire gathering rose, held up their hands and began singing.

The ball was organized by the United Nations Association in Canada. Commissioners-general from all Expo pavilions were in attendance as were hundreds of members of the association.

FLAGS FORM GATEWAY

An atmosphere of international fellowship was quickly established as the colorful flags of the nations formed a gateway to the entrance of the ballroom inside the Hotel Bonaventure.

Sixty hostesses dressed in national costume formed a guard of honor as the Expo dignitaries made their entrance.

"I know I'll break down," said Helen Vilachochrista, 20-year-old hostess from the pavilion of Greece. "I shall be in the Place des Nations when the flags are lowered tomorrow and already I'm beginning to cry."

CLOSING GESTURE BY 2,000

'I Feel as If Someone Had Died'

By KARIN MOSER

MONTREAL (CP)—"Oh my God, it's over," whispered one woman as the sound of a 67-gun salute boomed out Sunday at Expo, signalling the closedown of the 1967 world's fair.

Within minutes, all visitors were asked to leave pavilions, boutiques, restaurants and the Expo Express as it pulled into Place d'Accueil, the main entrance.

"I feel as though someone has died," said Liliane Azar, a Montrealer.

Sveral youngsters passed her carrying blue banners bearing the Expo symbol and the words Au Revoir—till we meet again.

"C'est triste,"—it's so sad—said Margaret Richer of suburban Lachine.

A small crowd gathered near the pavilion of Ethiopia where two young high school girls from Trois-Rivieres, were holding signs saying Merci Jean Drapeau.

"Everyone who passes us is putting his signature on the placard," explained Luce Desaulniers, 14. With her 15-year-old friend, Joan Poliquin, she was going to turn the signs over to Montreal's mayor later.

One man passed the small group and wiped his eyes with a handkerchief.

There was a peculiar silence everywhere. No one felt like talking.

Following the ceremonies the crowds milled around, many of them making their way to the parked limousines where official dignitaries soon appeared.

About 4 p.m. thousands of men, women and children lined the banks of the St. Lawrence, jammed into Place des Nations and crowded onto the Place d'Accueil platforms to watch an hour-long fireworks display.

RUSSIAN CONTINGENT DISPLAYS STRENGTH . . . . . . CANADIANS WIN ONLY TWO MEDALS

Little Olympics Show Need of Better Organization

MEXICO CITY (CP-AP)—Some 2,200 athletes from 57 countries tested themselves—and the organizers—in the Little Olympics that ended Sunday with the Russians winning the most medals.

The obvious question remains: What did the two-week-long dry-run for the 1968 Olympics prove?

For one thing, the competition showed that Russia's all-round contingent was the strongest in track and field, men's gymnastics, weightlifting, wrestling, women's diving and canoeing and did well in swimming, boxing and fencing.

For another, it has proved that in certain areas Mexico's Olympic organizers will have to improve their setup.

But these conclusions, while validly drawn from the Little Olympics, have little bearing on what will happen next October.

Second in the unofficial gold medal tabulations was the United States with 21, followed by Italy with 11, and Japan and East Germany with 10. Mexico and Hungary came next with nine.

Canada's tiny team won a second-place silver in yachting and a third-place bronze in boxing. The squad of 38 athletes and officials entered only six of the 18 sports on the program.

Most teams conducted tests on their athletes performing at this 7,347-foot altitude and will use the results in determining the amount of altitude training they'll need before the '68 Games.

The U.S. dominated swimming, taking 15 gold, 11 silver and 12 bronze in 29 events, accounting for more than half its total of 64 medals.

Debbie Meyer of Sacramento, Calif., triple world record-holder, emerged as the only triple gold medallist in individual swimming events. Two other Americans, Don Schollander and Claudia Kolb, won four gold each, two individual and two in relays.

Russia and Mexico were tops in boxing, with three golds each, and the Russians also prevailed in wrestling with six gold in freestyle and Greco-Roman competition.

The Soviets also took first honors in weightlifting with three gold. Seven world records were broken in weightlifting.

Italy won the most gold in cycling—five—and seven world marks fell by the wayside in that competition.

The Russians and Japanese ruled gymnastics, as they have for many years, with Nataliya Kutchinskaya leading the Russian women with four gold and Japan's Akinori Nakayama topping the men with four.

Track and field, with specialists from widely-scattered countries taking their own events, provided small medal collections for a number of countries, as did such sports as fencing, rowing and shooting. Thirty-seven countries made it into the medal column.

Roughies, Stamps Come Down to Wire

TERRY EVANSHEN
. . . Mr. Glue Fingers

By The Canadian Press

Saskatchewan Roughriders withstood a late drive by British Columbia Lions for a 24-14 victory Sunday and regained a share of first place in the Western Football Conference.

Calgary Stampeders had set the stage with an 11-20 loss Saturday to third-place Edmonton Eskimos. The loss cost the Stampeders two points which could have kept them out of Saskatchewan's reach at least until next weekend.

The Calgary-Edmonton encounter gave Stampeder quarterback Peter Liske two Canadian passing records and a Western record, and split-end Terry Evanshen a CFL record.

Despite his records, it was a lame-duck pass from Liske that Eskimo John Wydareny intercepted and returned 105 yards for a fourth-quarter touchdown that assured Edmonton's victory.

Calgary must win its final WFC scheduled game Saturday at Vancouver against British Columbia Lions to gain first place. Although a win by Saskatchewan over the Blue Bombers in Winnipeg Sunday would keep the Eskimos and Stampeders in a first place tie so far as games are concerned, the bye into the conference final would go to the Stamps by virtue of their two victories over Saskatchewan in meetings this year.

Eskimo Gary Lefebvre got Saturday's first touchdown on a 65-yard pass from Frank Cosentino.

Peter Kempf converted the Lefebvre and Wydareny touchdowns, and kicked a single and a field goal. Randy Kerbow added two singles to complete Eskimo scoring.

It was the first Stampeder defeat at home this season before 22,164 fans. Liske passed five yards to Evanshen at 14:08 of the fourth quarter for Calgary's only touchdown. Bill Goods converted, and kicked a field goal and a single.

ECLIPSES CFL MARKS

Liske's 39 pass attempts set a CFL season record of 479. He completed 22 for a CFL mark of 283. His touchdown pass to Evanshen brought a WFC season record of 35.

Evanshen set his season's total of pass receptions at 89, one more than the CFL mark Hal Patterson set with Montreal in 1956.

Sunday at Regina, the Roughriders had rolled up a strong lead going into the fourth quarter when Lions' Sonny Homer went over for a touchdown on a pass-and-run play from Bernie Faloney.

The B.C. attack stalled at that stage, limiting both clubs to two-downs-and-a-kick situations.

Gord Barwell opened scoring after four plays in the first quarter, starting from the Saskatchewan 22, with a 49-yard pass from quarterback Ron Lancaster. George Reed followed on a one-yard plunge.

Saskatchewan's third touchdown came in the third quarter when Henry Dorsch bulled his way over from the two yard line.

Ticats Respond To 'Tea Talk'

By The Canadian Press

The Big Two blitzed the Little Two in Big Four weekend action—and for their next efforts they'll just change partners and try to do it all over again.

Hamilton Tiger-Cats on Sunday and Ottawa Rough Riders the day before played comeback football for chilled hometown fans.

The Ticats went into the dressing-room down 4-1, but came back to demolish Montreal Alouettes 26-4.

Ottawa allowed Toronto Argonauts to roll up a 14-0 lead before coming back to take the visitors 28-18.

FULLBACK FUMBLES

Fullback Bo Scott of Ottawa, whose early fumble allowed the Argonauts to get the jump on the Rough Riders on a greasy Lansdowne Park field, took two touchdown passes and ran 18 yards for a third. End Margene Adkins grabbed a 20-yard touchdown toss and Don Sutherin converted all four.

Defensive end Ed Harrington got Toronto's first touchdown when he grabbed Scott's fumble at Ottawa's 14 on the first play after the kickoff.

Toronto quarterback Wally Gabler combined with end Al Irwin on a 62-yard pass-and-run play for Argos' other touchdown. Dave Mann converted both and added a 37-yard field goal and a 52-yard punt single.

Montreal got one point on Jim Long's missed 28-yard field goal and the other three on the 23-yarder he made.

BRADY OUTSTANDING

Hamilton got touchdowns from Bill Redell, Dick Gibbs and Tommy Joe Coffey as well as a field goal and three converts from Coffey and two singles from quarterback Joe Zuger.

Phil Brady was the outstanding player on a Montreal team that is riddled with injuries. Playing both ways he was a defensive standout as well as Montreal's leading receiver with 104 yards on five catches.

Rawlings Take Two From UBC

Mary Coutts set the scoring pace at Central Junior High School as Victoria Rawlings opened their Inter-City Women's Basketball League season by taking two decisions from University of B.C. Thunderettes.

Mrs. Coutts fired 16 points Saturday as the Victorians nipped the students 41-39 and she clicked for 22 Sunday as Rawlings rapped the visitors 50-45.

Diana Doyle addd 14 points to the Victoria total Saturday and Barbara Tribe chipped in with 10 Sunday as determined checking played a big part in the Victoria win.

Tyees, 14; Sacramento, 3

SACRAMENTO, Calif.—Victoria Tyees packed all their scoring punch into a 53-second span but it was a brilliant defensive display that supplied the knockout blow in Sunday's Continental Football League game here.

With their well-deserved 14-3 victory over Sacramento's Buccaneers, the Tyees have a perfect record going. As the Steelers, the Victoria team had a 2-5 won-lost record. The Tyees are 1-0.

But it was the defence and not the name change that produced the desired result Sunday for coach Don McKeta.

Asked who he thought stood out for Victoria, McKeta replied: "The 14 guys who played defence."

"The hitting out there today was the best in the league," McKeta added. "We really took 'em on!"

So effective was the rushing and hitting of Tyees' defensive linemen, and the alertness of the deep secondary defenders, that Sacramento quarterbacks Rick Egloff and Derrick Shelton managed to complete only four of 24 passes.

Durham hit on 12 of 28 tosses, including a 15-yard touchdown strike to Kramer, while Jones was the standout in the running department.

The touchdown drive started late in the second quarter and after Tom Foster of Victoria intercepted a Shelton pass in Tyees' end zone. Foster ran it out to the eight, then Durham took over. Mixing his plays well, he directed Tyees downfield.

Only a minute and 57 seconds remained until half-time when Kramer took Durham's final toss of the long march. Cliff Smith converted to make it 7-0, then kicked off to Sacramento.

KICK BLOCKED

Adolphus McGee took the ball to the Bucs' 36. Three Sacramento passes all fell incomplete and Jerry Circle went in to punt. Circle's attempted punt was blocked by Victoria's Glen Gardiner and Jerry Williams. Williams picked up the loose ball on Sacramento's five-yard line, and went over for Victoria's second major. Smith's second convert make it 14-0 as the clock showed only 1:04 left in the first half.

Sacramento's only points came at 9:54 of the third quarter, a 17-yard field goal by Circle.

Victoria was unfortunate in not adding at least two more touchdowns to its total.

Diminutive Steve Bramwell returned a Sacramento kick 68 yards for a touchdown late in the third quarter only to have the score nullified by a clipping penalty.

Then, in the fourth, Victoria marched to Sacramento's three-yard line only to be stopped by the Bucs' defence. Tyees were forced to give up the ball when Durham failed to make two yards on fourth down.

Tyees' victory, incidentally, also spoiled Joe Barbee's deubt as Sacramento's head coach. The one-time Baltimore Colt and Oakland Raiders' lineman stepped in as head coach only hours before the game.

Sacramento's three-man coaching staff had resigned en masse last week.

Tyees' next game, Saturday at Royal Athletic Park, will be against the tough San Jose Apaches.

Chinooks Run Skein to Four

They laughed when Victoria Chinooks sat down to play the piano last year. But no team in the Inter-City Junior Men's Basketball League is laughing at the Chinooks this term.

Moe Turner's blue devils made it four up, four down on the weekend. Vancouver IGA, previously undefeated in three trips, felt the wrath of Chinooks' poise and pressure, losing 63-52 Saturday and 68-65 Sunday.

Last year Chinooks, in a rebuilding phase, floundered in their early trips and soon settled to the bottom. This year they've added new faces, blended them with veterans who have been around the horn a little, and now share the lead with Vancouver CYO Saints.

In other weekend games, Killarney polished off University of Victoria twice, 68-64 and 81-35.

Their feast at Uvic's expense left Killarney only two points behind third-place IGA. North Shore and Uvic, winless so far, share squatter's quarters in the basement.

RUGGED DEFENCE

The firehorse mainlanders led at the half in both contests before running into a cement-wall defence that stilted their shooting irons.

Shooting only 15 per cent from the floor in the first half at Central Junior High Saturday, Chinooks trailed 24-21. Heeding Turner's "be-tough-on-defence" credo, they held IGA to 28 points in the final session while rapping in 42.

Dave Wirtanen was particularly offensive, scoring all 15 of his points in the final 20 minutes, most of them off sparkling cuts for layups.

EARLY TRANCE

Sunday the Chinooks again suffered "first half trance." They went off the floor in arrears 38-27. Then they cut IGA off at the pass and with Ollie Moilanen feathering in seven field goals and five free throws outlanced the losers 41-27.

Moilanen finished with 31 points to lead all gunners. IGA's Don Redmond had 24. IGA's talented and tall Don Gatley had 14 Saturday, 11 Sunday. He fouled out in both games.

Chinooks play their first away games next weekend when they travel to Vancouver for two games with Killarney.

If the blue devils continue their fine showing Killarney will join the growing list of teams who won't laugh when the Chinooks sit down at the piano.

Fast Finish Aids In Tenpin Victory

Her resoluteness was rewarded Sunday when she won the Division I honors in the annual Victoria Ladies' Zone singles tenpin rolloff at Mayfair Lanes.

Muriel rolled a final five-game block of 933 for a 20-game total of 3,636. She began the competition with a 954, added subsequent blocks of 887 and 862 before her last great fling.

She finished 190 pins ahead of Peggy Parsons, who had 3,446. Third was Maureen King with 3,421.

Muriel's first and last blocks were high for the rolloff. She led all bowlers in high singles with four 200 plus games—231, 232, 219, 209.

Division II winner was Babe Ross with 3,387.

Babe finished 41 pins ahead of the early pacesetter Viv Morgan, who had 3,346. Loreen Reid was third with 3,257.

Detroit's David Slew Goliath

Associated Press

David slew Goliath with a game plan.

"Blitz was our game plan, and Jim David set it up," coach Joe Schmidt said Sunday after the Lions shocked the favored '49ers 45-3.

In other National Football League games, Baltimore Colts edged Washington Redskins 17-13, Philadelphia Eagles upset Dallas Cowboys 21-14, Los Angeles Rams topped Chicago Bears 28-17, New York Giants surprised Cleveland Browns 38-34, Atlanta Falcons stunned Minnesota Vikings 21-20 and Pittsburgh Steelers edged New Orleans Saints 14-10. Green Bay Packers play at St. Louis tonight.

PROTECTION WAVERED

"We just didn't protect our quarterback," '49er coach Jack Christiansen said in a bit of understatement after watching the Lions carry out David's game plan.

Detroit contained John Brodies' passing to nine completions in 29 attempts, threw him four times for a total loss of 39 yards, and intercepted four of his passes, one of which was turned for a touchdown by Mike Lucci. Brodie also lost the ball once on a fumble, and on another occasion he was penalized for intentionally grounding the ball.

REMAINS UNBEATEN

Baltimore, 5-0-2, remained the NFL's only unbeaten team when Tom Matte ran seven yards for a touchdown in the fourth quarter. It was the 16th straight time, including exhibitions, Washington 2-3-2, has lost to the Colts.

Philadelphia, 4-3, built up a 21-0 lead and then held off a desperate bid by Dallas, 5-2. The Eagle touchdowns came on Israel Lang's 17-yard run, Norm Snead's three-yard pass to Gary Ballman and Tom Woodeschick's one-yard run.

Halfback Tommy Mason's 51-yard scoring pass to Bernie Casey clinched Los Angeles' victory over the troublesome Bears.

Tide Tops Norvans With Late Flurry

Victoria's Crimson Tide swept over North Vancouver 26-9 Sunday in the first game of the B.C. regional rugby championships for one of the highest scores the Tide has run up in years.

Norvans had the jump on Victoria for the first half of the game at Macdonald Park but were washed under by the Tide from that point on.

Narbett put his team ahead a second time when Tide captain B. Wightman was caught offside in front of the posts. Not to be outdone Victoria came back in a brilliant team effort with nine forwards and backs handling before Dave Hutchings went in for another unconverted try.

Half-time score was 6-6.

FINE RUNNING

Victoria dominated the second half with some excellent running by Ron Fiddick. The right wing made some electrifying runs and scored one try before setting up one for Ken Wilkie.

Narbett replied with a penalty goal but North Van's cause was lost. Ivor Ford and M. Eckhardt scored unconverted tries shortly after. McGarry converted Fiddick's try and added a penalty goal and A. Foster finished up with a penalty goal.

MAINLAND AND McLEAN . . . . . . ADD BEEF TO VICTORIA DEFENCE

Bucks Couldn't Digest Cats' New Combo

By ERNIE FEDORUK

Ham and eggs, or bread and butter stand up as the acceptable go-together combinations. Now B.C. Junior Hockey League followers are ready to add the names of Mainland and McLean.

Bill Mainland and Dunc McLean said hello as defence partners for the first time, and Saturday night at Memorial Arena proved to be considerably more interesting than Saturday night at the public library. Their blending was the big reason Cougars belted Don Culley's Bucks 8-3.

Dennis Ferrill scored three goals for Victoria; the Cats showed a complete reversal of their first-game form, and another surprisingly good audience (2,630) sifted through the doors. All that made it very interesting, but not to the standard offered by Mainland and McLean.

They were as brilliant on offence as on defence. Mainland and McLean "just happened" to be on the ice for six of the eight Victoria goals, and only one of the three Kelowna counters.

The 20-year-old Mainland scored two of the prettiest goals of the night and drew an assist on another. McLean, in his first game with the Cougars, checked in with four assists.

McLean performed as a winger with Kamloops' juniors last season, but was a defenceman throughout his career in the Victoria Minor Hockey Association.

Still, there is some doubt as to McLean's availability on a full-time basis because of his job. He may have to miss most of the road games.

While he contributed four assists, McLean's greatest asset to Cougars on Saturday was his ability to move the puck out of Victoria's zone. His passes are not of a "pussy-foot" kind. They are, instead, hard and sure.

It was timid passing that did much to damage Cougars in their 10-2 loss to Penticton the previous week.

In addition to Ferrill's three goals and the pair by Mainland, Cougars also counted on shots by Greg Gow, Garth Greig and Greg Wedderburn.

Broncos Post Shutout

First shutout of the B.C. Junior Hockey League season was recorded Saturday night at Vernon as Penticton Broncos clipped the Vernon Blades 4-0 for their seventh straight win in eight games.

At New Westminster Sunday, the Royals jumped into a 4-1 first period lead and held on to chalk up a 5-2 triumph over Kelowna in a penalty-studded contest.

Howe Gets Two As Wings Step Into Top Berth

By The Canadian Press

With the exception of Montreal Canadiens, the standings of the National Hockey League's Eastern Division gives one the impression of looking into a mirror.

Detroit Red Wings, almost everybody's choice to finish out of the playoffs next spring, grabbed the division lead from Montreal with a pair of weekend wins.

At the bottom of the six-team division are the two teams judged most likely to succeed by pre-season observers—the Stanley Cup champion Toronto Maple Leafs, with four wins and four losses, and last year's league champion Chicago Black Hawks, with a win and a tie in nine games.

HAWKS LOSE AGAIN!

The Wings defeated Philadelphia Flyers 3-1 Saturday and the Hawks 5-1 Sunday after Chicago had made a slight move by beating Minnesota North Stars 4-2 Saturday.

Toronto took a 3-2 defeat in New York Sunday after dropping California Seals 5-2 Saturday. California salvaged a 2-2 tie with Philadelphia Sunday.

In other Saturday games, Montreal hammered St. Louis Blues 4-1 and Los Angeles Kings dropped Pittsburgh Penguins 5-3. Pittsburgh loss 4-2 to Boston Sunday.

Los Angeles is at the top of the expanded Western Division with 10 points, followed by Philadelphia and Pittsburgh with seven, Minnesota and California with six and St. Louis with four.

Gordie Howe, in his 22nd season with the Wings, paced Detroit with two goals Sunday—his fifth and sixth of the season—as they climbed over idle Montreal. The 39-year-old veteran now has a career total of 655 goals.

ROOKIE SCORES 2

He got help from rookie winger Gary Jarrett, with two goals, and Ted Hampson as Chicago used both Denis Dejordy and Dave Dryden in goal to try and stop the charging Wings.

Ken Wharram was the only Chicago player to beat Roger Crozier, who was brilliant in the Detroit nets.

Orland Kurtenbach and Bob Nevin, with his second of the game, scored 31 seconds apart in the third period for the New York victory Sunday, giving goalie John Bower a difficult time throughout. Bob Pulford beat Ed Giacomin for a 2-1 lead early in the second period after Jim Pappin had made it 1-1 on a power-play goal in the first.

The goal was Pappin's third of the weekend. He scored twice Saturday along with Ron Ellis, George Armstrong and Tim Horton. Bill Hicke and George Swarbrick scored for California.

Another two-goal scorer Sunday was Eddie Shack, picked up by Boston in the off season from Toronto. Phil Esposito and Gary Doak also scored against Les Binkley.

Andy Bathgate broke a string of 124 minutes, four seconds of shutout hockey for Boston goalie Jerry Cheevers midway through the third period.

Gorge Defence Fashions Upset

Gorge Molsons' youthful defence finally jelled and created a sticky situation for Victoria West's entry in the Victoria District Soccer League's First Division.

With the defenders playing what manager Don Wakelin termed their finest game of the season, Gorge upset the previously unbeaten Wests 2-1 Sunday.

At the same time, Jack Breuker and Franz van Doesburg scored the goals to lead Canadian Scottish to a 2-0 victory over Hourigan Kickers and undisputed possession of first place.

Bill Walker and veteran Ced Robb scored the Gorge goals, both against substitute goalie Howie Anderson. Regular goalie Don Head was injured in the first half and was replaced by Anderson.

After being blanked in their first three starts, Luckies bombed Tally-Ho 7-1. In the day's other game, Red Lions drew 3-3 with University of Victoria Vikings.

Thai Ace Had to Work For Win Over Paulson

World-ranked Thailander Raetansaungschaung Channarong ran into more trouble than expected Sunday before winning the men's singles final in the 12th annual invitational badminton tournament at the Racquet Club.

Canada's No. 1 junior, Jamie Paulson of Calgary, took the first game 15-7, a margin the Thailander never quite managed to equal in the match. Channarong marked up scores of 15-11 and 15-8 to win the tournament.

Paulson had moved up to meet the Calgary-based Thailander by upsetting top-ranking Wayne Macdonnell of Vancouver in semifinals Saturday night. Scores in that match were 15-12, 15-12.

Channarong had defeated Bruce Rollick 15-9, 15-1 with brilliant footwork and control of drop shots.

Yano paid the good-sized Vancouver team its dues, but still feels his Cowichan Timbermen are "much better" than they showed Saturday. That's when the 'Lomas booted Cowichan 6-2 at Macdonald Park to claim the B.C. title.

A pair of first-quarter field goals by Nick Beretanos provided 'Lomas with all the points they needed in a game highlighted by strong defensive play on the part of both clubs. Beretanos put his foot to boots of 27 and 30 yards.

Cowichan's only points came in the fourth quarter when Vancouver's Mike Campbell was dropped in his own end zone for a safety touch.

MISCUES DAMAGING

Timbermen came up with the best running game, but 'Lomas were best in the passing department. With the defences being equal, the difference Saturday proved to be the interception and fumble statistics.

Cowichan was charged with three fumbles and the 'Lomas, proving superior height can be helpful, picked off six Cowichan passes from the hands of intended receivers.

Timbermen went for 112 yards on the ground and 90 in the air. Vancouver managed only a net 69 yards rushing, but quarterback Blaine Fransen—operating out of a spread formation—made good on 19 out of 36 passes for a lusty 235 aerial yardage.

Cowichan showed the more diversified attack, but the fumbles and interceptions made it a frustrating afternoon.

Treloar's Sprint Saves Olympians

VANCOUVER — Grant Treloar was the man-of-the-hour Saturday as Victoria Amateur Swimming Club's Olympians won their fifth straight meet and preserved their undefeated status in the Evergreen Conference.

Olympians defeated New Westminster YMCA 242-184 and then, snatching victory from defeat in the last event, edged Seattle's Highline YMCA 216-208.

Seattle toppled because Treloar "turned it on" in the last leg of the men's 200-metre freestyle relay. Victoria led Seattle by a mere one point, 209-208, in the final event and defeat seemed inevitable until the final few strokes.

EXCITING FINALE

Teloar was about eight feet in arrears when he started the final leg. He managed to make up the deficit to pull out victory for relay mates Dave Cruise, Bob Holden and Ken Munn.

The exciting relay finish almost stole the spotlight from Jim Gollmer and Rick Davidge. Both won four events. Lorrie Cosby won three races while Mary Pat Pumfrey, Treloar and Ross Bruce each won twice.

Juvenile Clubs Honor Players

Jim Forward, a bear on offense as well as on defence, has been named the most valuable player in the Vancouver Island Juvenile Football League.

The Oak Bay player received the Mayo Singh Memorial Trophy Saturday.

James Bay Mustangs honored their top performers Sunday. Fullback John Howe was named Mustangs' most valuable player, linebacker Randy Thompson was voted the top lineman and tackle Bob Gray was adjudged the "most improved" performer.

NORFOLK GIRLS RETAIN FIELD HOCKEY LAURELS

The defending champions won their third title in four year Saturday by defeating Vancouver Windermere 1-0 on a first-half goal by Caroline Penn.

Norfolk had reached the final earlier by blanking Oak Bay 3-0 while Windermere edged Kelowna 2-1 in overtime.

Another Victoria squad, St. Margaret's won the consolation flight by defeating Crofton House and Point Grey, both of Vancouver, by identical 3-1 scores.

'Lucky' Nicklaus Nears $200,000

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Big Jack Nicklaus needed a lucky break on the final hole where his ball was one-half inch inside of bounds to win the $100,000 Sahara Invitational golf tournament Saturday with a final round 71 and a 72-hole total of 270.

That gave him a one-stroke victory over young Steve Spray of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, who wound up with 71 and 271.

Nicklaus hooked his tee shot on the final hole and it required a close check by officials to determine that the ball was in bounds.

He then hit his second shot into a trap and took a bogey 5 on the hole. Nicklaus posted rounds of 68-69-62 and 71 for his victory which was worth $20,000.

HIS BIGGEST WIN

Spray after rounds of 69-64-67 before his even par finishing round, earned $12,000 the highest of his career.

In third place at 276 was Hugh Royer of Columbus, Ga., who had a 68 final round.

For the 27-year-old Nicklaus of Columbus, Ohio, it was his third Sahara triumph and fifth PGA tournament victory of the year. His $20,000 prize raised his 1967 money total to $188,998 and enabled him to wrest the leadership in the currency chase over Arnold Palmer.

The victorious Nicklaus was beaming as he was being interviewed and said, "I guess you can call me lucky from now on."

Quarry Eliminates Patterson

LOS ANGELES (AP) — California's Jerry Quarry pounded former two-time champion Floyd Patterson out of the world heavyweight boxing eliminations Saturday by winning a split and controversial 12-round decision.

The 22-year-old Quarry floored the 32-year-old Patterson for mandatory eight counts in the second and fourth rounds before Floyd lost to the popular bomber from nearby Bellflower.

Referee Vern Bybee from San Francisco, who was brought down as an outsider to officiate, scored the fight a draw with each fighter receiving six points.

NOT FROM JUDGES

Bybee was overruled, however, when judges Lee Grossman and Joey Olmos gave it to Quarry 7-6.

The Associated Press had it 6-6.

The nationally televised rematch — the two fought a 10-round draw in Los Angeles on June 9 — drew a disappointing crowd in the Olympic Auditorium of well less than its 10,000 capacity.

Neither fighter was visibly marked but it was a vicious fight in which three times neither would back away when the bell sounded and it took heroic efforts by the referee to separate them.

In the fourth, Quarry, a dangerous young man with either hand, unleased a volley of blows and it appeared a solid right to the body caused the most damage and Patterson's second downfall. Floyd was up again quickly.

Quarry now enters the semifinals of the World Boxing Association's international series designed to fill the heavyweight title vacancy caused when Cassius Clay was stripped of his title by the WBA as well as the New York Athletic Commission.

The survivors of the tournament are Jimmy Ellis of Louisville, Ky., Thad Spencer from San Francisco and Oscar Bonavena of Argentina.

Credit Can Throw A Family for Loss

By ELIZABETH FORBES

It was the first time we'd been together since early in the summer and our host couldn't wait for us to leave the dinner table before throwing out a leading statement he knew would start a discussion.

Forbes

It came with the dessert. Credit, he said, was a booby trap that confronted the great majority of people and that if not used with intelligence could lead to ensnarement.

We'd been talking about the many weddings, that had taken place here in the past six months. And the fact that the average age of a bride today is around 18 and the groom 20 years.

It had also been pointed out that in many instances these marriages crack up in the space of a year or so. What was the reason, we wondered.

One at the table said we prepare these young people in a general sort of way to earn a living. But we neglect to teach them how to manage their incomes wisely.

That's when our host mentioned credit. It's like a power saw, he said. In the hands of an informed and careful user it can build a host of useful and pleasing goods. But in the hands of untrained users it can lead to crippling and disaster.

★ ★ ★

Today we are bombarded by appeals to purchase on credit, he continued. To the usual instalment and charge account buying have been added credit cards, revolving charge accounts and many other enticing ways to buy now and pay later. What chance has the average young couple of resisting such offers?

A man at the other end of the table suggested that our high standard of living had contributed in part to increased credit buying.

Because of this standard, business is willing to risk immediate profit in return for long-range gains.

True, came back our host. But he still contended that credit can be dangerous if it causes us to over-extend ourselves.

If you buy on credit, you pay an extra charge, he reminded us. Whether that extra charge is called interest, service fee, carrying charge or anything else, it raises the price of what we buy. And it can keep us from buying other things we need.

One couple said they always use credit when they buy. They said regular payments helped them budget their money and they thought it was an advantage to be able to use the articles they purchased while paying for them.

They also felt sure they would have difficulty saving enough money to pay cash for larger household articles.

Another couple said they never used credit to buy house furnishings or equipment although they did use it in buying an item like an automobile. They thought credit for small to average purchases was expensive. They didn't like to be in debt in case an emergency arose. And they believed they could actually have more goods if they paid cash.

Pencils and paper came out and two amongst us started figuring. They took a period of years. And they allotted to the first couple the amount they said they spent annually for equipment. Then they added the approximate interest for credit.

The same number of years and the same amount of money spent annually in this way was given to the second couple. But because they were not paying out money for credit charges, they wound up several hundred dollars ahead.

Money saved, it was pointed out. Also money that could be used, if they wished, for many other items of furnishings and equipment.

Our host insisted that this clearly showed that more families could be buying and enjoying more goods if they were better informed about credit and better trained in using it.

Every day of our lives, he said we should remember and we should instill into our young people the old adage that "we can leap into debt but we have to crawl out."

DR. KING ENTERS JAIL 19TH TIME

BIRMINGHAM, Ala (AP) — Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., who enters a Birmingham jail today, says his wife "has told our children that this jail term is one of the sacrifices necessary to solve the problems that face this nation."

King and three other ministers are under contempt charges resulting from a 1963 racial demonstration here. They have been sentenced to five days.

Earlier this week, a spokesman for King's Southern Christian Leadership Conference said massive demonstrations would be conducted when King and the others are jailed.

PROVIDE LONG-DISTANCE PHOTOGRAPHY TOO

3-D Sound Pictures Could Replace X-Rays

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Calif. (AP)—Scientists are learning to take three-dimensional pictures with sound waves instead of light.

This technique could lead to photography at great distances in murky water and may replce x-rays in medical diagnosis.

The process involves a cathode-ray tube similar to the picture tube in a television set, to convert the energy of sound into light, and the newly developed science of holography. Holograms use laser beams to reconstruct an image in three dimensions instead of the two dimensions of ordinary photography.

Dr. Alexander Metherell, of the advanced Research Laboratories of McDonnell Douglas Aircraft Corp., predicts the technique will make possible:

1. Identification of underwater objects, such as submarines, at distances of 20 miles or more.

PENETRATES SEAS

2. Three-dimensional picture maps of the ocean floor at any depth.

3. A three-dimensional look into any part of the human body that will be much sharper than x-rays, with no tissue damage from radiation.

Research by a team headed by Metherell, reported in the current issue of the Journal of The Acoustical Society of America, shows the three-dimensional sound pictures can even be made in color by using three different frequencies of sound to correspondent to the three primary colors.

In an interview Sunday, Metherell said the greatest benefit of accoustical holograms may come in medical diagnosis.

"Imagine a physician being able to spot a small tumor in the brain instantly" he said.

"X-rays can't do this because they pass through most soft tissue. Sound waves, however, are altered in proportion to the kind of tissue they penetrate and thus will provide a detailed picture of any abnormal growth."

THE ST. VALENTINE'S DAY MASSACRE
Violence Unlimited
Capitol Theatre

In the whole history of the cinema, violence has never been more popular than it is today. Killings, beatings and sluggings, alternated with ingenious mental and physical tortures, are calculated to fill any modern theatre.

So what could be better for the box office than a murderous thug like Al Capone? Jason Robards follows Edward G. Robinson and Paul Muni by portraying Capone as a master of blackmail, bootlegging, extortion and highly-organized killing.

Capone is at the top of his tree when George (Bugs) Moran begins muscling in on Chicago's East Side. On St. Valentine's Day, 1929, a bunch of thugs dressed as cops enter Moran's garage and gun down everyone except Moran, who happens to be off the premises.

The massacre, fortunately, arouses public indignation and starts the long siege which led to Capone's downfall.

The bullets fly, the blood flows and every few minutes another hoodlum bites the dust. But, somehow, Capone and his rival Moran always have an alibi and no one is ever brought to trial.

Jason Robards portrays Capone as a kind of high-minded killer with a maudlin sentiment for old friends and a general contempt for humanity.

WATERHOLE No. 3
Royal Theatre

This western spoof is all too obviously an imitation of an earlier western spoof called Cat Ballou. But, whereas Cat was deeply and incisively satirical, Waterhole is little more than a superficial comedy, attractively presented.

Back in the 1890s, a consignment of gold bullion is stolen from the U.S. Army by a European shoemaker, two criminals and an army deserter.

The bullion is hidden in the third waterhole of a local desert (hence the title), but James Coburn—his face and hands as craggy as the Bad Lands themselves—soon gets on the track of it.

In so doing, he is involved with Sheriff Carol O'Connor and his comely daughter, Margaret Blye. Coburn steals the sheriff's clothes, his horse and his daughter's virginity. And—would you believe it?—the sheriff is only worried about the horse.

"I gotta get him back to save my honor," he mutters.

That's about as funny as Waterhole No. 3 ever gets; but it has an excellent cast and Roger Miller sings a song called The Code of the West which runs:

"Do unto others before they do you!"

FISHER WED, HAS A BABY

BURBANK, Calif. (AP) — "She is a cute one; she looks just like me," said singer Eddie Fisher after seeing his new daughter, Joely, born to actress Connie Stevens.

Fisher and Miss Stevens have been married "for some time," said the singer's public relations representative, Joe Halperin.

"He won't say when or where the marriage took place," said Halperin.

Miss Stevens, 30, and the six-pound, 10-ounce girl were reported in good condition at hospital where Joely arrived Sunday.

Leading Violinist To Appear at Uvic

One of the world's outstanding violinists, Campoli, will make his first concert appearance in this city on Friday.

Partnered by Robin Wood, he will present a program of sonatas at the University of Victoria. This is an "extra" in the School of Fine Arts evening concert series.

The program will begin at 8 in the Education-Arts Auditorium. Tickets may be obtained from the Student Union Building or the School of Fine Arts, 477-6911, local 360.

Sonatas by Vivaldi, Beethoven, Busoni and Franck will comprise the program to be performed by Campoli and Mr. Wood.

The violinist, who comes from an Italian family who settled in England, made his debut at the age of 11.

His father was concertmaster of the Santa Cecilia Orchestra in Rome and a friend of famous violinists, Joachin, Sarasate and Ysaye.

Campoli has made numerous world tours and has regularly toured North America. He has recorded extensively and is just beginning a new series of sonata recordings in Britain.

He has found time to visit Victoria on his present North American tour because he particularly liked Vancouver Island on a day's trip last year.

Connections with two earlier visitors to Uvic campus this year may also have influenced his decision to accept the university invitation.

Sir Arthur Bliss, the British composer who lectured at the university when he came to B.C. to open the Vancouver Festival last summer, dedicated his violin concerto to Campoli who gave the first performance and then recorded it.

TOTEM POLE STUDY

Museum Men Visit Alaska

Two representatives of the B.C. provincial museum—conservator Philip Ward and museum adviser George Moore—will attend a conference at Anchorage, Alaska, next month on the conservation of totem poles and large wood carvings.

"This is of much interest to us," Mr. Moore said, "because some of the finest totem poles and wood carvings are in British Columbia."

Mr. Moore and Mr. Ward will also attend the inaugural session of the Alaska Historical Association, which is being formed as one of the state's centennial projects.

Visiting the B.C. provincial museum Monday, Nov. 6, will be Richard F. Harrison of the Art Gallery and Museum Service for Yorkshire at Leeds, England.

"He is studying the relationships between large and small museums on a Churchill Traveling Fellowship," says Recreation Minister Kenneth Kiernan.

"He is particularly interested in museum extension services, school tours, public relations and communications among museums, art galleries and similar institutions."

Mr. Harrison will visit the Cowichan Forest Museum at Duncan, restored Fort Langley in the Fraser Valley and the military museum at Chilliwack.

Communists Set For Big Meeting

100 National Parties to Attend 50th Anniversary Celebrations

By ANATOLE SHUB
The Washington Post

MOSCOW—Leaders of more than 100 Communist and radical parties—including those of Vietnam, Yugoslavia, Rumania, Cuba and four Arab states — begin arriving in Moscow Wednesday for nearly a week of celebrations and conferences marking the 50th anniversary of the Soviet Communist revolution.

Although China has ignored and Albania rejected Soviet invitations to the festivities, the gathering will be the largest in the history of the international Communist movement—overshadowing the seven pre-Second World War congresses of the Communist International as well as the 1960 conference of 81 Communist parties.

BROAD PROGRAM

The official program will commence Friday morning with a major address by Soviet Communist party general secretary Leonid Brezhnev to a joint Kremlin session of the party central committee and the parliaments of the Soviet Union and the Russian republic. Diplomatic observers expect Brezhnev's speech to contain a militant indictment of the United States, a new plea for Communist unity, disclosure of the second best harvest in Soviet history and announcement that many branches of Soviet industry have equalled total 1966 production within 10 months of 1967.

Brezhnev will be followed to the rostrum Friday and Saturday by other Soviet civilian and military leaders and by leading foreign guests. The guests include Le Duan, first secretary of the North Vietnamese Party of Labor; Cuban President Osvaldo Dorticos, Yuroslavia's Marshal Josip Broz Tito, Rumania's Nicolae Ceaucescu, and the usual array of Communist leaders whose loyalty to Moscow has never been in doubt. (Among them: Bulgaria's Todor Zhivkov, Czechoslovakia's Antonin Novotny, East Germany's Walter Ulbricht, Hungary's Janos Kadar, Mongolia's Yemzehagin Tsdenbal and Poland's Wladyslaw Gromulka and Josef Cyrankiewicz.)

STATE PARTIES

In addition, there will be delegations from the South Vietnamese National Liberation Front and from the state parties of Egypt (headed by deputy premier Aly Sabry), Yemen (headed by President Abdullah Al Sallal), Algeria, Syria, Guinea, Mali, Tanzania and Congo (Brazzaville). It is not yet known whether the communist parties of those countries, in several cases outlawed, will participate along with the ruling parties. Finnish President Urho Kekkonen ill also attend.

Following the two-day joint session, the spotlight will shift to Leningrad on Sunday, Nov. 5, where top Soviet leaders and foreign guests will lay ceremonial wreaths and participate in a commemorative meeting. Officials said Saturday they could not disclose precisely who will attend the Leningrad celebration, but many observers expect a speech there by Prime Minister Aleksei Kosygin, a native of the city.

On Monday afternoon, Nov. 6, the Moscow party and government organizations will hold a similar meeting.

The anniversary day itself, Nov. 7, will see the traditional military parade—with a brief address by Defence Minister Marshal Andrei Grechko—and a festive Kremlin reception.

Gomulka Asks For China Heresy Meet

MOSCOW (CP)—Polish Communist party chief Wladyslaw Gomulka added his voice Sunday to the rising demands of other pro-Soviet Communists for a world party conference to deal with what they call Chinese heresy.

Gomulka's proposal for a meeting was published in the Communist party newspaper Pravda, which has been carrying a series of articles by Communist leaders in connection with the Nov. 7 celebration of the 50th anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution.

Gomulka's article appeared one day after the Italian Communist party ended four years of resistance to Moscow on a proposed world conference on China and declared its full support.

POPE RESTS BEFORE OPERATION

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope Paul's doctors announced today that after a relapse during the weekend, his fever is going down and he has begun a period of rest to build him up for and operation to correct his prostate ailment.

The announcement by the Vatican press office said the date of the operation has not been set. The relapse touched off speculation that the surgery might be delayed.

SURVIVORS TESTIFY

Doomed Ship Leaky, Rusty Hulk

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Survivors of an Alaska maritime disaster told the U.S. Coast Guard that their ship, the Panoceanic Faith, was so old and defective that rust and paint crackled underfoot and every watertight door was sprung.

The coast guard is in the third day of a hearing into what caused the 25-year-old, 459-foot vessel to go down Oct. 9 in a storm southwest of Kodiak with the loss of 35 lives. There were only five survivors.

A four-man board heard testimony Friday from Lewis E. Gay Jr., Gordon Campbell, Oscar C. Wiley, Edwin Johnson.

Wiley said the rust had spread to part of the hull above the water line. Gray told the board a tarp was loose on one of the hatches and that "none of the tarps were in the best of condition." Johnson said the ship was too heavily laden with fertilizer when it left San Francisco for India.

Campbell said the Panoceanic Faith was ankle deep in water after the first few days at sea. By noon on the day she sank, Campbell added, the ship had a 32-degree list and no attempt was made to use the pumps.

BLAMES OTTAWA FOR 'DRAINING B.C. GOBLET'

Bennett Had No Inkling of Closure

By JOHN MIKA
Legislative Reporter

The closure of Victoria Machinery Depot's shipbuilding facilities here is "regrettable" and he had no inkling of the decision, Premier Bennett said at the weekend.

•

Commenting in Port Alberni, where he was participating in ceremonies marking the merger of the twin cities, Mr. Bennett said it was the fault of the federal government for not weighing tender prices to favor B.C. because of higher costs on the West Coast.

Harold Husband, president of VMD, said one of the reasons for closing the firm is that it is impossible for West Coast yards to compete nationally for shipbuilding contracts because of higher wages and higher cost for basic material.

"We kept shipbuilding going on this coast as much as we were able to," Mr. Bennett said.

"We don't need more ferries and we don't build what we don't need," he added when asked for comment on a statement by Mr. Husband that it was lack of B.C. Ferry Authority contracts as well as federal contracts which forced the closure decision.

Mr. Bennett said he frequently asked Ottawa to offer a "price differential" in evaluating ship construction tenders in order to cancel out the effect of higher wages on the West Coast when deciding where contracts would be awarded.

"But the federal government didn't see it that way and this is strange because in other situations it gives equalization grants to other provinces," Mr. Bennett said.

"But this present government in Ottawa gives no consideration to B.C. and what has happened (VMD announcement) is another proof that Ottawa considers B.C. a goblet to be drained."

Mr. Bennett said Opposition Leader Robert Strachan's attitude to the announcement was "peculiar."

Mr. Strachan had scored federal and provincial policies for failing to develop a Canadian merchant marine which would have not only kept shipyards busy but created an economic instrument for development of a steel industry here which would use iron ore and coal now being exported.

•

"A merchant marine is no solution," Mr. Bennett said. "It is a price differential (for West Coast yards) that is needed.

"Why did Mr. Strachan not back the premier on this?" Mr. Bennett demanded.

COMMISSION TO MEET THURSDAY

The Esquimalt police commission will hold a hearing Thursday morning to consider the suspension of Cpl. Frank Bell.

Ex-Saanich Reeve Dies In Hospital

A man who twice served as reeve of Saanich and was a dairy farmer in the area for more than 50 years, Arthur Graham Lambrick, died in hospital Sunday.

Mr. Lambrick, who was 75, lived at 4141 Torquay Drive, where he moved last year after he sold his 44-acre farm to the municipality for parkland.

He came to Victoria in 1911. He left his home in Cornwall to go to Illinois, then returned to England, but left again to come to Canada.

He worked in the shipyards here before starting up as a farmer in 1915.

In 1939 to 1940 he served as reeve, then was elected again for a one-year term in 1946.

He is survived by the widow, Clara; three sons, Graham at Cobble Hill; Norman, in Kelowna, and Philip in Victoria; two daughters, Mrs. D. J. (Betty) Miller, in North Saanich, Mrs. (Robert D. (Sylvia) Macmurchie, in Cordova Bay; 12 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be conducted from McCall Brothers Floral Chapel, Wednesday at 10.

Union Asks Company To Open Its Books

Request Claimed Not Unreasonable

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Labor Reporter

The books of Victoria Machinery Depot should be opened for inspection, a union official said today.

Neil Hindle, business agent of Local 191 of the International Brotherhood of Boilermakers, noted that Dosco has agreed to do this for its steel mill in Sydney, Nova Scotia, which is due to close next year.

"This is not an unreasonable request for VMD," he said.

"That is why we asked the government for an inquiry. In the scope of that, the government would send people to assess what is wrong with VMD and the financial picture is one of the major aspects of it."

CLOSE JAN. 1

The VMD shipyard at Dallas Road wll shut Jan. 1 because, a company statement said, there are no prospects of new work. The company's Bay Street engineering factory will continue.

Equipment and stocks at the yard have been sold to Burrard Dry Dock of Vancouver and VMD president Harold Husband, who retains ownership of the 21-acre property, has become a director of that company.

The consolidation leaves only Yarrows in Esquimalt as a major shipbuilding and repair yard here. It is a subsidiary of Burrard.

'NOT OUT OF LINE'

Referring to comments that there is a $1 an hour wage spread between the west coast and the east, he said "our wages are not out of line with our productivity.

"The cost of bringing steel and machinery, the freight differential, is where a lot of the cost is. If we build a vessel 60 per cent of it comes from the east."

On comments that a merchant marine would need government subsidies to establish and run, he asked: "Who in this country isn't subsidized?"

FEW EMIGRATED

While Seattle shipyards are jammed with war work for years ahead, and recruiters have been in this area in the past year, few British Columbians emigrated.

The deterrent for younger people, said Mr. Hindle, was the draft which could land them in Vietnam.

The VMD shipyard at present employs only 160 persons, but he doubted many will be absorbed into the engineering factory ("I don't see any great expansion at Bay Street") or at Burrard and Yarrows ("You have got to have space to work people").

NOT 'FOOLISH'

Mr. Hindle said the idea of the federal government nationalizing the VMD shipyard and running it as a crown corporation "would not be foolish and not an unacceptable idea."

It could become a model, efficient yard and "warrants very close attention. This is the ideal time for the government to pick it up. We'd do everything possible to assist things."

. . . BUT FIRST THEY MUST BUY THEM!

It appears that Indians on the Craigflower and Esquimalt reserves can use firecrackers on Halloween, despite the ban elsewhere in the capital region.

RCMP Sergeant Vern Williams of Colwood detachment said he has not studied the issue closely but he thinks the reserves are exempt from fireworks restrictions.

This is the claim made by Chief John Albany.

But Sgt. Williams said Indians do face one problem before they can set off their fireworks. It would be illegal for them to buy fireworks anywhere in Greater Victoria where they are banned.

MAN KILLED IN GRINDING CAR CRASH

Dead is Martin Henry Vanderheide, married and the father of two children.

The impact of the collision ripped the engine out of the car and one person who saw the vehicle said "it looked like it went over a land mine."

A doctor who was at the scene within minutes of the accident pronounced Vanderheide dead on the spot.

RETURNING HOME

RCMP said Vanderheide had just taken two teenaged girl babysitters home and was on his way back to Chemainus when he was killed.

His 1955 model car smashed into a telephone pole, sheering it off and leaving the car a pile of mangled steel.

Vanderheide was alone and there were no witnesses of the crash. It happened around 2:15 a.m.

HOLD INQUIRY

Coroner Russ Inkster of Nanaimo said today he will hold an inquiry into the fatality but will not hold an inquest.

The deceased was employed at B.C. Forest Products Ltd., pulp mill at Crofton as an apprentice millwright in the maintenance department. He had worked there for five years and his father, Maynard Vanderheide, is also a mill employee.

Two More Libraries On Books

The Greater Victoria Public Library Board is going ahead with plans to open branch libraries in Esquimalt and Oak Bay.

In a letter to city hall, chief librarian Jack Lort says it is hoped to open a branch library in Esquimalt in 1968, a fourth branch in Oak Bay in 1969 and, in 1970, to replace the Bookmobile with a new piece of equipment.

Saanich and Central Saanich have branch libraries operating at present with the main branch operating in Victoria.

In his letter Mr. Lort estimates the 1968 library budget at $640,000 ($4.27 per capita), in 1969 the budget would be $725,000 ($4.85 per capita); 1970, $810,000 ($5.41 per capita) and in 1971 $950,000 or $6.35 per capita.

A further sub-libary is also in the plans for the Mount Tolmie area but Mr. Lort stated that no decision had yet been made as to whether it would be located on the Victoria or Saanich side of the municipal boundary.

GROOS MEETS MAYOR

'Not Sure What Can Be Done'

Officials of 10 shipyard unions met Victoria MP David Groos this morning to discuss the shutdown of the Victoria Machinery Depot shipyard.

Larry Ryan, secretary of the Victoria Labour Council, said at press time the MP was seeing Victoria Mayor Hugh Stephen to try and arrange a meeting of them and VMD president Harold Husband.

This would be a first step, said Mr. Ryan, to try and discuss the reasons behind the shipyard shutdown.

"MORE DETAILS"

Mr. Ryan said the unions "want a more detailed explanation" of Mr. Husband's actions.

"We are concerned about the people who work there and what prospects there are for them," he said.

Shipyard union leaders agreed to contact all federal, provincial and municipal political leaders in this area "enlisting their support and trying to bring about a satisfactory solution."

CALL ON OTHERS

The Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce and "all sectors" of the community will also be called upon for their support.

Mayor Stephen said after meeting Mr. Groos:

"We explored the whole situation but we are still not quite sure just what can be done. All I can say at this time is that my office is open to union representatives who might like to come in and talk about the situation.

"I am ready to do anything that might possibly produce options to the present situation. If anything can be done as a result of discussions with the unions I would be most happy to meet them."

SOCIETY TO FIGHT PROPOSAL

Funeral Association Bill 'Threat to Our Rights'

The Memorial Society of British Columbia vowed Sunday it will fight proposed legislation by undertakers.

In a statement issued after its annual meeting in Vancouver, the society said the bill may curtail its rights and aims.

The president of the B.C. Funeral Service Association, Gar Jennings of Vancouver, said earlier the bill—which may be submitted at the January session of the legislature—is not a threat to the Memorial Society's existence.

He said it aimed to educate undertakers and assure the public of qualified funeral people.

SIX-MAN BOARD

The draft bill would see a six-man board established to make and enforce regulations for the funeral industry.

The chairman would have a casting vote only and of the other five members, "not less than three shall be licensed funeral directors or licensed embalmers."

The board would have power to suspend for cause the licence or permit of any person "for such period and upon such conditions as it deems proper."

The certificate of qualification may be revoked and the licence of permit of any person also revoked for any cause prescribed in regulations.

The Memorial Society of B.C., second largest in North America with more than 15,000 members, aims to provide "low cost funerals for members and to preserve their rights to designate how their remains shall be disposed of," said the statement.

1,400 MEMBERS HERE

Society membership on lower Vancouver Island and Gulf Islands is 1,400, according to local secretary Mrs. Joan Bennett.

A panel of four speakers told more than 400 persons attending the meeting the draft bill "would be a threat to one of the most basic rights that individuals possess, in that it may eventually result in making certain funeral practices such as embalming and cosmetology mandatory."

The four speakers were lawyer Mary Southin, former MLA Dorothy Steeves, union official Bob Clair and MLA Bob Williams. Mrs. Jean Mohart, Vancouver, was re-elected president.

HIGHEST STANDARDS

"The society maintains that all funeral establishments are adequately policed by the department of health and there is no question whatsoever that all undertakers practising in the province are meeting the highest standards," the statement said.

The deputy minister of health, Dr. J. A. Taylor, said today there are no provincial regulations for funeral establishments and whether there are local ones depends on each municipality.

He also said the health department, through regulations on communicable diseases, has "adequate protection" and there was "no particular health hazard" as far as most dead bodies are concerned.

Under the communicable disease regulations, for example, there can be no public funeral if a person dies of smallpox. There are also special arrangements in this case for the handling and embalming of the body.

Other than communicable diseases, he said, "our view is that there is no need for us to be involved."

Asked about the local picture, Greater Victoria medical health officer Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread said:

"There are no regulations but there should be regulations."

He declined further comment.

Four Outlets Return Magazine

"Three or four" magazine sales outlets in Greater Victoria have returned their allotments of the November issue of Playboy to a local distributor.

The retailers indicated they did not want to handle the current issue because of a sequence of photos which show men and women in "compromising positions," a spokesman for the distributor said today.

But J. W. Anderson, the city's senior prosecutor, said that while he had heard references to the sequence, he has received no complaints and was therefore "not officially in the picture."

In Calgary last week the four pages alleged to contain obscene pictures were removed by the distributor before the magazine went on sale and a complete copy was turned over to the prosecutor's office to see whether court action was warranted.

About 5,000 copies of the magazine are sold locally each month, said the spokesman here.

Rolf Plans 'No Disasters'

By TED GASKELL

The time before that there was a big wind which blew in windows and did other damage.

"I plan no disastrous weather this time," he told The Times. "If there's a hurricane, flood or heat wave, don't blame me."

He appears at the McPherson tonight and Tuesday with a two-hour show which includes all his best-known songs, to wobble board accompaniment, and his comedy.

Harris is probably best known for his Tie Me Kangaroo Down, Sport, but it's pretty hard to tie the man himself down.

After his show in Victoria he goes to the Cave in Vancouver for a Nov. 6 appearance. Less than a week later he's at the Palladium in London for his first Royal Command performance. Then it's back to the Cave for another appearance; back to England for a one-and-a-half-hour children's special.

In January he starts a 13-week live series for the BBC in London and as soon as that's over he goes to Australia to make a film about a pet kangaroo.

In his command performance he has a nine-minute spot which will see him lend a Canadian flavor to the show.

He plans to sing "Valse Mathilde," a French version of Waltzling Matilda which he wrote for his Expo appearance.

He'll also sing Tukker Chicken, a comedy-animal noise song and Under the Trees, a new song he has just written which will have its stage debut at the Palladium.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Revamp Recipe Files With Two Small Books

By Penny Saver

It's difficult for me to get organized long enough to spend an afternoon in the kitchen puttering about with my favorite recipes, but the other day I was certain I could arrange it. Having cleared everyone out of nibbling range, the first major disaster I encountered was in finding my recipes. For years I've kept newspaper clippings, scraps of paper, and recipe books in a semi-organized state in a kitchen drawer. On opening my "filing cabinet," I made the mistake of pulling it right out of its compartment and . . . plop . . . three million recipes wafted onto an acre of kitchen floor. Several hours later, still sorting, I remembered a filing system that a neighbor has, and decided it was time I bought one, too.

She keeps her recipes in two separate books — one for clippings from newspapers and magazines, and another for recipes that must be written out. The first of these books is made with loose-leaf paper so that additions can be added. There are separate files for fish and soup, entrees and salads, vegetables, meats and sauces and condiments—a great method of keeping track of your recipes. It is priced at $1.75.

The companion to this book is another loose-leaf folder specifically designed to hold recipe clippings. The same filing categories are included but each page has a place to note where you found the recipe, what it is for and the day you first tried it . . . a great time-saver. This book also contains separate compartments for keeping the clippings until you have time to paste them in. It is priced at $2.25.

One or both of these books containing your favorite recipes would make a perfect Christmas present for a young bride.

If you're like the Saver family you've had several visitors during the summer months who were much impressed by our city. A reminder of Victoria would be a perfect gift to send them. One lovely gift I found is a set of four hardwood trays decorated with a hand-painted dogwood design. Finished with copper handles, these handsome trays come in sizes ranging from 10"x15" to 19"x37". The various sizes are priced at $2.29, $2.95, $3.95 and $4.95. If you buy the nested set of four, which is completely packaged for mailing, it is priced at $12.95. Why not buy a set and use them as individual gifts?

Please give me a call at 382-3131 if you'd like to know where I shopped.

DEAR ABBY . . .

He's Either Sick Or Mule-Stubborn

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a father who refuses to go to his own son's wedding because he doesn't want to get dressed up?

I feel just terrible for my son's sake, and I'm so embarrassed for the girl's people. My husband has always had some pretty weird ideas, but this is one of the worst. He says he won't get dressed up for anybody. I've begged him and begged him, but it hasn't helped.

His attitude is turning a time of joy into a time of tension for all of us. The wedding is a month off. Any suggestions?

NERVOUS MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Yes. Quit begging him. He's either stubborn or sick. If he's stubborn, you won't persuade him in a year. If he's sick you won't cure him in a month. Let him stay home. With his attitude he might embarrass you more if he did you a favor and went to the wedding.

DEAR ABBY: I work in a dime store. This morning I sold 10 tubes of plastic model glue to one boy who looked to be about 16 or 17 years old. I'm sure he wasn't gluing a "Boeing 707" together.

This isn't the first young kid who has bought an unusual quantity of glue lately.

I understand "sniffing glue" is "in" with the teen-agers now. It is supposed to give the sniffer a "cool sensation"—a pleasant light-headedness, and in some cases, hallucinations.

I have also heard that it could have some very serious after effects. If you know anything about this, please put it in your column. I am sure some youngsters don't realize the seriousness of what they're getting into.

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

DEAR BIRMINGHAM: Glue sniffing has been known to cause serious brain damage. And some fatalities have been reported.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Murdoch, 1675 Myrtle Avenue, announce the forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Diane Joan, to Mr. Earl Carl Cunningham, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. I. Grandmother's Locket As Wedding Talisman

Her grandmother's gold locket was the "something old" talisman for Valerie Doreen Arrell when she became the bride of Gordon Harold Galey in Garden City United Church.

Her jewelry accented a semi-fitted gown of peau d'elegance fashioned with front and back yokes and belled sleeves of Chantilly lace. A pleated cathedral train of the same lace swept back from the yoke, complemented by a lace pill box headpiece studded with pearls which held an illusion net veil. She carried a cascade bouquet of yellow roses and white chrysanthemums with ivy.

Decorations in a harvest theme decorated the church, with tall standards of white and gold chrysanthemums edged in ivy, when Rev. H. R. Whitmore heard vows uniting the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carlyle A. Arrell, 559 Whiteside Street, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald G. Galey, 4818 Cordova Bay Road. Mr. Arrell gave his daughter in marriage.

Mrs. R. Powell was the organist, accompanying Miss Robin Powell who sang "The Lord Is My Shepherd" during the signing of the register.

Mrs. Dave Gallard was matron of honor and Miss Marilyn Holmes was maid of honor while the Misses Debbie Sampson, the bride's cousin, and Shirley McQuarrie were bridesmaids. They wore matching gowns of deep turquoise peau d'elegance, styled on empire lines and trimmed with bands of lace at the hemlines. Self-fabric rosettes at the back waistline complemented their toning bow and tulle headpieces. They carried cascade bouquets of yellow and white chrysanthemums.

Little Jennifer Collishaw, the bride's cousin, was flower girl wearing a similar gown and carrying a basket of gold and white chrysanthemums.

At the reception following in the Tally-Ho Travelodge a three-tier wedding cake, made by the bride's mother and grandmother, centred the head table which was covered with a cloth embroidered by Mrs. L. D. Fricks, the bride's great-aunt. Robert D. Sampson proposed the toast to his niece.

Gold Flowers For Ceremony

Baskets of gold chrysanthemums decorated St. Patrick's Church for the candlelight service conducted by Rev. W. Ratchford when Linda Jane O'Connor became the bride of Brian Vernon Wesley.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a taffeta and lace gown styled on empire lines with a matching coat that swept back en train. She carried a bouquet of yellow talisman roses.

Miss Patricia Rourke, Vancouver, and Miss Mary Lu Moreau were senior bridesmaids and Miss Valerie Wesley, the groom's cousin, was junior bridesmaid. The senior attendants wore matching gowns of beige lace over gold taffeta, styled on A-lines, and Miss Wesley wore a similar gown of beige lace over green taffeta. They carried bouquets of gold chrysanthemums.

At the reception following in the Uplands Golf Club a three-tier wedding cake centred the head table and baskets of fall-toned chrysanthemums decorated the room. W. G. O'Connor proposed the toast to his niece and Gerald Sullivan acted as master of ceremonies.

For travelling on honeymoon to the mainland, the bride chose a two-piece coat and dress ensemble in a multi-toned woven wool which she accented with black accessories.

On their return they will make their home at 577 Hampshire Road.

A Beauty Hint

Margaret Merril advises that it is quite simple for every woman to promote an English countryside complexion. Her hint to gain a peaches-and-cream loveliness is to damp a cloth with cold water from your refrigerator and press it over your face for a few minutes once or twice a day. Then, to hold the good of the complexion - beautifying cold water, smooth on tropical oil of Olay. This oil is rather scarce and expensive, but your drug store should be able to get you a supply.

Novel Money Tree

A diamond wedding anniversary of interest here was celebrated in Chilliwack recently when Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. House of that city received a novel money tree, made of 60 silver dollars collected by friends and relatives in many parts of Canada. The couple was married on October 4, 1907, in New Street Baptist Church, Burton-on-Trent, England. They've lived in Chilliwack for 2½ years, settling there after living in Nanaimo where Mr. House was an organizer for the Social Credit party for many years. They have four children, Clarence, Edward, both of Victoria; Mrs. Arthur (Kathleen) Wilson, Chilliwack, and Mrs. Gordon (Noreen) Holmwood, Richmond. There are four grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Congratulatory messages were received from Queen Elizabeth II, Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson, His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor, Premier W. A. C. Bennett, Mr. Earle C. Westwood, agent general for British Columbia in London; Mr. H. J. Bruch, MLA; Hon. Dan Campbell, minister of municipal affairs; Rev. and Mrs. Chris Jack of New Westminster.

Mr. House is a veteran of the Boer War, served with the 141st Battalion in the First World War, and is a 30-year member of the Royal Canadian Legion. He is a life member of No. 4, British Columbia Employees Association. Both he and his wife have been active church workers and are now members of Chilliwack United Church.

A New You

by Emily Wilkens

Homemade, good-enough-to-eat cosmetics are scarcely new. From the time women began creating recipes to satisfy the inner woman (or man), they devised ways to use the same ingredients to embellish the outer self.

Today, many well-known beauty treatments are concocted with products borrowed from the pantry shelf or refrigerator. Best of all, you don't have to be a Cordon Bleu chef to "cook up" such beauty specials as these:

Apricots: Soak a cup of dried apricots in water; mix with a handful of grapes and a little skim milk powder; whirl in a blender.

If you don't eat this luscious concoction first, pat on face and neck; after 10 or 15 minutes, rinse with cool water. Makes a "delicious" facial mask to use instead of a nourishing cream.

Avocado: Peel and whirl in a blender with a bit of skim milk powder for a skin beautifying facial. Apply to face and neck. Leave on 10 or 15 minutes. Rinse off with cool water.

Buttermilk: An excellent astringent-toner. Apply liberally and let dry—about 10 minutes. Rinse off with cool water.

Cornmeal Plus Oatmeal: Half and half mixed together can be utilized as a refreshing and refining treatment for skin. Add hot water to make a paste.

Apply to the face while still hot (avoiding area around eyes). When almost dry to the touch, massage off gently with fingers. Rinse with cool water followed by astringent. A once-a-week pepper-upper.

Eggs: Make a super shampoo for shining up and reviving abused hair by beating up six eggs with a jigger of rum. Massage into scalp. Rinse, rinse, rinse with warm (NOT HOT) water.

Honey: Beat the white of an egg until stiff; fold in a teaspoon of honey. Pat on face and neck (avoid area around eyes).

When it begins to draw (about five to 10 minutes), rinse with cool water. This is a honey of a beautifying mask.

Lemons: Put a shine in light hair after a shampoo by rinsing with the strained juice of one lemon mixed into one cup of water. A helpful final rinse.

Mayonnaise: Makes a good dry hair conditioner. Scoop up a generous handful and work into your hair. Wrap a hot towel around your head for 15 minutes. Use two soapings and plenty of rinsing after this.

Milk: May be used to wash the face twice a day. For a dry complexion, add a bit of melted butter. Some girls swear by this "milky cleanser."

Tea: Wet teabags with cold, cold water and place on your eyes for 10 or 15 minutes. This will reduce puffiness and relax your eyes at the same time . . . you'll be prettier for the party.

Vegetable Oil: Fresh sunflower, soy, safflower, cottonseed, or corn oil are good all-purpose oils for allover skin beauty. Use a few drops of rosewater (available in drug stores) to scent these natural wonders.

Yogurt: Can help soothe sunburn or windburn.

JUST FOR YOU: Buy a collection of attractive bottles in convenient sizes to fill with vegetable oil, honey and other aids so you can always have a special supply for cosmetic purposes.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Lowman

By now everyone who reads, or listens to his doctor, knows that regular physical exercise is of the greatest importance in promoting health and delaying the aging process. Therefore, more and more people are beginning to exercise as they haven't done before.

Inactivity speeds deterioration and it seems that more folks die from rusting out and the diseases which lack of exercise promote, than from vigorous exercise. Because of this great increase of interest in exercise it seems to be a good idea to discuss some of the misconceptions about it.

One is that you cannot begin exercise after 40. Of course, the ideal and most rewarding time to begin is in your 20s, but if you are in your 40s, 50s or 60s, and have neglected yourself, you can still profit greatly by daily, planned exercise. Naturally, these must be fitted to your individual condition. You will have to start slowly and build up gradually.

Dr. Thomas K. Cureton, Jr., professor of physical education at the University of Illinois, has had many in these age groups and older who have profited by exercising at his famous Fitness Centre. I remember vividly a member of one of my classes who was in her 70s. She was more active than many younger women.

If you are new to exercise, it is essential that you have a checkup by your physician. Then start with very easy exercises and stop before you are the least bit tired.

Another misconception is that exercise will be more helpful if done at a certain time of day. This is not so. It will be just as helpful no matter what time of day or night you do it except that you should not exercise too soon after meals.

Also, do not jump out of bed in the morning and begin strenuous exercise. Stretch and twist a few moments while you awaken, before you get out of bed. Then walk about the room slowly for a while, gradually increasing your pace until you are walking rather briskly. This protects your heart. Then begin your exercises.

Women Become Hags

BELLEVUE, Wash. (AP) — Forty housewives in this Seattle suburb will band together Tuesday in a brokendown shack this Halloween to terrify children in the name of charity.

It's an annual spoof on spooks sponsored by the Overlake Service League, 500 women who have been using their wits to raise money for good causes since 1911.

In this case, the project involves turning housewives into hags, putting them in squalid houses and charging people 25 cents each to see them. Last year, 18,000 paid and the league raised $5,000 for impoverished families.

The first problem was to find a house with potential and no price tag. This year's seven-room specimen was donated by a contractor who eventually will rip down the building.

Armed with hammers, saws and crowbars, the women have made a few basic modifications — like turning a second-storey window into the front door. The stairway was built by another contractor.

Cataract Operation Not Risky

By DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

In a year I get scores of letters from elderly people who are much alarmed because their eye specialist, after looking in with his little scope, said, "You have beginning cataracts." Then, perhaps because he had 15 people in his waiting room, he showed his frightened patient to the door.

Alvarez

This is such a bad habit we physicians are now developing. As I must keep saying here, we should always stop for a minute to explain away the great fear our bold statement has put into the patient's mind.

Commonly, the person with the "beginning cataracts" writes me, and asks such questions as, "Wil I be blind? If so, how soon will I be blind? Can I be operated on at the age of 65? Will the operation be dangerous? Will it be painful? Will I be able to read again?"

Naturally, I cannot answer all of these questions, because I do not know what stage of cataract formation the doctor saw and I do not know the complicating factors which can make a great difference from person to person as to how serious the situation is.

I don't know, for example, if the person has a familiar tendency to form oataracts; I do not know if he is a diabetic, which would make the diagnosis much more serious; and I cannot guess how fast or how slow the cataract formation will be. Also, I do not know how healthy the retina is (the retina is the seeing part of the back of the eye).

What is a cataract, anyhow? It is a clouding up or frosting over of the lens in the eye — so that it is no longer like clear glass. If I were to talk to the eye specialist who diagnosed "beginning cataracts," he might say, "I didn't mean to worry that person, because all he has are a few white specks on the backs of his lenses; for all I know, the specks may never go on to damage the lens and produce cataracts."

If tomorrow my able ophthalmologist were to tell me I had signs of "beginning cataracts," I would not get too anxious. I would know that an operation, in which the frosted lenses are removed, can be performed quickly and painlessly with local anesthesia.

Sometimes, when I see a healthy and active woman of 70 almost blind with cataracts, I have to go to bat to convince her children that she ought to be operated on. They have been saying to her, "Mother, you are too old for an operation," but I say, "No, the operation is not at all serious.

ASK ANDY

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a World Book Atlas.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Gayle L. Smith, age 10, of Nashville, Tennessee, for her question:

What was the first musical instrument?

Our earliest ancestors had an ear for music. They heard rhythms in pattering raindrops and tunes in whispering winds. They tapped their toes and whistled with the music of nature. They invented drums, pipes and lyres before the dawn of history.

Music is a part of human history, and every young student knows that history is an unfolding story of progress. Civilization begins when people invent writing and learn to report their doings for future generations. Early communities improve themselves and their way of life step by patient step. And we know that some societies advanced far ahead of others. The people of ancient Egypt and Babylon, Greece and China were highly civilized when most of our human ancestors were still wandering barbarians. History is a hodgepodge because some peoples learn faster than others. We must tackle this hodge-podge to trace back to the first musical instrument.

An investigation of this sort, strange to say, begins in the present and, of all things, with the most ordinary fellow alive. He may be tone deaf and unable to carry a tune. But you can bet your boots that he has an ear for music and learned to use it long before they invented writing. The art of music was born before the arts of drawing and modelling. We have no reports of the first music or the first musical instruments because they are older than history.

Stresses Rhythm

But we can use what we know of the present and of early history to guess what they were like. Most experts suspect that percussion instruments were invented by our very earliest ancestors. Perhaps they used hollow logs as drums to tap out messages to each other before they invented enough words to make a language. The art of music was the first form of human communication and it began with the rhythm of drums and percussion instruments.

We can trace this pattern in the modern world, for certain peoples are just beginning their long climb to civilization. Their music stresses rhythm. In parts of Africa, the barefooted children can tap different rhythms with each hand—four beats with one hand and three with the other. The bushmen of Australia sing a few monotonous notes to repeat the same rhythm. Like our earliest ancestors, these primitive people are starting their musical history with an assortment of drums and rhythmical percussion instruments. Long before men learned to write, they played tunes on reedy pipes and pinged melodies on the stringed lyres.

Proof of the first musical instrument is forever lost in the dim past. But we know that the Egyptians of 6,000 years ago had a large assortment of pipes, trumpets and other wind instruments and also harps, lyres and other stringed instruments. They sang in choirs and marched to drums. And they left us elaborate pictures of their instruments and musicians. A beautiful lyre made 4,500 years ago was unearthed in ancient Babylon. The Greeks left statues of Pan playing on the reedy pipes of a syrinx. The ancient Chinese left pictures of graceful ladies playing lutes and harps, cymbals and flutes and an instrument somewhat like a xylophone.

Andy sends a 14" World Book Globe to Arthur Neal Cole, age 7, of Navasota, Texas, for his question:

What does the word satellite actually mean?

Many words like satellite are borrowed from older languages. They once had slightly different meanings and we have changed them to suit the changing times. The ancestor of satellite was a Latin word used by the ancient Romans. It meant a person who was an attendant, someone who depended upon the good will of some other powerful personage. We do not often use the word in this way nowadays, but we still may. It is possible to call the follower of a renowned teacher or the attendant of a powerful governor a satellite. But this is the Space Age and we have a far better use for the word.

To most of us, a satellite is a heavenly body that attends and depends upon another heavenly body. The important personage in the partnership is always a planet. The satellite orbits around the planet and depends upon the pull of its more powerful gravity to keep it from sailing off into space. Our moon is the earth's only natural satellite. It has belonged to our planet since time began. But the Space Age began with launching man-made satellites and now the moon no longer is alone.

Opening lead—♣Q

Oswald: "North and South bid beautifully. North tried to get to game, and South looked at his 12 high card points and quit at three—which is all he could make."

Jim: "Actually South made an overtrick and asked me whether he or his partner should have bid the game."

Oswald: "Where did the defense slip—or am I overlooking something?"

Jim: "You haven't overlooked anything. The defense did slip. South won the club lead with his ace, ruffed a club, returned to his hand with the ace of hearts, led his last club and ruffed with dummy's ten. East overruffed and led a trump. South was in dummy with the ace of trumps. He cashed the ace of diamonds and led a second diamond. East clattered up with the king to drop his partner's queen, and the jack of diamonds became the tenth trick for declarer."

Oswald: "East's play of the diamond king is typical of what I call rubber bridge carelessness. East could see that declarer was sure of his contract and had lost interest. A duplicate player would still be worrying about overtricks, and a good duplicate player would have seen that he had nothing to gain by playing his king of diamonds and would have let the trick ride around to his partner's queen."

Jim: "A really good duplicate player would. I am not certain that the same play wouldn't occur at some tables if this hand were played in duplicate."

The Man From U.N.C.L.E., the program which started the James Bond era on television, is about at the end of its tether. As usual, ratings are given as the reason.

The question of the program's future is being discussed very frankly by officials of NBC-TV.

According to the industry, the show was a victim of too many schedule changes. This year the show was slipped into a new slot opposite a dynamite lineup of programs on CBS-TV. The competitors are Gunsmoke and Lucille Ball.

The network has also cancelled Accidental Family, a half-hour series with Jerry Van Dyke as a nightclub comedian with a family on a farm.

ABC-TV is reported to be planning to cancel Iron Horse with Dale Robertson.

CBS-TV has already done in Dundee and the Culhane, the John Mills western.

In the last three cases, the programs were up against movies. It shows that movies and specials are definitely instrumental in knocking the pins out from under series in the ratings battle.

There is even strong feeling that there may soon be seven network movies every week, in other words, on every night. Monday is at present the only night without one.

A quick look at the pr am guide and it's easy to see that Channel 9, the educational outlet from the University of Washington, is the only one offering good fare. Unfortunately, it is not available to viewers on cable.

Victoria Cablevision manager Les Curran says the decision to carry the channel lies with the Board of Broadcast Governors. An application has been before it for some months and a decision, one way or the other, expected soon.

SHORT CIRCUIT: Former Saanich councillor and one-time Victoria radio personality, Tippy O'Neill, is back in the broadcast business in the northern interior. Tippy is running a disc show for CKPG, Prince George.

FERNWOOD DUPLEX
$615 CASH MAY HANDLE

In discussing the exterior aspects of the premises it would perhaps have been desirable to use language a little more delicate and polished — yet the dictates of conscience demand that the visual impact be ADEQUATELY DESCRIBED. Since the English language does not appear to offer an alternative that will do the job in its entirety, we are driven, albeit with some hesitancy, to sacrifice considerations of finesse on the altar of truth by saying flatly that

IT LOOKS LIKE HELL

True, the owner has spent money on this property — but he has spent it where it doesn't show. It has been REWIRED WITH SEPARATE METERS. There is NEW COPPER PIPING. There is an OIL PACKAGE HEATING SYSTEM. The building is of sound construction and it has a lot that is a little bigger than average. But the EXTERIOR is rather badly in need of a major facelifting job. What the situation calls for is YOUR imagination, initiative and ambition and Government cash from the coffers of C.M. and H.C.

AVOID THIS PITFALL IN SELLING YOUR HOME
Too many home owners try to sell their homes themselves. "Why pay 5% when I can do it myself." The owner also does his own evaluating . . . usually asks more than the property is worth. "I can always come down later" he says. In most cases rejects early reasonable offers then ends up accepting less than market value. List your home with

MAN OF MANY PARTS

Ex-Seabee to Play South Pacific Lead

DUNCAN — The man chosen to play the romantic lead in Duncan Music Club's production of "South Pacific" actually served with the U.S. Navy in the Philippines.

Graham Harper was attached to the famous Seabees (construction battalion) around whose adventures the musical story is based.

He is an American who fled the smog and traffic of Los Angeles to become a hay farmer on Vancouver Island.

Mr. Harper, who did nothing more than sing in a Gilbert and Sullivan chorus line before coming to Canada, is also rehearsing a leading part in a Duncan Drama Club production.

RESTORE FORTUNES?

Enid Bagnold's "Chalk Garden" is the play which president Brian Lawrance hopes will restore the flagging fortunes of the drama club.

Sandra Bell is the play's leading lady.

It will be presented at Mount Prevost School auditorium Nov. 16, 17 and 18.

Bill Bennett will direct the production and other members of the cast are Joanne De Leeuw, Jean McLure, Joan Bennett, Mary Bowen, Susan Mawby and Brian Lawrance.

Born and raised in Oklahoma, he moved to Los Angeles during the war years.

He was an oil company secretary before moving west and then in turn went into business on his own account as a pottery manufacturer and shredded paper pad maker. The war years he spent in the navy.

In 1963 he had had enough of Los Angeles and came to Vancouver Island to get away from "too many people, too much traffic, too much smog."

HAY FARMER

Never afraid to tackle something new he is now a farmer and doing very well with hay crops which he sells locally.

He was interviewed while putting the finishing touches to the interior of a house which he has built single-handed on his own property.

Richmond Girl Outruns Best From U.S.

Penny Shanks came first in the cross-country championship despite competition from a U.S. track team that included Linda Iddings, holder of her country's 880-yard record, and Barbara Johnson, U.S. holder of the 440-yard title.

They were members of the Angels Track Club of Renton, Wash., which won the team trophy Saturday.

Complete results: Midget girls, one and a half miles: 1, Joan Dyke, Richmond, 9.05.4; 2, Judy Evans, Vancouver Olympic Club; 3, Sheila Hutcheon, Richmond.

Midget boys, two and a half miles: 1, Tom Mills, Richmond, 13,45.6; Mike Lonergan, Vancouver Optimist Striders; 3, Angus Grant, Vancouver Olympic Club.

Juvenile girls, one and a half miles: 1, Penny Shanks, Richmond, 8.47.4; 2, Linda Iddings; 3, Helga Hofler, Richmond.

MERGER 'MODEL FOR OTHERS'

The twin cities of Alberni and Port Alberni united Saturday night to become British Columbia's fifth-largest city, with 19,000 inhabitants.

Premier W. A. C. Bennett congratulated municipal officials at ceremonies marking the amalgation. He added that provincial per capita grants will not be affected—good news for the new city's financial experts.

The premier said his government will continue the policy of per capita grants in all future amalgamations.

Port Alberni will hold its position as the fifth-largest city in B.C. for only a week. Kamloops and North Kamloops in the interior merge next week to drop the new Vancouver Island centre to sixth place.

Port Alberni was the bigger of the two communities, with 14,000 residents prior to amalgamation. Alberni contributed another 5,000 inhabitants.

The two Albernis chose amalgamation in a plebiscite in 1964. The move had unanimous support from both municipal councils at that time and was approved by an overwhelming 94 per cent of Alberni voters, and 78 per cent of those who voted in Port Alberni.

Mayor Les Hammer of Port Alberni will be interim mayor of the new city until municipal elections in December. Mayor Fred Bishop of Alberni will be deputy mayor.

Provincial government officials hailed the amalgamation as a model for other closely situated and interdependent B.C. communities to follow.

The actual union of the two cities took place at 8 p.m. Saturday in a tumultuous ceremony at the senior secondary school which was crammed for the occasion.

More than 1,300 officials, guests, dignitaries, civic leaders and residents attended the 2½-hour ceremony in the school auditorium.

Honorary Fire Chief

James A. S. Yates, descendant of the pioneer family that gave its name to Yates Street, has been made honorary chief of Langford volunteer fire department.

Mr. Yates, a long-time fire buff, donated the property on which Langford fire hall now stands, and has for years maintained keen interest in the work of the volunteers.

His home has been tt 2780 Millstream, at the rear of the fire hall, but he and Mrs. Yates will move from there shortly to live in White Rock.

Bamberton Plant Taking Slag

CROFTON—Mountains of slag that have lain untouched for 50 years along the waterfront here are finally being moved.

Authorities for years have been trying to get rid of about one million tons of copper slag that were dumped on the beaches by the Crofton smelter in the early years of this century.

Now a market has opened for the slag at the Bamberton Cement plant and truckloads are being moved to barges for the trip down-Island.

Ladysmith Paper First

A $250 award for second place in the journalism competition sponsored by MacMillan Bloedel Ltd. has been won by Lance Whittaker, publisher of the Oak Bay Leader.

The company offered $500, $250 and two $100 awards in the competition open to the weekly press of B.C.

Mr. Whittaker's series dealt with the public works budget of the Oak Bay municipality.

Lesser awards were won by Mrs. Rose Tatlow, editor of the Squamish Times, and Will Dobson, editor of the Cowichan Leader.

Police Capture Two Escapers

Two prisoners who escaped from William Head prison late Thursday night were captured shortly after noon Saturday by Colwood RCMP.

Lloyd Caton, 27, and Douglas Farmer, 31, were picked up on the Lagoon Road causeway by the Esquimalt Lagoon.

Police said they were still wearing prison garb.

Lot of Enthusiasm For Team Teaching

Over 100 principals and vice-principals attending a seminar Saturday heard a visiting educator say there is tremendous interest and enthusiasm locally for educational improvements.

Mrs. Doris Cook made the comment during the day-long workshop at the Institute of Adult Studies. She is a member of the Research and Development Centre at the University of Wisconsin's school of education and an expert on team teaching.

Mrs. Cook had been consulting in the Victoria area for a week after being brought here by the Sooke, Saanich and Greater Victoria school boards.

Under discussion at the seminar were "practical guidelines for inovation and change."

Team teaching involves two or more teachers in the cooperative instruction of varying classes. In some cases one teacher will deliver a major lesson to the combined classes and then smaller groups will meet to discuss the subject, guided by the rest of the teaching team.

Already being tried in Greater Victoria, its advantages are a pooling of teacher thinking and talent, better organization and flexibility of classes and an opportunity for in experienced teachers to see veterans in action.

Mrs. Cook said when two teachers are instructing in the same course and there are no drawbacks to a large class, it makes sense to free one instructor for deeper research on the course.

Orion 67 'Wonderful Experience'

All members of the Canadian Scottish Regiment (Princess Mary's), they are Pte. Roy Stevenson, 3008 Oakdowne; Cpl. David Moran, 193 Clio, and Cpl. David Spaven, 1161 Bewdley.

They were chosen, along with 330 other young Canadians, to take part in Orion 67, a militia contingent which went to Soest, Westphalia, for exercises with the 4th Canadian Infantry Brigade.

Also taking part in the exercises were British, Belgian and German troops, divided into friendly and hostile forces.

"We lived mainly on hard rations and we didn't have much sleep," Pte. Stevenson said. "But living outside all that time was easier than we expected it would be."

The three militiamen stayed at Fort York with the Royal Canadian Regiment's Second Battalion; but during leaves they visited famous landmarks in France, Belgium and Holland.

Third Time Bid Rejected

The vote was 135 in favor and 221 against.

It was the third time that voters have made this decision and it was also the last chance they will have to vote themselves into the city.

Government regulations will require that any future move for amalgamation will require the assent of Campbell River voters.

American Matador

MADRID (AP) — John Fulton Short, 35, of Philadelphia, was invested a full-fledged matador at Las Ventas Bullring during a bullfight Sunday. He was the only American raised to matador rank in the Spanish bullrings and the second to perform at Madrid's arena. Sidney Franklin of New York fought in Madrid 22 years ago.

'Remote Areas Could Use Libraries in the Schools'

The Vancouver Island Regional Library Board has under discussion a proposal to open public library services in schools.

Fred White, head of the regional library with headquarters in Nanaimo, said today the suggestion was made by some school boards because many schools lacked adequate supplies of books.

Librarians, at a meeting held recently, criticized school libraries for their lack of books and trained staffs.

In some cases, they said, libraries did not have books related to the school work of pupils.

"The subject is a controversial one," said Mr. White, "but I see some merit of opening public libraries in isolated communities which have no buildings to accommodate a public service."

Jordan River and Port Renfrew were examples, he said.

Robert Davison, secretary of the Public Library Commission, also disclosed that Vancouver next year is scheduled to place public library books in a secondary school as a pilot project.

The library would be opened to pupils from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. and to adults from 3:30 to 9 p.m.

While some librarians endorsed placing public libraries in isolated rural communities, they were strongly opposed to the scheme being expanded to take in urban school systems.

"In 1950-53 we did have some libraries in some schools, but it didn't work out because school boards then didn't like to have employees who were not directly under their control," he said.

Isabelle Goodwin, head of the public library's children's department, who has made a study of the proposal, said it would be a retrograde step if the policy was adopted.

"Toronto tried it, but it didn't work out," she said.

School boards instead should establish a book centre where books are processed and selected for school libraries, she said. Teachers, of course, would have a say on the selections.

Boards should also see that the libraries are staffed with trained personnel," she added. "The practice of using custodians to operate libraries is not good enough—the work is too specialized."

She said Toronto and Calgary have adopted such a system.

Father-Son Team Wins Gusty Race

Blustering westerly winds across Cadboro Bay played havoc with Victoria's frostbite fleet Saturday and many yachts capsized in the gusts.

But the Fireball fleet put on two races, both won by the father and son team of Rob and Dr. Bill Thompson.

Thirteen cruising boats of Royal Victoria Yacht Club had good sailing breezes in a race from Sidney to Bedwell Harbor—a distance of about 15 miles.

Peter Coombs' Doxy II won the race followed by Don Lawson's Tepah and Fred Gardener's Shis Yen. John Malleson's Swallow led the way back on Sunday. Doxy II was second and Shih Yen third.

WINTER SERIES

The first winter series race for this group gets under way at 11 a.m. next Sunday. Course will start off Armstrong Point.

RCNSA's Sunday sailing fleet was somewhat reduced. Club members were involved in a work party to repair damage done to floats in last weekend's storm.

Races were sailed in light winds. Big winner was Jill Spear, with four firsts in the El Toro Division. Second places were garnered by Mike Sharpe, Bill Whitby, Harold Grant, and Bis Whitby.

Other RCNSA results:

SUNDAY BURIAL FOR VICTIMS OF INSECTICIDE

ARCADIA, Fla. (AP) — Seven young victims of insecticide poisoning were buried Sunday after a $2,000 funeral.

James Richardson, 32, father of the children, sobbed during the service. His wife, Annie Mae, 29, stared blankly at the semi-circle of coffins.

Undertaker Eugene Hixson said the costs of the funeral, including five hearses and burial plots, was $2,000. About half that amount has been donated to a fund.

IN OKANAGAN

Lake Eyed As Health Hazard

KELOWNA (CP) — South Okanagan health officials have started a survey to determine whether water in Skaha Lake is affecting the health of people around it.

Dr. D. A. Clarke, said the area health unit began the survey after a high incidence of complaints last summer from people who swim in the lake or use it as a water supply.

He said that at one point more than 100 persons complained of diarrhea and stomach cramps. Others have complained of earaches and dermatitis, a skin disease.

"It's said that one pharmacist has prescribed for 500 persons suffering from earaches but we haven't been able to check the accuracy of this report yet," he said.

The unit is trying to contact about 2,000 persons who either reside around the lake, located south of Penticton, or have summer homes there.

Dr. Clarke said he believes the increase in sickness is directly related to an increase in toxic algae in the lake.

He blamed phosphate detergents, which make up a large part of Penticton's sewage, for the growth of the algae. The sewage is dumped in the lake.

Meatcutters Vote Tonight On Pay Hike

More than 100 meatcutters at about 20 supermarkets in the Victoria area vote tonight on a conciliation board report.

Union members in the Vancouver area voted Sunday and the result was 474-to-1 to reject the recommendations of the non-binding report, which was not signed by the union's nominee.

The majority conciliation board report recommended a wage increase of 40 cents an hour over two years and no change in hours of work.

The Amalgamated Meatcutters and Butcher Workmen of North America wanted an extra $1 an hour in a one-year contract plus a four-day 36-hour work week in place of the present five days and 40 hours.

Settlement with the chain stores provides the pattern for department stores. The union holds separate but identical contracts with the chain stores.

Next step is expected to be a strike vote, with bargaining either before but more likely after such a vote.

THE END of Expo 67 about to be symbolized by the dying of the flame behind him, Governor-General Michener waits to make his declaration that the fair is officially over at special closing ceremonies in Place des Nations Sunday. (CP Wirephoto.)

50 MILLION MEMORIES

Tears, Smiles Bring Great Fair to End

By DAVE MacDONALD

MONTREAL (CP)—An unaccustomed stillness lay over Expo's 1,000-acre site Sunday night a few hours after the 1967 worlds' fair came to an end.

Blackness cloaked most of 74 pavilions that for six months rang to laughter, chatter and tears.

In 185 days Expo admitted 50,306,648—a record for fairs of this type and duration.

Expo's probable $250,000,000 deficit will be paid 50 per cent by the federal government, 37½ per cent by the Quebec provincial government and 12½ per cent by the Montreal municipal government.

The highlight of Expo's last day was an official ceremony held in the Place des Nations, an open amphitheatre on St. Helen's Island.

A crowd of 15,000 gave Montreal's Mayor Jean Drapeau a tremendous ovation as he gave his thanks.

There was a subdued air and general disappointment that the fair was over.

Montrealer Liliane Azar said, "I feel as though someone has died."

About 1,500 police and security men were able to clear the site without the last-minute looting feared by officials.

The last visitor was admitted at 2 p.m. and the day's admission total was 221,554.

Mr. Michener received a 21-gun salute and 100 men of the Royal 22nd Regiment presented arms while the British and Canadian national anthems were played and his personal standard was raised.

Expo visitors, who had been told they were barred from the ceremony, were pleased when security men let them flock to the terraces.

Within 30 minutes the crowd

UN Split On Mideast Peace Plan

By WILLIAM N. OATIS

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The 10 non-permanent members of the UN Security Council, split between two proposals, tried today to agree on a plan the council could adopt to send a peacemaker to the Arabs and Israelis.

One major difference was over wording of instructions to the proposed UN special representative concerning withdrawal of Israeli troops from captured Arab lands.

A Canadian-Danish draft said no state in the area should "persist in refusing to withdraw" troops that are on another's territory against its will.

A resolution submitted by Argentina, Brazil, Ethiopia, India, Mali and Nigeria said the Israelis should withdraw either "to positions they held on June 4"—the day before the war began—or "from all the territories occupied as a result of the recent conflict." The phrase to be used depended on final instruction some of the delegates receive from their governments.

DATE IN QUESTION

DAMASCUS— Damascus radio reported that four Israeli planes flew over Syria today and that one of them was shot down in a brief air battle with Syrian planes south of Damascus.

It was the first incident reported on the Israeli-Syrian front in days although Israeli troops have exchanged fire repeatedly with Egyptian and Jordanian forces.

BRUSH FIRES FORCE THOUSANDS TO FLEE

ORANGE, Calif. (UPI)—Brush fires exploded across Southern California today, charring more than 60,000 acres, destroying more than 50 expensive homes and forcing thousands of residents to flee.

The worst of the fires, a 28,000-acre blaze raging in heavily populated areas of Orange County, was declared a major disaster by state officials. A fire spokesman said the blaze was "burning like hell" with no hope of control while the high winds continued to blow.

CANADIANS WARNED

Price Growth 'Too Rapid'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canada has unparalleled opportunities to grow but must dampen down the price and cost pressures which are running ahead of their U.S. counterparts, Arthur Smith, new chairman of the Economic Council of Canada, said today.

There have been recent indications that the pace of over-all expansion "may now be quickening somewhat again," after a period of moderation in growth during the last part of 1966 and first part of 1967, he said.

He spoke to a combined meeting of the Vancouver Board of Trade and the Canadian Club of Vancouver. It was one of his first major speeches since taking over chairmanship of the council from John J. Deutsch, now at Queen's University, Kingston, Ont.

Mr. Smith said that in the 1960s, Canada's employment grew more than in any other industrial country. Total volume of output rose faster than any country except Japan.

But growth in productivity and living standards in Canada has not been as great as in many other countries.

By 1980, Mr. Smith said, the Canadian labor force is ex-

VMD Study By Ottawa —Marchand

(See stories Page 19)

OTTAWA — Manpower minister Jean Marchand told Parliament today his department will look into the closure of Victoria Machinery Depot.

The shipbuilding and repair business has been sold to Burrard Dry Dock Co. of North Vancouver.

Marchand said he hoped to be able to make a report to Parliament either Tuesday or Wednesday.

Harold Winch (NDP—Vancouver East) got the answer after he asked what Marchand—whose department deals with replacement and retraining of workers—was doing about the layoffs of skilled men at VMD.

Winch and Ron Basford (Liberal—Vancouver Burrard) had teamed up in efforts to get answers from Transport Minister Paul Hellyer but were cut off by Speaker Lucien Lamoureux, who ruled the questions could not be asked at this time.

Major Step To Moon Landing

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet Union announced it launched an earth satelilte today that carried out an automatic docking procedure with another satellite sent up Friday.

It was the first automatic docking procedure ever carried out, although the U.S. has carried out manned docking experiments.

Tass news agency said satellite Cosmos 188 was launched today and made a successful rendezvous with Cosmos 186, launched last Friday.

The announcement said the "rigidly coupled" satellites are continuing their joint orbital flight, according to telemetry radioed from the project. It reported all equipment functioning normally.

Tass said television cameras on board the sputniks took pictures of the linkup and radioed them back to earth.

Tass told how the launching was carried out:

"After Cosmos 188 went into orbit, both sputniks, equipped with special approach systems and docking units, carried out a number of complicated manoeuvres in space, automatically finding each other, drawing closer, berthing and docking rigidly.

"The processes of seeking each other, approaching and docking were carried out with the help of special radio-technical means and on-board computers."

Official Denies Manned 'Spectacular'

The spectacular docking achievement followed only by a few hours an official denial from Russia's top scientific expert that the Russians planned a space spectacular involving passengers in the near future.

There were widespread rumors the Russians would pull off a major space achievement involving cosmonauts in time for the 50th anniversary celebrations of the Bolshevik revolution Nov. 7.

Mstislav Keldysh, the space head, said Western observatories were wrong in speculating the recent rash of Cosmos launchings—five in the past week alone—were dress rehearsals for manned flights.

"We have other objectives in mind," he said.

As he spoke the Russians carried out one of those objectives—the docking procedure which is a must for future manned flights in space. The announcement gave the Russians another jump in the race for the moon.

At 12:20 p.m. (1:20 a.m. PST) as Keldysh spoke to reporters the two Cosmos satellites linked, Tass said.

After the docking the two sputniks continued to fly together around the earth at altitudes ranging between 124 and 171 miles, Tass said. They circled the earth once every 88 to 97 minutes at an angle to the earth of 51.7 degrees.

They were following roughly the same orbit as that of Soyuz I, Russia's last manned spaceship, which ended in disaster last April when it crash-landed, killing its cosmonaut, Vladimir Komraov.

Tass said the dockings cleared the way for the building of space platforms in orbits. The Soviets plan to use these platforms to launch probes to the moon and the planets.

The linkup gave the Russians a new 50th anniversary present to go with another unmanned triumph Oct. 18—the soft landing of a space station on the surface of the planet Venus.

Clemency Sought

Bride Held Hostage, Shot by Ex-Suitor

CLEVELAND (AP)—A disappointed suitor shot himself to death today after wounding a young bride he held captive at gunpoint since Saturday night in his third-floor suburban apartment, police said.

Robert Batch, 23, was dead on arrival in hospital, a bullet wound in his heart.

Lida Caldwell, 19, was wounded in the chest and taken to surgery where doctors reported her in reasonably good condition.

University Heights Police Sgt. Chris Schoupt said Batch's mother, Martha Smith of Johnstown, Pa., talked to the boy from his kitchen and told him she loved him and would protect him.

"We heard two shots and we rushed in," Schoupt said.

Cleveland detective Capt. Patrick L. Garrity that said when he entered the bedroom, the girl was still standing, although wounded.

Garrity said Batch was lying on the floor, the gun in his hand.

Both Batch and Mrs. Caldwell were carried from the home on stretchers.

Police said Batch had refused to talk to his mother.

"Go away and leave us alone," Mrs. Caldwell said from the bedroom before the shooting.

Batch had held the woman captive at gunpoint since shooting her husband, Charles, 18, in the newlyweds' apartment, police said. Caldwell, wounded in the face, was in fair condition in hospital. Police said he identified Batch as the person who shot him.

Mrs. Smith had flown to Cleveland to try to reason with her son. She arrived less than an hour before the shooting.

ISSUED WARNING

Batch had warned he would shoot Mrs. Caldwell and himself if anyone intervened.

Earlier, he used the woman as a shield and drove police into a stairway with a volley of shots.

No one was hit.

"He came out shooting," said Irving Konigsberg, mayor of University Heights. "We can't get at him."

Konigsberg said police had been in the suburban University Heights apartment trying to talk Batch into freeing the girl when he came out of the bedroom with a pistol pointed at her neck.

Police had not talked to the girl since five shots were fired about dawn today. Earlier, Batch fired three shots and one knocked out a searchlight set up outside the house.

About 50 police officers were outside the house, some armed with tear gas and shotguns.

Police said coffee spiked with a sleeping drug was passed to Batch and the woman early today but it could not be confirmed that they drank it.

Herbert Pendergraft, the girl's father said he once had a fight with Batch, whom he described as a blondish, heavy-set youth.

"If you don't get out, I'll shoot her," Detective Alan Schultz quoted Batch as saying in answer to pleas Sunday that he release young Mrs. Caldwell,

EVERY CASE A CRISIS

By TED GASKELL

One of the toughest jobs performed by a United Red Feather-Red Cross Appeal agency and one of the most gratifying is that of the Family and Children's Service.

Its staff is confronted with such difficult problems as finding homes for children who do not get along with their parents; trying to patch up marital squabbles; finding foster homes for unwanted children; helping unmarried mothers; looking after emotionally disturbed children at the Sevenoaks Centre and finding adoption parents.

Some problems might seem insurmountable but the service can be proud of many successes, says Mrs. Gwen Lundy, supervisor of the intake section.

The service with close to 100 office staff and social workers will operate next year on a budget of $1,157,105 of which $80,000 will come from the United Red Feather—Red Cross Appeal's $600,000.

Big problem for the service is the need for foster parents. Group homes are operating with between eight and 10 children but often those are full and individual homes must be found.

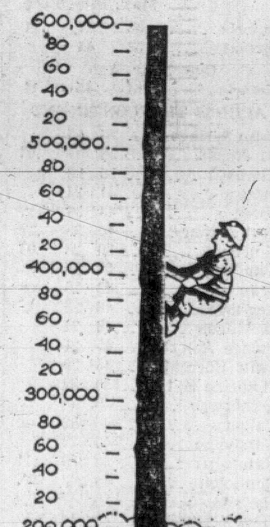
The service took 23 children into care one month including six in one day.

Four came from one family in which the mother was ill and the father away. In this case the children were taken care of for a time, then the situation was reviewed.

Another child was abandoned by a mother who returned after a few days but in the meantime the Family and Children's Service found the child a home. Another child, close to school-leaving age, could no longer live with her own parents and sought a foster home where she could settle down to finish school.

United Appeal

Put Him Up On Top



Official audited figures of the United Red Feather-Red Cross Appeal at noon today stood at $356,134 or 59.3 per cent of the $600,000 required.

In such a case the service will try to effect a reconciliation before finding a foster home.

Among the more than 200 cases handled each month are those brought to the attention of the service by out-of-town agencies who might want reports on families in divorce cases so that children can be placed in the proper custody.

The intake section of the service is a "crisis area" according to Mrs. Lundy and while her department sees some cases which sometimes seem hopeless and are frequently depressing, there are many happy endings.

A child who has been in care since the toddling stage is proud of having topped the class in a vocational school.

It took more than a year for one child to get over its mistrust of adults including its foster parents but not long ago the service received a letter expressing deep appreciation of the foster parents work from the ward.

Others whose parents can't afford to look after them are fully reconciled and quite happy with foster parents.

One of the more unpleasant tasks facing the service is the work under the Protection of Children Act by which the workers may remove a child from its home in the case of neglect or cruelty.

Sometimes this results in an appearance before the family court judge but sometimes the complaint brings to the attention of the service a case of parents needing not punishment but assistance.

Sometimes families must be split up but "wherever possible we try to keep families together," said Mrs. Lundy.

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

There was some active buying of wheat, corn and soybeans on the opening by exporters and processors, but commercial interests and local professionals turned aggressively to selling and prices weakened. Later in the session prices firmed up again but not to their previous levels.

Oats and rye trade was slow and prices were lower.

Soybean oil lacked support and turned mostly lower, but soybean meal underwent some active buying near the close and prices turned firm.

WINNIPEG (CP)—A sale of 1,000,000 bushels of Canadian barley featured trade on the Winnipeg grain exchange today.

Trade generally was on a light scale with oilseeds drawing most of the attention. Flax prices showed a firm undertone, reflecting high oilseed prices on the continent and evidence of overseas support. Reports indicate 300 tons of flax were sold to the continent.

Rapeseed was easier in light hedging sales representing farmers' deliveries. There was occasional evidence of overseas supoprt.

Other reports indicate the United States is considering establishing reserves of wheat and feed grains and an estimate of the flax crop in Argentina indicates it might be lower than last year.

'BIG CONCESSION'

Books Tossed Open On Dosco Shutdown

TORONTO (CP)—A happy Premier G. I. Smith of Nova Scotia Sunday described as a "significant concession" the decision of Dominion Steel & Coal Corp. to allow consultants to examine all its records of the Sydney steel plant, threatened with a full shutdown by April 30.

Mr. Smith made the remark in an interview after more than 10 hours of negotiations this weekend with Hawker Siddeley of Britain, Dosco's parent company.

Dosco announced two weeks ago that it intends to close the Sydney plant on a gradual basis. Dosco claims the plant, major industry in the Cape Breton Island city of 34,000, is losing $1,000,000 a month.

"We now expect any books pertaining to the Sydney operation to be available to us—that's what we agreed to in good faith," the premier said.

Mr. Smith said Dosco's books on the Sydney operations, kept at company headquarters in Montreal, have been outside Nova Scotia's jurisdiction, and unavailable until now.

Hawker Siddeley plans to start closing the plant next month, and to begin curtailing production Jan. 13. It would reduce the 3,400 man staff to a skeleton crew of 60 by April 30.

ADVISING PROVINCE

Initial task of the consultants, acting for the Nova Scotia government, would be to advise if the province should enter an agreement with Dosco to keep the plant in full operation until April 30.

Mr. Smith said there is a "real possibility that the plant can pay its own way."

He said the $1,000,000 loss attributed to the Sydney plant for the first half of 1967 is actually the loss suffered by all Dosco operations during that period.

Mr. Smith said Hawker Siddeley will keep the plant in full operation until April 30 only if Nova Scotia meets certain conditions.

He said one condition "amounts to the government buying out the Sydney plant in April." The government would also have to make up losses during the January-April period. It would have to keep the plant open until April, 1969, to supply other Dosco divisions with steel at a "competitive" price, the premier said.

On Friday, the federal government announced it would underwrite an unspecified proportion of the losses involved in keeping the plant at normal operation until April 30.

In an official statement Sunday, Premier Smith said the aim was to keep the plant operating as "a going concern."

West Bank To Wind Up

WINNIPEG (CP) — Court approval was given today to the Bank of Western Canada to proceed with winding up its affairs.

Shareholders of the never-opened, Winnipeg-based bank voted Sept. 14 to wind up but necessary court approval for appointment of a liquidator had been blocked by counter moves spearheaded by Toronto financier Sinclair Stevens.

The decision clearing the way for winding up was brought down in Court of Queen's Bench by Mr. Justice Roy Matas. His judgment followed a Sept. 28 remand in the tangled affair.

"It is apparent that the cause for these proceedings is a battle for control of the bank by opposing financial interests," Mr. Justice Matas said.

He added that his consideration had to be for the bank's shareholders and not for the opposing financial factions.

The judge said he could see no "substantial irregularity" in the shareholders' meeting that voted to wind up the bank.

Endako Profits

VANCOUVER (CP) — Endako Mines Ltd. Saturday reported an estimated net profit for the three months ended Sept. 30 of $3,000,000 or 40 cents a share.

Profits for the first nine months this year was $8,900,000 or $1.15 a share.

Comparable figures for last year are unavailable because the company's year-end changed from April 30 to Dec. 31 in 1966.

Peace Contract

VANCOUVER (CP)—A Vancouver company which outbid five other tenderers by more than $1,000,000 has won a Peace River power transmission contract. The job, which involves stringing wire along two sections of the 574-mile transmission route, went to the Cattermole-Trethewey Contractors Ltd. for $4,152,484.48. Next lowest bid was $5,187,975.

MacMILLAN-BLOEDEL EARNINGS TUMBLE

VANCOUVER (CP)—The nine-month earnings of MacMillan-Bloedel, Ltd., fell by 10.5 per cent from the corresponding period last year to the lowest point in four years, despite an increase of $50,523,646 in sales.

SOCIETY TO FIGHT PROPOSAL

Funeral Association Bill 'Threat to Our Rights'

The Memorial Society of British Columbia vowed Sunday it will fight proposed legislation by undertakers.

In a statement issued after its annual meeting in Vancouver, the society said the bill may curtail its rights and aims.

The president of the B.C. Funeral Service Association, Gar Jennings of Vancouver, said earlier the bill—which may be submitted at the January session of the legislature—is not a threat to the Memorial Society's existence.

He said it aimed to educate undertakers and assure the public of qualified funeral people.

SIX-MAN BOARD

The draft bill would see a six-man board established to make and enforce regulations for the funeral industry.

The chairman would have a casting vote only and of the other five members, "not less than three shall be licensed funeral directors or licensed embalmers."

The board would have power to suspend for cause the licence or permit of any person "for such period and upon such conditions as it deems proper."

The certificate of qualification may be revoked and the licence of permit of any person also revoked for any cause prescribed in regulations.

The Memorial Society of B.C., second largest in North America with more than 15,000 members, aims to provide "low cost funerals for members and to preserve their rights to designate how their remains shall be disposed of," said the statement.

1,400 MEMBERS HERE

Society membership on lower Vancouver Island and Gulf Islands is 1,400, according to local secretary Mrs. Joan Bennett.

A panel of four speakers told more than 400 persons attending the meeting the draft bill "would be a threat to one of the most basic rights that individuals possess, in that it may eventually result in making certain funeral practices such as embalming and cosmetology mandatory."

The four speakers were lawyer Mary Southin, former MLA Dorothy Steeves, union official Bob Clair and MLA Bob Williams. Mrs. Jean Mohart, Vancouver, was re-elected president.

HIGHEST STANDARDS

"The society maintains that all funeral establishments are adequately policed by the department of health and there is no question whatsoever that all undertakers practising in the province are meeting the highest standards," the statement said.

The deputy minister of health, Dr. J. A. Taylor, said today there are no provincial regulations for funeral establishments and whether there are local ones depends on each municipality.

He also said the health department, through regulations on communicable diseases, has "adequate protection" and there was "no particular health hazard" as far as most dead bodies are concerned.

Under the communicable disease regulations, for example, there can be no public funeral if a person dies of smallpox. There are also special arrangements in this case for the handling and embalming of the body.

Other than communicable diseases, he said, "our view is that there is no need for us to be involved."

Asked about the local picture, Greater Victoria medical health officer Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread said:

"There are no regulations but there should be regulations."

He declined further comment.

BLAMES OTTAWA FOR 'DRAINING B.C. GOBLET'

Bennett Had No Inkling of Closure

By JOHN MIKA
Legislative Reporter

The closure of Victoria Machinery Depot's shipbuilding facilities here is "regrettable" and he had no inkling of the decision, Premier Bennett said at the weekend.

•

Commenting in Port Alberni, where he was participating in ceremonies marking the merger of the twin cities, Mr. Bennett said it was the fault of the federal government for not weighing tender prices to favor B.C. because of higher costs on the West Coast.

Harold Husband, president of VMD, said one of the reasons for closing the firm is that it is impossible for West Coast yards to compete nationally for shipbuilding contracts because of higher wages and higher cost for basic material.

"We kept shipbuilding going on this coast as much as we were able to," Mr. Bennett said.

"We don't need more ferries and we don't build what we don't need," he added when asked for comment on a statement by Mr. Husband that it was lack of B.C. Ferry Authority contracts as well as federal contracts which forced the closure decision.

Mr. Bennett said he frequently asked Ottawa to offer a "price differential" in evaluating ship construction tenders in order to cancel out the effect of higher wages on the West Coast when deciding where contracts would be awarded.

"But the federal government didn't see it that way and this is strange because in other situations it gives equalization grants to other provinces," Mr. Bennett said.

"But this present government in Ottawa gives no consideration to B.C. and what has happened (VMD announcement) is another proof that Ottawa considers B.C. a goblet to be drained."

Mr. Bennett said Opposition Leader Robert Strachan's attitude to the announcement was "peculiar."

Mr. Strachan had scored federal and provincial policies for failing to develop a Canadian merchant marine which would have not only kept shipyards busy but created an economic instrument for development of a steel industry here which would use iron ore and coal now being exported.

•

"A merchant marine is no solution," Mr. Bennett said. "It is a price differential (for West Coast yards) that is needed.

"Why did Mr. Strachan not back the premier on this?" Mr. Bennett demanded.

COMMISSION TO MEET THURSDAY

The Esquimalt police commission will hold a hearing Thursday morning to consider the suspension of Cpl. Frank Bell.

Ex-Saanich Reeve Dies In Hospital

A man who twice served as reeve of Saanich and was a dairy farmer in the area for more than 50 years, Arthur Graham Lambrick, died in hospital Sunday.

Mr. Lambrick, who was 75, lived at 4141 Torquay Drive, where he moved last year after he sold his 44-acre farm to the municipality for parkland.

He came to Victoria in 1911. He left his home in Cornwall to go to Illinois, then returned to England, but left again to come to Canada.

He worked in the shipyards here before starting up as a farmer in 1915.

In 1939 to 1940 he served as reeve, then was elected again for a one-year term in 1946.

He is survived by the widow, Clara; three sons, Graham at Cobble Hill; Norman, in Kelowna, and Philip in Victoria; two daughters, Mrs. D. J. (Betty) Miller, in North Saanich, Mrs. (Robert D. (Sylvia) Macmurchie, in Cordova Bay; 12 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be conducted from McCall Brothers Floral Chapel, Wednesday at 10.

Four Outlets Return Magazine

"Three or four" magazine sales outlets in Greater Victoria have returned their allotments of the November issue of Playboy to a local distributor.

The retailers indicated they did not want to handle the current issue because of a sequence of photos which show men and women in "compromising positions," a spokesman for the distributor said today.

But J. W. Anderson, the city's senior prosecutor, said that while he had heard references to the sequence, he has received no complaints and was therefore "not officially in the picture."

In Calgary last week the four pages alleged to contain obscene pictures were removed by the distributor before the magazine went on sale and a complete copy was turned over to the prosecutor's office to see whether court action was warranted.

About 5,000 copies of the magazine are sold locally each month, said the spokesman here.

Union Asks Company To Open Its Books

Request Claimed Not Unreasonable

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Labor Reporter

The books of Victoria Machinery Depot should be opened for inspection, a union official said today.

Neil Hindle, business agent of Local 191 of the International Brotherhood of Boilermakers, noted that Dosco has agreed to do this for its steel mill in Sydney, Nova Scotia, which is due to close next year.

"This is not an unreasonable request for VMD," he said.

"That is why we asked the government for an inquiry. In the scope of that, the government would send people to assess what is wrong with VMD and the financial picture is one of the major aspects of it."

CLOSE JAN 1

The VMD shipyard at Dallas Road wll shut Jan. 1 because, a company statement said, there are no prospects of new work. The company's Bay Street engineering factory will continue.

Equipment and stocks at the yard have been sold to Burrard Dry Dock of Vancouver and VMD president Harold Husband, who retains ownership of the 21-acre property, has become a director of that company.

The consolidation leaves only Yarrows in Esquimalt as a major shipbuilding and repair yard here. It is a subsidiary of Burrard.

'NOT OUT OF LINE'

Referring to comments that there is a $1 an hour wage spread between the west coast and the east, he said "our wages are not out of line with our productivity.

"The cost of bringing steel and machinery, the freight differential, is where a lot of the cost is. If we build a vessel 60 per cent of it comes from the east."

On comments that a merchant marine would need government subsidies to establish and run, he asked: "Who in this country isn't subsidized?"

FEW EMIGRATED

While Seattle shipyards are jammed with war work for years ahead, and recruiters have been in this area in the past year few British Columbians emigrated.

The deterrent for younger people, said Mr. Hindle, was the draft which could land them up in Vietnam.

The VMD shipyard at present employs only 160 persons, but he doubted many will be absorbed into the engineering factory ("I don't see any great expansion at Bay Street") or at Burrard and Yarrows ("You have got to have space to work people").

NOT 'FOOLISH'

Mr. Hindle said the idea of the federal government nationalizing the VMD shipyard and running it as a crown corporation "would not be foolish and not an unacceptable idea."

It could become a model, efficient yard and "warrants very close attention. This is the ideal time for the government to pick it up. We'd do everything possible to assist things."

•

'Not Sure What Can Be Done'

Officials of 10 shipyard unions met Victoria MP David Groos this morning to discuss the shutdown of the Victoria Machinery Depot shipyard.

Larry Ryan, secretary of the Victoria Labour Council, said at press time the MP was seeing Victoria Mayor Hugh Stephen to try and arrange a meeting of them and VMD president Harold Husband.

This would be a first step, said Mr. Ryan, to try and discuss the reasons behind the shipyard shutdown.

"MORE DETAILS"

Mr. Ryan said the unions "want a more detailed explanation" of Mr. Husband's actions.

"We are concerned about the people who work there and what prospects there are for them," he said.

Shipyard union leaders agreed to contact all federal, provincial and municipal political leaders in this area "enlisting their support and trying to bring about a satisfactory solution."

CALL ON OTHERS

The Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce and "all sectors" of the community will also be called upon for their support.

Mayor Stephen said after meeting Mr. Groos:

"We explored the whole situation but we are still not quite sure just what can be done. All I can say at this time is that my office is open to union representatives who might like to come in and talk about the situation.

"I am ready to do anything that might possibly produce options to the present situation. If anything can be done as a result of discussions with the unions I would be most happy to meet them."

. . . BUT FIRST THEY MUST BUY THEM!

It appears that Indians on the Craigflower and Esquimalt reserves can use firecrackers on Halloween, despite the ban elsewhere in the capital region.

RCMP Sergeant Vern Williams of Colwood detachment said he has not studied the issue closely but he thinks the reserves are exempt from fireworks restrictions.

But Sgt. Williams said Indians do face one problem before they can set off their fireworks. It would be illegal for them to buy fireworks anywhere in Greater Victoria where they are banned.

Two More Libraries On Books

The Greater Victoria Public Library Board is going ahead with plans to open branch libraries in Esquimalt and Oak Bay.

In a letter to city hall, chief librarian Jack Lort says it is hoped to open a branch library in Esquimalt in 1968, a fourth branch in Oak Bay in 1969 and, in 1970, to replace the Bookmobile with a new piece of equipment.

In his letter Mr. Lort estimates the 1968 library budget at $640,000 ($4.27 per capita), in 1969 the budget would be $725,000 ($4.85 per capita); 1970, $810,000 ($5.41 per capita) and in 1971 $950,000 or $6.35 per capita.

A further sub-libary is also in the plans for the Mount Tolmie area but Mr. Lort stated that no decision had yet been made as to whether it would be located on the Victoria or Saanich side of the municipal boundary.

MAN KILLED IN GRINDING CAR CRASH

Dead is Martin Henry Vanderheide, married and the father of two children.

The impact of the collision ripped the engine out of the car and one person who saw the vehicle said "it looked like it went over a land mine."

RETURNING HOME

RCMP said Vanderheide had just taken two teenaged girl babysitters home and was on his way back to Chemainus when he was killed.

His 1955 model car smashed into a telephone pole, sheering it off and leaving the car a pile of mangled steel.

HOLD INQUIRY

Coroner Russ Inkster of Nanaimo said today he will hold an inquiry into the fatality but will not hold an inquest.

The deceased was employed at B.C. Forest Products Ltd., pulp mill at Crofton as an apprentice millwright in the maintenance department. He had worked there for five years and his father, Maynard Vanderheide, is also a mill employee.

Rolf Plans 'No Disasters'

By TED GASKELL

The time before that there was a big wind which blew in windows and did other damage.

"I plan no disastrous weather this time," he told The Times. "If there's a hurricane, flood or heat wave, don't blame me."

He appears at the McPherson tonight and Tuesday with a two-hour show which includes all his best-known songs, to wobble board accompaniment, and his comedy.

Harris is probably best known for his Tie Me Kangaroo Down, Sport, but it's pretty hard to tie the man himself down.

After his show in Victoria he goes to the Cave in Vancouver for a Nov. 6 appearance. Less than a week later he's at the Palladium in London for his first Royal Command performance. Then it's back to the Cave for another appearance; back to England for a one-and-a-half-hour children's special.

In January he starts a 13-week live series for the BBC in London and as soon as that's over he goes to Australia to make a film about a pet kangaroo.

In his command performance he has a nine-minute spot which will see him lend a Canadian flavor to the show.

He plans to sing "Valse Mathilde," a French version of Waltzling Matilda which he wrote for his Expo appearance.

He'll also sing Tukker Chicken, a comedy-animal noise song and Under the Trees, a new song he has just written which will have its stage debut at the Palladium.

Expo Publicity Splurge Canada's Biggest Ever

MONTREAL (CP) — The holding of Expo 67 in Centennial Year gave Canada the biggest splurge of publicity in her history.

Sixty national days, 58 state visits and 36 special days of various kinds were marked at the 1967 Universal and International Exhibition in its six-month run ending Oct. 29.

Kings, queens, emperors, princes, princesses, presidents and prime ministers and a host of other ministers and emissaries of every hue came to Expo.

"The image of Canada has been enhanced tremendously," Lionel Chevrier, commissioner-general of state visits, said in an interview.

"These people may have known about Canada but they had never seen it in action."

He noted that the arrangements for state visits gave guests the opportunity of visiting Expo, Ottawa, Quebec City and other cities of their choice. Most of them took advantage of this and had a good look at Canada.

Mr. Chevrier also said Expo has contributed to Canadian unity:

"It has shown Canadians what they can do. I don't think Canadians would have thought this possible a year ago. Now all Canadians are rejoicing at the success of Expo."

FLOOD OF JOURNALISTS

The visits of national and international figures brought accompanying visits by foreign and overseas journalists who wrote not only about Expo itself but often did general reports on Canada for their readers. Foreign television, too, gave unprecedented coverage.

Prime Minister Pearson, External Affairs Minister Paul Martin and other ministers were able personally to put the views of Canada before the visiting statesmen.

A spectacular exception was President de Gaulle who cancelled a visit to Ottawa after being rebuked by Prime Minister Pearson for what was considered an intrusion in Canada's domestic affairs. In a series of speeches following his arrival in Quebec City, he urged French-Canadians to fight for their rights.

FEW INCIDENTS

Incidents were few and unspectacular despite the fame and controversy surrounding some of the world figures who came to Expo. A yell of "assassin" directed at President Johnson when he came here in May, a demonstration outside the Montreal hotel of Greek King Constantine—these were the only sort of incidents. They were well controlled by police.

Although the visits were billed as private, Princess Margaret and Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy caused a couple of mighty stirs when they came to the fair separately on the Canadian Thanksgiving weekend.

Frenzied Acclaim For Jean Drapeau

MONTREAL (CP) — Sunday was Jean Drapeau's day as Expo 67 closed its doors on 185 days of fun, culture and national pride.

The familiar bald head and horn-rimmed spectacles drew an emotional explosion of sentiment as Montreal's mayor walked to a podium in Place des Nations to deliver a speech of thanks to all who helped him realize his ambitions dream.

The 15,000-strong crowd roared their appreciation again and again as their hero handed out bouquets and called Expo a "first step."

CHEERED WILDLY

His personal triumph was underscored again and again as the impetuous crowd seized every opportunity to wildly cheer him.

He graciously thanked Mr. Dupuy, Mr. Shaw, former prime minister John Diefenbaker, Mr. Pearson, Quebec Liberal leader John Lesage and Premier Johnson for their part in making Expo a reality.

And he gallantly wished "50,000.00 times thank you to the hostesses of Expo's pavilions" for their courtesy, kindness, smiles and warm welcome to visitors that was such a "great factor in Expo's success."

Unrestrained cheering and applause again broke loose as he ended with the words:

"Long live Expo 67. Long live Man and his World."

Man and His World was the theme of Expo 67.

DIEF ATTENDS

Well-wrapped in a grey mackintosh with a battered brown hat jammed on his head and with gloves, he looked around wistfully as his once-magic name was uttered among 15,000 Canadians and drew not a single clap. His wife Olive laid a hand on his arm and gave him a friendly squeeze.

SOVIET PAVILION TOP DRAW

MONTREAL (CP) — An Expo 67 computer spun out a stream of facts and figures Sunday as it tallied the count of everything from hamburgers eaten to ticket stubs torn over the six-month Expo period.

The lines at the Czechoslovakian and British pavilions might have seemed the longest but it was the Soviet Union's exhibit that attracted the most visitors—about 13,000,000.

Canada had 11,000,000 visitors, the United States 9,000,000, France 8,500,000, Czechoslovakia 8,000,000 and Great Britain 5,000,000.

* * *

Expo Express, the fair's free transit system, travelled 374,600 train miles and the Expo marina held more than 7,000 boats.

There were 25,463 youngsters who turned up at the department for misplaced youngsters and the department happily reported that 25,463 were found.

Canadians visited the fair more than citizens of any other nation. Fifty-three per cent of all visitors were Canadians while the U.S. supplied 45 per cent of the population.

* * *

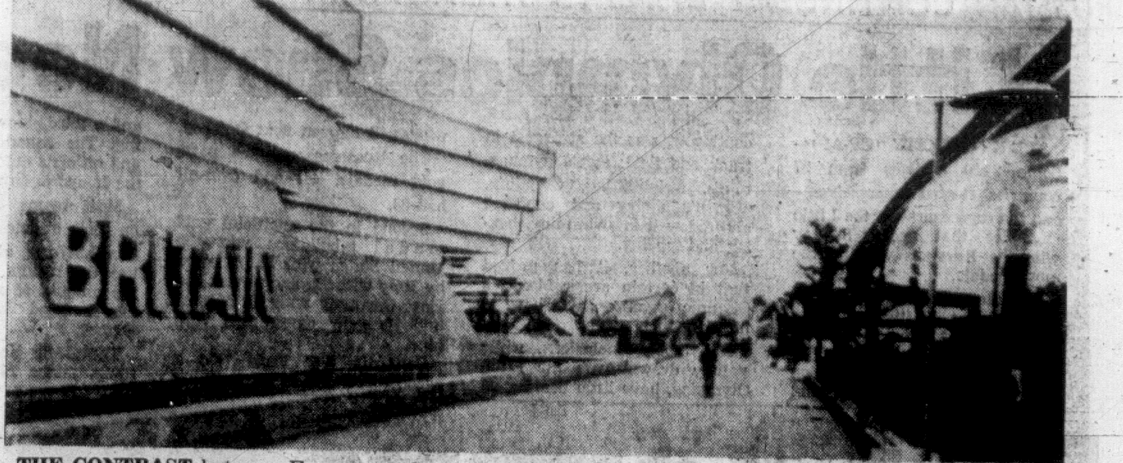
Season passports were used 22 times each on the average and about 480,000 Expo theatre ticket stubs, valid for one night's visiting on site after each performance were used. Seven-day passports were used 5.5 times each.

A total of 5,931,578 hamburgers were gobbled up by fair-goers and more than 33,500,000 ice cream cones were consumed during the fair.

VISITOR HITS THE JACKPOT

MONTREAL (CP)—Marthe Racine, 39, who has made only one airplane flight in her life, Saturday won a flight to Osaka, Japan, to see Expo 70 when she became Expo 67's 50,000,000th visitor.



THE CONTRAST between Expo yesterday and today is a stark one. Once-throbbing attractions like the British pavilion shown here are strangely silent and streets regularly jammed with fairgoers show only workmen and security guards. The fair closed Sunday after a 185-day run that attracted 50,000,000 visitors. (CP Wirephoto.)

CLOSING GESTURE BY 2,000

Outstretched Hands Symbolize Fair

MONTREAL (CP) — More than 2,000 hands, fingers spread to resemble the symbol of Expo 67, reached skyward Saturday night at the emotion-charged Pal des Nations marking both the close of the world's fair and United Nations Week in Montreal.

It happened suddenly.

The 1,100 guests seated around a series of round tables were in the midst of eating when the orchestra began to play Hey Friend, Say Friend, the official theme song of Expo.

Within seconds, Andrew Kniewasser, general manager of the world's fair, Commissioner-General Pierre Dupuy and Deputy Commissioner-General Robert Shaw all rose, their arms outstretched with fingers spread to symbolize Man and His World, the fair's theme. The lights dimmed and the entire gathering rose, held up their hands and began singing.

The ball was organized by the United Nations Association in Canada. Commissioners-general from all Expo pavilions were in attendance as were hundreds of members of the association.

FLAGS FORM GATEWAY

An atmosphere of international fellowship was quickly established as the colorful flags of the nations formed a gateway to the entrance of the ballroom inside the Hotel Bonaventure.

"I know I'll break down," said Helen Vilachochrista, 20-year-old hostess from the pavilion of Greece. "I shall be in the Place des Nations when the flags are lowered tomorrow and already I'm beginning to cry."

CROWDS FILE OUT QUIETLY

'I Feel as If Someone Had Died'

By KARIN MOSER

MONTREAL (CP)—"Oh my God, it's over," whispered one woman as the sound of a 67-gun salute boomed out Sunday at Expo, signalling the closedown of the 1967 world's fair.

Within minutes, all visitors were asked to leave pavilions, boutiques, restaurants and the Expo Express as it pulled into Place d'Accueil, the main entrance.

"I feel as though someone has died," said Liliane Azar, a Montrealer.

Sveral youngsters passed her carrying blue banners bearing the Expo symbol and the words Au Revoir—till we meet again.

"C'est triste,"—it's so sad—said Margaret Richer of suburban Lachine.

A small crowd gathered near the pavilion of Ethiopia where two young high school girls from Trois-Rivieres, were holding signs saying Merci Jean Drapeau.

"Everyone who passes us is putting his signature on the placard," explained Luce Desaulniers, 14. With her 15-year-old friend, Joan Poliquin, she was going to turn the signs over to Montreal's mayor later.

One man passed the small group and wiped his eyes with a handkerchief.

There was a peculiar silence everywhere. No one felt like talking.

About 4 p.m. thousands of men, women and children lined the banks of the St. Lawrence, jammed into Place des Nations and crowded onto the Place d'Accueil platforms to watch an hour-long fireworks display.

50 MILLION MEMORIES

Tears, Smiles Bring Great Fair to End

By DAVE MacDONALD

MONTREAL (CP)—An unaccustomed stillness lay over Expo's 1,000-acre site Sunday night a few hours after the 1967 worlds' fair came to an end.

Blackness cloaked most of 74 pavilions that for six months rang to laughter, chatter and tears.

In 185 days Expo admitted 50,306,648—a record for fairs of this type and duration.

Expo's probable $250,000,000 deficit will be paid 50 per cent by the federal government, 37½ per cent by the Quebec provincial government and 12½ per cent by the Montreal municipal government.

The highlight of Expo's last day was an official ceremony held in the Place des Nations, an open amphitheatre on St. Helen's Island.

A crowd of 15,000 gave Montreal's Mayor Jean Drapeau a tremendous ovation as he gave his thanks.

There was a subdued air and general disappointment that the fair was over.

Montrealer Liliane Azar said, "I feel as though someone has died."

About 1,500 police and security men were able to clear the site without the last-minute looting feared by officials.

The last visitor was admitted at 2 p.m. and the day's admission total was 221,554.

Mr. Michener received a 21-gun salute and 100 men of the Royal 22nd Regiment presented arms while the British and Canadian national anthems were played and his personal standard was raised.

Expo visitors, who had been told they were barred from the ceremony, were pleased when security men let them flock to the terraces.

Within 30 minutes the crowd

SUICIDE ENDS THREE-DAY DRAMA

Bride Held Hostage, Shot by Ex-Suitor

CLEVELAND (AP)—A disappointed suitor shot himself to death today after wounding a young bride he held captive at gunpoint since Saturday night in his third-floor suburban apartment, police said.

Robert Batch, 23, was dead on arrival in hospital, a bullet wound in his heart.

Lida Caldwell, 19, was wounded in the chest and taken to surgery where doctors reported her in reasonably good condition.

University Heights Police Sgt. Chris Schoupt said Batch's mother, Martha Smith of Johnstown, Pa., talked to the boy from his kitchen and told him she loved him and would protect him.

"We heard two shots and we rushed in," Schoupt said.

Cleveland detective Capt. Patrick L. Garrity said that when he entered the bedroom, the girl was still standing, although wounded.

Garrity said Batch was lying on the floor, the gun in his hand.

Both Batch and Mrs. Caldwell were carried from the home on stretchers.

Police said Batch had refused to talk to his mother.

"Go away and leave us alone," Mrs. Caldwell said from the bedroom before the shooting.

Batch had held the woman captive at gunpoint since shooting her husband, Charles, 18, in the newlyweds' apartment, police said. Caldwell, wounded in the face, was in fair condition in hospital. Police said he identified Batch as the person who shot him.

Mrs. Smith had flown to Cleveland to try to reason with her son. She arrived less than an hour before the shooting.

ISSUED WARNING

Batch had warned he would shoot Mrs. Caldwell and himself if anyone intervened.

Earlier, he used the woman as a shield and drove police into a stairway with a volley of shots.

No one was hit.

"He came out shooting," said Irving Konigsberg, mayor of University Heights. "We can't get at him."

Konigsberg said police had been in the suburban University Heights apartment trying to talk Batch into freeing the girl when he came out of the bedroom with a pistol pointed at her neck.

Police had not talked to the girl since five shots were fired about dawn today. Earlier, Batch fired three shots and one knocked out a searchlight set up outside the house.

About 50 police officers were outside the house, some armed with tear gas and shotguns.

Police said coffee spiked with a sleeping drug was passed to Batch and the woman early today but it could not be confirmed that they drank it.

Herbert Pendergraft, the girl's father said he once had a fight with Batch, whom he described as a blondish, heavy-set youth.

"If you don't get out, I'll shoot her," Detective Alan Schultz quoted Batch as saying in answer to pleas Sunday that he release young Mrs. Caldwell,

ORANGE, Calif. (UPI)—Brush fires exploded across Southern California today, charring more than 60,000 acres, destroying more than 50 expensive homes and forcing thousands of residents to flee.

The worst of the fires, a 28,000-acre blaze raging in heavily populated areas of Orange County, was declared a major disaster by state officials.

UN Split On Mideast Peace Plan

By WILLIAM N. OATIS

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The 10 non-permanent members of the UN Security Council, split between two proposals, tried today to agree on a plan the council could adopt to send a peacemaker to the Arabs and Israelis.

One major difference was over wording of instructions to the proposed UN special representative concerning withdrawal of Israeli troops from captured Arab lands.

A Canadian-Danish draft said no state in the area should "persist in refusing to withdraw" troops that are on another's territory against its will.

A resolution submitted by Argentina, Brazil, Ethiopia, India, Mali and Nigeria said the Israelis should withdraw either "to positions they held on June 4"—the day before the war began—or "from all the territories occupied as a result of the recent conflict." The phrase to be used depended on final instruction some of the delegates receive from their governments.

DATE IN QUESTION

OTTAWA — Manpower minister Jean Marchand told Parliament today his department will look into the closure of Victoria Machinery Depot.

The shipbuilding and repair business has been sold to Burrard Dry Dock Co. of North Vancouver.

Marchand said he hoped to be able to make a report to Parliament either Tuesday or Wednesday.

Harold Winch (NDP—Vancouver East) got the answer after he asked what Marchand—whose department deals with replacement and retraining of workers—was doing about the layoffs of skilled men at VMD.

Winch and Ron Basford (Liberal—Vancouver Burrard) had teamed up in efforts to get answers from Transport Minister Paul Hellyer but were cut off by Speaker Lucien Lamoureux, who ruled the questions could not be asked at this time.

Major Step To Moon Trip

MOSCOW, (UPI)—The Soviet Union announced it launched an earth satellite today that carried out an automatic docking procedure with another satellite sent up Friday.

It was the first automatic docking procedure ever carried out, although the U.S. has carried out manned docking experiments.

Tass news agency said satellite Cosmos 188 was launched today and made a successful rendezvous with Cosmos 186, launched last Friday.

The announcement said the "rigidly coupled" satellites are continuing their joint orbital flight, according to telemetry radioed from the project. It reported all equipment functioning normally.

Tass said television cameras on board the sputniks took pictures of the linkup and radioed them back to earth.

Tass told how the launching was carried out:

"After Cosmos 188 went into orbit, both sputniks, equipped with special approach systems and docking units, carried out a number of complicated manoeuvres in space, automatically finding each other, drawing closer, berthing and docking rigidly.

"The processes of seeking each other, approaching and docking were carried out with the help of special radio-technical means and on-board computers."

Official Denies Manned 'Spectacular'

The spectacular docking achievement followed only by a few hours an official denial from Russia's top scientific expert that the Russians planned a space spectacular involving passengers in the near future.

There were widespread rumors the Russians would pull off a major space achievement involving cosmonauts in time for the 50th anniversary celebrations of the Bolshevik revolution Nov. 7.

Mstislav Keldysh, the space head, said Western observatories were wrong in speculating the recent rash of Cosmos launchings—five in the past week alone—were dress rehearsals for manned flights.

"We have other objectives in mind," he said.

As he spoke the Russians carried out one of those objectives—the docking procedure which is a must for future manned flights in space. The announcement gave the Russians another jump in the race for the moon.

At 12:20 p.m. (1:20 a.m. PST) as Keldysh spoke to reporters the two Cosmos satellites linked, Tass said.

After the docking the two sputniks continued to fly together around the earth at altitudes ranging between 124 and 171 miles, Tass said. They circled the earth once every 88 to 97 minutes at an angle to the earth of 51.7 degrees.

They were following roughly the same orbit as that of Soyuz I, Russia's last manned spaceship, which ended in disaster last April when it crash-landed, killing its cosmonaut, Vladimir Komraov.

Tass said the dockings cleared the way for the building of space platforms in orbits.

EVERY CASE A CRISIS

By TED GASKELL

One of the toughest jobs performed by a United Red Feather-Red Cross Appeal agency and one of the most gratifying is that of the Family and Children's Service.

Its staff is confronted with such difficult problems as finding homes for children who do not get along with their parents; trying to patch up marital squabbles; finding foster homes for unwanted children; helping unmarried mothers; looking after emotionally disturbed children at the Sevenoaks Centre and finding adoption parents.

Some problems might seem insurmountable but the service can be proud of many successes, says Mrs. Gwen Lundy, supervisor of the intake section.

The service with close to 100 office staff and social workers will operate next year on a budget of $1,157,105 of which $80,000 will come from the United Red Feather—Red Cross Appeal's $600,000.

Big problem for the service is the need for foster parents. Group homes are operating with between eight and 10 children but often those are full and individual homes must be found.

The service took 23 children into care one month including six in one day.

Four came from one family in which the mother was ill and the father away. In this case the children were taken care of for a time, then the situation was reviewed.

Another child was abandoned by a mother who returned after a few days but in the meantime the Family and Children's Service found the child a home. Another child, close to school-leaving age, could no longer live with her own parents and sought a foster home where she could settle down to finish school.

In such a case the service will try to effect a reconciliation before finding a foster home.

Among the more than 200 cases handled each month are those brought to the attention of the service by out-of-town agencies who might want reports on families in divorce cases so that children can be placed in the proper custody.

The intake section of the service is a "crisis area" according to Mrs. Lundy and while her department sees some cases which sometimes seem hopeless and are frequently depressing, there are many happy endings.

A child who has been in care since the toddling stage is proud of having topped the class in a vocational school.

It took more than a year for one child to get over its mistrust of adults including its foster parents but not long ago the service received a letter expressing deep appreciation of the foster parents work from the ward.

Others whose parents can't afford to look after them are fully reconciled and quite happy with foster parents.

One of the more unpleasant tasks facing the service is the work under the Protection of Children Act by which the workers may remove a child from its home in the case of neglect or cruelty.

Sometimes this results in an appearance before the family court judge but sometimes the complaint brings to the attention of the service a case of parents needing not punishment but assistance.

Sometimes families must be split up but "wherever possible we try to keep families together," said Mrs. Lundy.

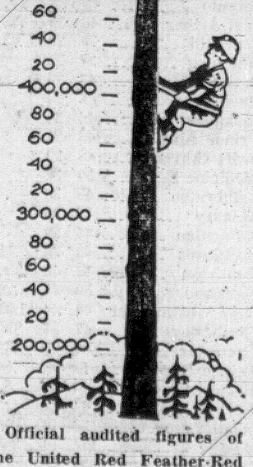
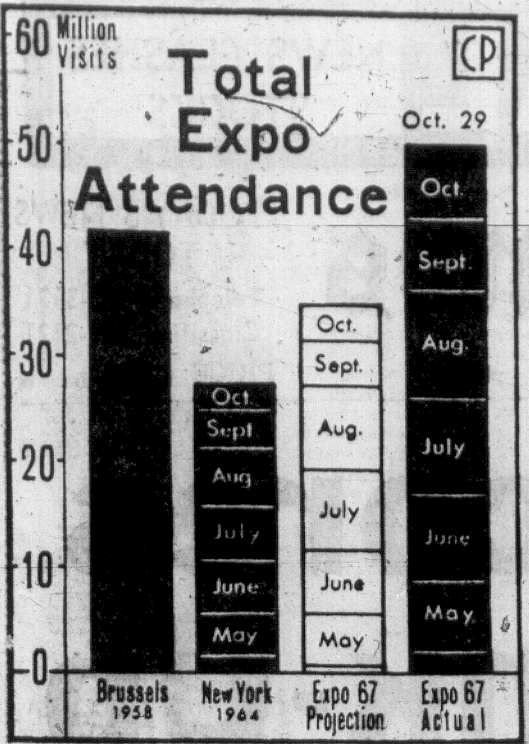
Put Him Up On Top



Official audited figures of the United Red Feather-Red Cross Appeal at noon today stood at $356,134 or 59.3 per cent of the $600,000 required.



EXPO 67 drew more visits than any other world's fair in history, topping the previous leader, the 1958 Brussels fair, by a wide margin. A total of 50,306,648 visits were made to the Montreal fair which ended Sunday. (CP Newsmap.)

of 4,000 invited dignitaries swelled to about 15,000.

The governor-general presented gold medallions to representatives of all national pavilions. As he did so the flags of the participating nations were lowered from the flag-poles where they had flown since Expo opened April 27.

Mr. Pearson then presented silver medallions to representatives of private pavilions.

'A GREAT NATION'

Mr. Dupuy, his voice a little strained, said he believed Expo had achieved its purposes and Canada had acquired a new stature as "a great nation."

Mr. Drapeau got sustained, ringing applause before and after he spoke.

Several hostesses who attended the ceremony in the uniform of their pavilions blushed and beamed as he said:

"Especially, I want to say 50,000,000 times thank you to the hostesses of Expo's pavilions. Your courtesy, kindness, smiles and warm welcome was a great factor in Expo's success."

A mighty roar came when he finished with the words:

"Long live Expo 67. Long live Man and his World."

Quebec Premier Daniel Johnson also praised Expo's hostesses—and Mrs. Robert Shaw, Expo's official hostess and wife of the fair's deputy commissioner-general.

Mr. Pearson was cheered when he called Expo "a glorious page in our history."

Mr. Pearson said Expo was a "great Canadian achievement in design, planning and construction" and a "great success." The big fair has been "one of the most imaginative acts of faith in Canadian enterprise and ability ever attempted," he added.

It proved Canadians could achieve any objective if they worked together. It had made Canadians more conscious of their own capacities and potential.

"We have discovered that we do have a character and quality of our own; rich and diverse, but Canadian."

SPEECH 'FILED'

The governor-general told the audience he would not deliver his prepared speech because of the time and temperature — the cremony ran eight minutes beyond the scheduled finishing time and it was about 35 degrees—but would file it "in the archives of Expo" where it probably would be "unread through eternity."

Part of the undelivered speech said Expo gave to the Canadian people "a sense of their collective achievement as a great composite community of various people and regions, all working together for a common good."

A large part of the crowd stayed on after Mr. Michener had declared Expo officially closed to watch a 45-minute flying display by the Golden Centennaires, the RCAF's crack aerobatics team.

Scattered groups of visitors sang Alouette as they drifted toward the exit gates and one woman summed up a general feeling about Expo by wailing:

"Now what will we do to keep young? Expo made us young all summer."

as to reports that the sale was triggered because of lack of contracts and rumored cancellation of the $22.5 million worth of shipping for the transport department.

VMD President Harold Husband said last week that this news has triggered his decision to get out of the shipyard business.

The transport department declined comment on reports that a shipbuilding program for the coast guard has been cancelled.

But informants said that at least four of six planned coast guard cutters will be eliminated in the government's economy drive.

Finance Minister Sharp has promised to outline soon projects being ditched by the government in its drive to reduce planned expenditures in the 1968-69 fiscal year.

Growth 'Too Rapid'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canada has unparalleled opportunities to grow but must dampen down the price and cost pressures which are running ahead of their U.S. counterparts, Arthur Smith, new chairman of the Economic Council of Canada, said today.

There have been recent indications that the pace of over-all expansion "may now be quickening somewhat again," after a period of moderation in growth during the last part of 1966 and first part of 1967, he said.

He spoke to a combined meeting of the Vancouver Board of Trade and the Canadian Club of Vancouver. It was one of his first major speeches since taking over chairmanship of the council from John J. Deutsch, now at Queen's University, Kingston, Ont.

Mr. Smith said that in the 1960s, Canada's employment grew more than in any other industrial country. Total volume of output rose faster than any country except Japan.

But growth in productivity and living standards in Canada has not been as great as in many other countries.

By 1980, Mr. Smith said, the Canadian labor force is expected to grow to 10,500,000, from 7,000,000 in 1965.

"This great expansion will, of course, bring enormously increased demands for capital investment in the form of machinery and equipment, factories and office buildings, and other forms of capital.

"The rapidly growing numbers of young people in our society, which lie behind this large growth in our labor force, will in fact have far-reaching implications for almost every aspect of our national life, including requirement for a vast increase in new housing units to accommodate an extraordinary rapid rate of growth in new families and households."

He spoke of the expected boom in university schooling and said this will make educational expenditures the most prominent feature of government spending during the years to come.

"Over the medium-term future," he said, "about one-quarter of all government expenditures at all levels of government combined will need to be devoted to education." To achieve its potentials, Canada will have to avoid unacceptably high price and cost increases, and improve its productivity, he said.

He reiterated the council's view that Canada is too subject to international influences to make it possible for voluntary wage and price restraints to work for longer than a brief period.

"Recently, prices and costs in Canada have generally been increasing more rapidly than in the United States, and this cannot persist for long without imperilling other economic and social goals in Canada," he said.

Mr. Smith said all the so-called big levers of economic policy-government taxing and spending policies, interest rate management, exchange rate machinery, and commercial policy—will have to be used to keep the economy on an even keel.

"But the opportunities which lie ahead of us in this country over the medium- and longer-range future, are now virtually without parallel anywhere in the world.

"All across this great country, Canadians everywhere should be seeking to participate confidently and constructively in turning these opportunities into realities."

MAILMEN TO PRESS FOR SATURDAYS OFF

The Canadian Council of Postal Unions is going to make a drive to get the five-day service established, cutting out deliveries on Saturday, in its collective bargaining with the public service staff relations board, a spokesman for the unions said today.

Already the post office department has studied some of the economies involved in dropping the one day. It would result in a saving of about $10 million a year.

But the government is waiting to determine the possible impact on business and industry of only a five-day service. Until it has that information at hand no decisions will be taken.

It is understood that Postmaster General J. J. Cote has put forward the five-day mail delivery service suggestion in cabinet. He is also reported to be urging cabinet to accept the Glassco Royal Commission recommendation that the post office be made a crown corporation.

Choir Deficit To Be Paid In Full-Society

Charges that the Greater Victoria Centennial Society refused to pay the full expenses of the Winnipeg Polish "Sokol" Choir were denied this morning.

In a letter to Cecil Semchyshyn, chairman of the Manitoba Folk Arts Council, choir director Richard Seaborn says the choir incurred a $700 to $800 deficit, which the Victoria Centennial Society has refused to pay.

Cec Wyatt, secretary-treasurer for the society, and Jerry Gosley, co-ordinator, described the charge as nonsense.

Mr. Wyatt said the Polish group had already been informed that any reasonable deficit incurred during the visit to Victoria would be met as soon as the society received a full statement from the choir director.

"The original estimate to bring the choir out was $2,750," Mr. Wyatt said. "We have already advanced $400 above that figure—and we have set aside to meet any further reasonable deficit the sum of $1,000. But we can't make that payment on a verbal request. As soon as we receive a full accounting from the choir we shall pay the deficit. And we have already informed the group as to our intention."

B.C. 'Anxious For Meeting

Social Welfare Minister Dan Campbell today said the provincial government endorses a call for convening of an immediate federal-provincial conference on Indian problems.

The call was made at a meeting Friday in Regina by representatives of the four western provinces.

James Sadler, assistant deputy minister for social welfare, represented B.C. at the conference and was to make his report to Mr. Campbell later today.

But the minister this morning said B.C. has been anxious for a federal-provincial conference for some time and the proposal would be given official backing by the provincial government.

Yachtsmen Taken Forcibly From Craft During Storm

DURBAN (AP) — Canadian David Dick and Australian Laurie Harder were taken off their yacht Ohra under protest as near hurricane-force winds whipped up raging seas near Stanger, 40 miles north of Durban today, the South African Press Association reported.

They were spotted riding out the storm in the open sea by the master of the Japanese freighter Awata Maru.

Although it was believed the Ohra did not request assistance, the freighter moved in close to the 27-foot cutter, the association reported. Swirling seas prevented the yacht moving away from the freighter and the two men were taken aboard under protest.

The abandoned yacht was later reported beached a short distance from Durban with the rudder missing, but little other apparent damage.

Harder and Dick were brought to Durban aboard the Awata Maru, when the port reopened to shipping after being closed for 24 hours.

Further details were not available.

Roman Catholic priests and relatives of Batch also had tried unsuccessfully to talk the young man into ending the hours of terror.

Batch's mother, Martha Smith, 50, said her son tried to kill himself in April, 1966, when a girl he had dated said she would not marry him.

She said Batch then stabbed himself in the chest and underwent psychiatric care.

CATCH ESTIMATED

Preliminary estimates indicate Ontario's commercial fishermen landed 19,752,000 pounds of fish worth $2,209,000 during the first six months of 1967.

Four Given Nobel Prizes In Science

STOCKHOLM (AP) — The Swedish Academy of Science today awarded the Nobel Prize in physics to Professor Hans A. Bethe of Cornell University and the chemistry prize jointly to Britons George Porter and Ronald George Wreyford Norrish and German Manfred Eigen.

Bethe was awarded the prize in physics for his contributions to the theory of nuclear reactions, and especially his discoveries concerning the energy production in stars.

The British-German trio was awarded the prize for "their studies of extremely fast chemical reactions, effected by disturbing the equilibrium by means of very short pulses of energy," the academy's citation said.

Porter is attached to the Royal Institution in London and his British colleague lives in Cambridge. Eigen works at the Max Planck Institute of Goettingen.

Eigen receives one half of the $62,000 prize while the two Britons share the other half.

Retraining Costs Up $25 Million

OTTAWA (CP)—The manpower department jacked the cost of this year's retraining program to $135,000,000 from $110,000,000 in a supplementary estimate tabled last week in the Commons.

The change bore out Manpower Minister Marchand's prediction less than 24 hours earlier that many more millions would be added.

The $25,000,000 was the biggest item among estimates totalling $61,771,669 that bring the government's budgetary spending program for the 1967-68 fiscal year to $9,646,079,371.

The manpower department also asked for $5,000,000 in winter works payments.

The post office, which has a bill before Parliament for increases in postage rates, requested an additional $10,435,300 to cover operating costs. The transport department asked $8,263,000.

FAREWELL BECOMES SALUTE

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP)—British Columbia's top soldiers turned out in the rain Saturday night to honor the province's most distinguished military man.

The occasion was originally planned as a farewell salute to the man who has been the province's lieutenant-governor for five years, but it was changed to a simple testimonial when it was announced he would remain in office for a further six months.

IF BARRED FROM COMMON MARKET

Britain Denies Europe Pullout

LONDON (AP)—For the second time in 24 hours the British government during the weekend denied it would consider a disengagement from Europe if France blocks Britain's entry into the Common Madket.

The development came after Lord Chalfont, Britain's chief Common Market negotiator, was summoned home to explain the circumstances and content of an informal talk with British reporters in Switzerland Thursday.

Following that background chat, British newspapers carried reports Friday that Britain's exclusion from the Common Market might be followed by a radical revision of foreign policy that could result in withdrawal from NATO—withdrawal of Britain's army from Germany and recognition of the Communist regime of East Germany and of the Oder-Neisse line as Poland's western frontier.

Chalfont returned to the foreign office Saturday—one day ahead of schedule. He conferred with Foreign Secretary George Brown as a full-scale political and diplomatic storm began to rage in British newspapers.

The foreign office, meantime, issued a statement strongly denying that Chalfont, in talking with reporters, had at any time suggested any change of British foreign policy is being contemplated or would take place.

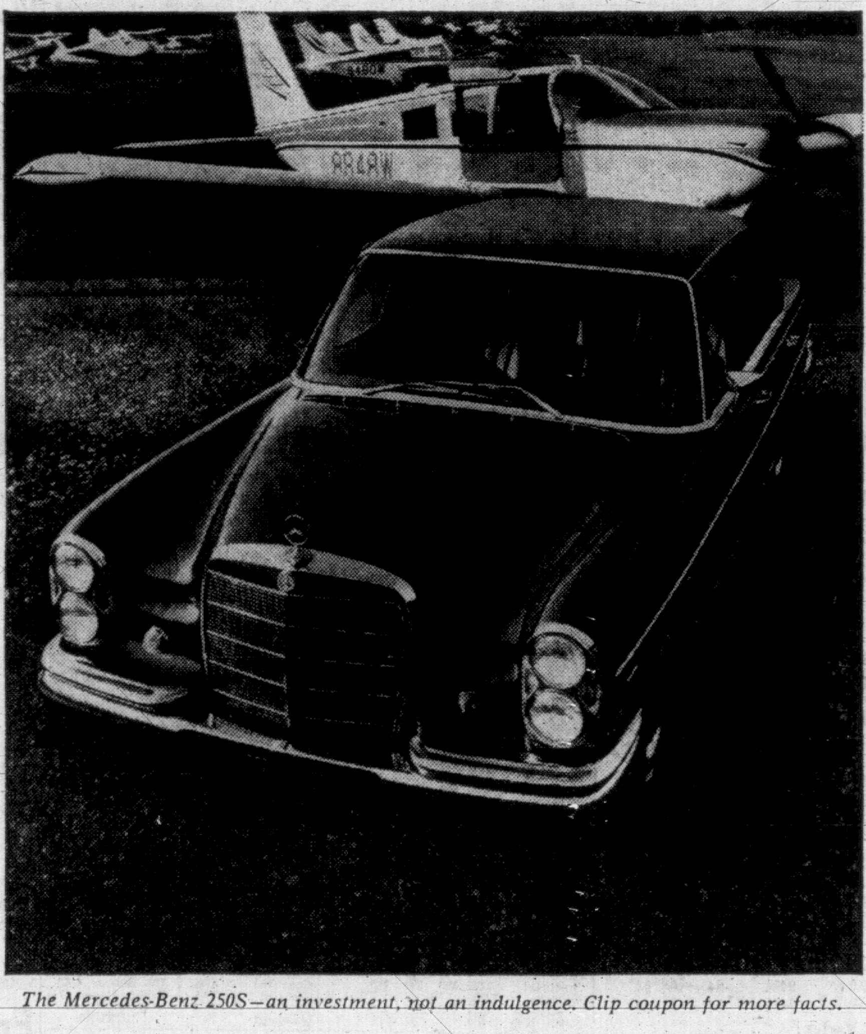
BIG SAVINGS
FOR EVERYONE
COMING SOON!

The more its rivals keep changing, the better the Mercedes-Benz 250S looks.



The Mercedes-Benz 250S—an investment, not an indulgence. Clip coupon for more facts.

The new '68 models are out, and now's the time when millions of people make the big decision on their next car.

Or should you buy the almost unchanged Mercedes-Benz 250S?

The dreamboats will do more for your ego. But the 250S will do more for your driving, your pocketbook—and your peace of mind.

No new-car bugs

The 250S has stayed unchanged since its 1965 debut. It's free of the "bugs" that can keep its all-new rivals shuttling back and forth to the shop for adjustments.

And because Mercedes-Benz refuses to play the "planned obsolescence" game, you enjoy another relief: the knowledge that your 250S won't suddenly be shoved out of date, just when it's nicely broken in. Its looks are meant to stay modern for years.

Behind the ballyhoo

Strangely enough, your 250S is fitted with more true engineering advances than any of those cars that boast of being "all new" every year.

Perhaps it's not so strange at all. Most car makers are so busy dreaming up ways to make their products look new that they ignore fundamentals.

"People can't see them—so why bother making big technical improvements?" seems to be the attitude.

Mercedes-Benz bothers—because Mercedes-Benz believes a car should be an efficient machine, not fashion merchandise. And devotes its engineering brains to perfecting that efficiency.

The telling proof

Drive the 250S after you've spent a few miles in one of its $6,600 rivals. It's the surest, most dramatic proof you can find of what technical superiority means in an automobile.

Seek out the kind of potholed back road you'd try to avoid in ordinary cars. Don't spare the 250S: aim for the bumps and dips.

An amazing thing happens. You stay in your seat, the wheel stays in your hands, and the 250S never wavers or pitches or rattles. Things are uncannily calm.

You're riding on an uncanny, fully independent suspension system. Steering with a recirculating-ball mechanism that has its own shock absorber built in. Cradled in a rigid "unit" body that has been welded 10,000 times, studded with rubber cushions, studied with a stethoscope to find and kill the structural flaws that mean noise.

Mercedes-Benz engineers think these advances mean more than all the styling frills on earth.

Brakes that don't fade

The 250S glides serenely over smooth roads, of course. In fact, an American writer in Germany reported, "There is as little inside noise at 100 mph as at a standstill."

But say an emergency arises. Can you stop?

You can stop the 250S so well that brake fade is almost unknown. The car draws down to smooth, straight-line stops—stop after stop after stop. Check the technical specifications: brawny, 10½-inch disc brakes are bolted to all four wheels. There is even a tiny valve in the brake system to balance front and rear braking forces. And a power assist does the work—not your leg muscles.

A note of reassurance: Mercedes-Benz mounts tires to the 250S that have been test-proved safe, even in continuous 100 mph cruising under maximum load at normal air pressures. And mounts them as standard equipment.

Is it big enough?

Check the dimensions of the 250S and you may ask, is it big and roomy enough—as roomy as those sleek $6,600 rivals?

The 250S is more compact than other cars in its class. Two feet shorter overall, for example. But so sane is its design, so shrewd the use of interior space, that it matches them for room in all vital respects.

And as you'd expect, the 250S provides rich physical comfort. Seats are deeply contoured and plumply padded. A built-in ventilation system lets you enjoy constantly replenished fresh air when all windows are shut.

And as you'd also expect from Mercedes-Benz, the finish is superb. No flaws or jagged edges. Even the underside of the dash has been fully trimmed. How nice, to own a car you can be proud of.

From $27,000* to $4,605*

You may be able to afford a Mercedes-Benz without knowing it. Below are suggested retail prices* for 7 of the 13 Mercedes-Benz models:

600 Grand Mercedes	$27,000
250SE Coupe	10,260
250SL Roadster	8,315
230S Sedan	5,810
230 Sedan	4,980
200 Diesel Sedan	4,820

*F.O.B. Toronto. Provincial taxes extra.

Note: Mercedes-Benz pioneered many important safety features, many years ago. Dual-circuit brake lines, disc brakes and other items have been standard equipment for years, too. But work continues to make Mercedes-Benz cars even safer—both in avoiding trouble, and in protecting you if trouble should occur.

GRAIN

WINNIPEG

WINNIPEG (CP)—A sale of 1,000,000 bushels of Canadian barley featured trade on the Winnipeg grain exchange today.

Trade generally was on a light scale with oilseeds drawing most of the attention. Flax prices showed a firm undertone, reflecting high oilseed prices on the continent and evidence of overseas support. Reports indicate 300 tons of flax were sold to the continent.

Books Tossed Open On Dosco Shutdown

TORONTO (CP)—A happy Premier G. I. Smith of Nova Scotia Sunday described as a "significant concession" the decision of Dominion Steel & Coal Corp. to allow consultants to examine all its records of the Sydney steel plant, threatened with a full shutdown by April 30.

Mr. Smith made the remark in an interview after more than 10 hours of negotiations this weekend with Hawker Siddeley of Britain, Dosco's parent company.

Dosco announced two weeks ago that it intends to close the Sydney plant on a gradual basis. Dosco claims the plant, major industry in the Cape Breton Island city of 34,000, is losing $1,000,000 a month.

"We now expect any books pertaining to the Sydney operation to be available to us—that's what we agreed to in good faith," the premier said.

Mr. Smith said Dosco's books of the Sydney operations, kept at company headquarters in Montreal, have been outside Nova Scotia's jurisdiction, and unavailable until now.

Hawker Siddeley plans to start closing the plant next month, and to begin curtailing production Jan. 13. It would reduce the 3,400 man staff to a skeleton crew of 60 by April 30.

Initial task of the consultants, acting for the Nova Scotia government, would be to advise if the province should enter an agreement with Dosco to keep the plant in full operation until April 30.

Mr. Smith said there is a "real possibility that the plant can pay its own way."

He said the $1,000,000 loss attributed to the Sydney plant for the first half of 1967 is actually the loss suffered by all Dosco operations during that period.

On Friday, the federal government announced it would underwrite an unspecified proportion of the losses involved in keeping the plant at normal operation until April 30.

In an official statement Sunday, Premier Smith said the aim was to keep the plant operating as "a going concern."

VANCOUVER (CP)—The nine-month earnings of MacMillan-Bloedel, Ltd., fell by 10.5 per cent from the corresponding period last year to the lowest point in four years, despite an increase of $50,523,646 in sales.

Earnings in the third quarter were $8,300,000. Sales of products and services totalled $408,886,154, compared with $358,362,508 in the 1966 period.

West Bank To Wind Up

WINNIPEG (CP) — Court approval was given today to the Bank of Western Canada to proceed with winding up its affairs.

Shareholders of the never-opened, Winnipeg-based bank voted Sept. 14 to wind up but necessary court approval for appointment of a liquidator had been blocked by counter moves spearheaded by Toronto financier Sinclair Stevens.

The decision clearing the way for winding up was brought down in Court of Queen's Bench by Mr. Justice Roy Matas. His judgment followed a Sept. 28 remand in the tangled affair.

"It is apparent that the cause for these proceedings is a battle for control of the bank by opposing financial interests," Mr. Justice Matas said.

He added that his consideration had to be for the bank's shareholders and not for the opposing financial factions.

The judge said he could see no "substantial irregularity" in the shareholders' meeting that voted to wind up the bank.

Comparable figures for last year are unavailable because the company's year-end changed from April 30 to Dec. 31 in 1966.
